IS STILL ON THE STAND

WITNESS ORCHARD TODAY IS BEING CROSS-EXAMINED BY DEFENSE.

HE KEEPS CONTROL OF HIMSELF

Remarkable Self-Confessed Killer of Men Does Not Get "Rattled" by Attorneys of Haywood—No Contradictions Yet.

Boise, Idaho, June 7.—When Harry Orchard resumed the stand today in the Haywood trial, Attorney Richardson, for the defense, at once began to ply him with rapid fire questions.

Before answering Orchard asked permission to make two trivial corrections in his testimony of yesterday, and while he was making the statement Attorney Richardson interrupted him with a question.

The attorneys for the state objected and Orchard also protested.

"We both can't talk at the same time," Orchard said to Richardson. "And yesterday you asked me a new question before I could answer the old one."

"The witness will be allowed to answer questions without interruption," said Judge Wood sternly.

Orchard then admitted that while he was in the Idaho mining country he became quite a gambler. He was asked how he voted the day the union decided to go down to Wardner and blow up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine mills, and said he did not remember.

"Are you sure," finally asked Richardson, "that you were not at Burke's or Mullen's playing poker when this explosion occurred.

"I am sure," came the reply. "I lit one of the fuses which fired the powder under the mill."

"Did you know Haywood, Mercer or Pettibone at this time?"

"No, sir."

"They were not with you at Wardner when the mill was blown up, were they?"

"No, sir; not that I know of."

Up to the time he went to Colorado in 1902, he said, he had never heard of Haywood, Pettibone, Moyer or Simpkins, that it was by his own initiative that he went to Colorado, and that no one connected with the Western Federation of Miners urged his going.

When he arrived in Colorado he went to work in a mine and renewed his membership in the union.

Orchard said he himself had broached the subject of blowing up the Vindicator mine to W. F. Davis. "I had heard that leaders of the Western Federation of Miners had blown up mines before."

"Did the suggestion that powder in the Vindicator mine be touched off by you come from you or from Davis?"

"From Davis. He said he would give me $200 to touch it off."

Orchard said that there were fifty non-union men in the mine, and he believed the explosion would have killed them.

"And you proposed to murder fifty men for $200?" asked Richardson.

"I proposed to touch off the powder," fenced Orchard.

Orchard said that Moyer and Haywood both made speeches at Cripple Creek against violence.

The matter of blowing up the Vindicator mine was discussed a second time, and was suggested by Sherman Parker and Davis. Bill Easterly, among others, had discussed the methods of blowing up the mine.

Attorney Richardson here called Easterly from the audience in the court room. He was identified by Orchard.

Yesterday's Afternoon Session.

At the afternoon session yesterday Orchard said he started for Idaho two days after talking with Moyer and the others on the subject. Pettibone helped him get his trunk ready. He put the Peabody bomb prepared for use in Kansas City in the trunk and took it along. Pettibone knew about this.

"Before starting for Idaho," said Orchard, "Haywood gave me $240 in cash. He had given me $60 before this. I was to send to Mr. Pettibone for any additional funds. Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone were all present when this arrangement was made. I went from Denver to Salt Lake spent four or five days there and then came to Nampa, Idaho, stopping at the Commercial hotel.

"We tried to locate Gov. Steunenberg at once," said Orchard, "but could not. We went out to his residence several times and then finally saw him in the Saratoga hotel one Sunday evening. In the meantime we had fixed up the bomb, so Simpkins and I took the bomb out at once and set it under the sidewalk with a string stretched across the walk so when he struck it, it would upset the bottle of sulphuric acid. We went back to the hoted to wait, but heard nothing. After two or three hours we went out and got the bomb. We found that some one had broken the string, but had not upset the bottle. We hid the bomb in some weeds. The bomb was made in a wooden box, just

WEDDING ON SATURDAY

THAT OF MR. ALBERT SCHNEIDER AND MISS LEDA C. MOSIMAN.

REV. S. M. LESHER TO OFFICIATE

Be Married at 2 O'Clock and Leave One-Half Hour Later for Kansas City, Where They Will Make Their Home.

Mr. Albert Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schneider, of this city, and Miss Leda C. Mosiman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mosiman, of 1411 South Missouri avenue, will be married at the parsonage of the Trinity Lutheran church, by Rev. S. M. Lesher, at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Mayme Baley, an intimate friend of the bride, will serve as bridesmaid, while Mr. Will Mosiman, brother of the bride, will act as best man.

There will be no decorations, and simplicity will be a noticeable feature of the wedding. There will be no outside guests.

The bridal couple, accompanied by Miss Baley, will leave over the Missouri Pacific at 2:25 o'clock for Kansas City, where they will reside permanently.

Mr. Schneider formerly was employed as machinist at the new Missouri Pacific shops in this city. He left here several months ago for Kansas City, where he now holds a lucrative position with a commission firm.

Miss Mosiman was reared and educated in this city and for four years has been employed as saleslady at Guenther's dry goods store. The news of her engagement she kept from her friends in a remarkably clever manner.

Thursday noon she notified her employer that she intended resigning at 6 o'clock that evening, and this was the first intimation her friends had of the approaching marriage.

Inquiry and investigation revealed the cause of the resignation, and congratulations began to be extended.

Miss Mosiman is a most loveable young lady, with a sweet and charming disposition, and during her stay at the dry goods store she won and retained hundreds of friends, all of whom will take pleasure in joining the Democrat-Sentinel in extending hearty congratulations.

VISITORS ARE HONORED

Entertained by Miss Sneed Thursday Afternoon.

Miss Margaret Sneed was hostess to thirty lady friends at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Cameron Garrett, on West Fourth street, yesterday afternoon in compliment to Miss Alice Bowen, of Louisville, Ky., and Miss Margaret Thompson, daughter of J. C. Thompson, a former Sedalian, now residing at St. Louis.

The affair was an informal one, all having a delightful time, however. The house was decorated in field daisies, and refreshments of ice and cake were served.

Will Elect Directors.

A meeting is being held at the College of Music hall as the Democrat-Sentinel goes to press for the purpose of electing a new board of directors.

A FIRE AT KNOBNOSTER

A. C. SWAIN'S TWO-STORY DWELLING TOTALLY CONSUMED LAST NIGHT.

THE OWNER HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

Was Rescued Through a Window—Was Sound Asleep When the Fire Was Discovered by Some Young People.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Knob Noster, Mo., June 7.—A. C. Swain's large two-story dwelling on McPherson street and the contents were totally destroyed by fire about 11 o'clock last night.

Mr. Swain had gone home from his store about 10 o'clock and was sound asleep when the fire was discovered by some young people who were sitting in the hotel yard.

Mr. Swain was rescued through a window, saving only his pants.

The Elliott hotel and the Christian church, which were on either side of the Swain home, also two dwellings and a blacksmith and wagon shop across the street were in great danger of catching fire.

The loss is about $4,500, which was covered by $2,500 insurance.

Mr. Swain's wife is visiting relatives in Bates county, and his son, who stays with him, was at the Woodmen lodge.

This is the second fire he has had within eight months, having lost his large barn and contents before.

REFUSES TO BE AN EVELYN

Girl of 14 Taken From Cutody of Her Mother.

Fort Scott, Kas., June 7.—Alarmed by her mother's alleged statement that she would sell her to some rich man like Evelyn Nesbit was sold to Stanford White, 14-year-old Frances Hamilton appeared before Probate Judge Hudson yesterday and asked to be taken out of her mother's custody.

The child further informed the court that her mother was living with a man to whom she was not married. This the woman denied, but a little later she and the man came before the probate judge, got a license and were married. She said they were married two years ago in Kansas City, but that they would repeat the ceremony to set the child's mind at ease.

The woman gave her name as Virginia Younger Creek. She is said to be a relative of Cole Younger. The little girl has been taken charge of by the authorities and placed in a good home.

MR. ANDLER MAY RESIGN

Has Too Much Private Business That Requires Attention.

There was a street rumor last night that E. R. Andler, one of the Fourth ward representatives in the city council, would resign at the adjourned meeting of the city fathers tonight.

Mr. Andrel was interrogated on the subject by the Democrat-Sentinel this morning, and answered that he had not as yet fully decided in the premises.

He has been considering the matter, he says, as his private business has been increased by the recent consolidation of ice plants and adding of a lighting plant, but his friends have advised him to hold on, and in consequence he has the matter under consideration.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD

This is Alleged by Mrs. Muckey Against Her Husband.

Mrs. Lillie F. Muckey, through Attorneys McGruder, Bente & Wilson, today filed in the Pettis county court a petition in which she states that her husband, S. D. Muckey, a second-hand dealer, through fraud and misrepresentation, caused her to convey to him by certain deeds, on two occasions, certain pieces of land in Sedalia, which deeds she petitions the court to cancel and have such land returned to plaintiff.

She further asks that a certain bill of sale for land, also in this city, be canceled and the property returned to her.

A FORTUNE IS INHERITED

MONEY IS SPENT BY A CLUBMAN, AFTER WHICH HE TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.

A MINING BROKER SPENT $80,000

He Was a Bachelor and Lived at the Exclusive Alta Club, Salt Lake City—Body Was Found By Two Boys.

Salt Lake, Utah, June 7.—Having exhausted a fortune of $80,000 which he inherited from his sister, a victim of the Windsor hotel fire in New York, Richard M. Bourne, clubman and mining operator, yesterday wrote an open letter to the world and took his own life.

His body was found in City creek canyon yesterday afternoon by two boys. His left wrist had been slashed with a razor and two revolver bullets had been discharged into his brain.

Bourne was Utah agent for the California Powder company until 1903, when he came into the possession of wealth through the tragic fate of his only sister.

He then devoted his attention to dealing in mines and mining stock. He was a bachelor and lived at the exclusive Alta club.

TAKES THE BLUE RIBBON

Col. Adolph Riecke Has 1,200 Acres of Blue Grass Pasture.

Col. Adolph Riecke, of South Prospect street, has probably the finest blue grass pasture in the south part, if not in the whole county.

One field containing 500 acres, two miles north of Ionia, is finely set to blue grass. It has had no stock on it this spring and the grass is two feet tall, fully headed out and is a fine sight to view.

Col. Riecke has 700 acres more adjoining it on the north, giving him 1,200 acres of fine blue grass pasture, and all of it is well watered.

UNION LABELS ON GARTERS

Peek-a-Boo and Open Work Stockings, Too, Put on the List.

Logansport, Ind., June 7.—Union labels on peek-a-boo waists, garters and every other article that women wear, is the dictum of the delegates to the International Woman's Union Label League, now holding its convention here.

Every article that women wear, from the toe of her open work stocking to the comb in her marcel waved hair, must bear the insignia of union labor. This was the ultimatum that was delivered at the assembly.

STREET SANK TWELVE FEET

Washington Avenue in St. Louis Suddenly Gives Way.

St. Louis, June 7.—A portion of Washington avenue immediately west of the intersection of Jefferson avenue here, dropped twelve feet below the surface this morning by the collapsing of the roof of one of the natural underground passages known as Uhrig's cave. It is feared that the surrounding buildings may sink.

HE WILL NEVER HANG, EH?

SO SAYS MRS. LILLIE GATES IN REGARD TO BOGUS "LORD" BARRINGTON.

IS SENTENCED TO DIE NEXT MONTH

Letters Throwing Light on McCann Murder Exchanged With Mrs. Gates, Who Has Been the Accused's Friend.

St. Louis, Mo., June 7.—F. Seymour Barrington, condemned murderer of James McCann, who is under sentence to be hanged on July 25, will never be executed, according to Mrs. Lillie Gates, a new-found friend.

Mrs. Gates was in Clayton Wednesday and was in conversation with the condemned man for half an hour. She brought with her several voluminous documents, which the two perused carefully during their conference. Many letters were given to the prisoner by Mrs. Gates, and were read carefully by him. Barrington in turn gave his friend several letters.

After leaving Barrington Mrs. Gates stated that she conveyed for him some very vital information and he gave to her some points upon which which to work, that would help clear up the mystery of the McCann murder.

"Mr. Seymour will never hang," said Mrs. Gates "I cannot tell you what ground I have for making such a broad assertion, but you will get the proofs in time. The most important point upon which we are working now is that he is not Barrington at all, but Frederick Seymour.

"I have been procuring substantial data to establish this evidence for some time, and will soon present the matter to Governor Folk in such a way that he will at least stay execution until we have time to prove our claim.

"Further than this I will say nothing. It would not be advisable and might damage our case."

The sheriff would not divulge the contents of the letters which he read in the presence of the two, or state any of the conversation overheard by him.

PARTY OF 290 CADETS

Will Be Taken to St. Louis From Columbia By Col. Miner.

Col. A. C. Miner, traveling passenger agent for the Katy, leaves tomorrow for Columbia, where, at 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, he will leave on a special train with 290 cadets of the Missouri State university, who are going to the exposition at Jamestown, Va. This is the largest party so far to leave Missouri for the exposition.

The trip will be made in a special train from Columbia to St. Louis over the M., K. & T., thence over the Big Four to Cincinnatti and over the C. & O. railway to Jamestown.

"KILLED THEIR BUSINESS"

This is a Mighty Good Thing, So the Anti-Saloon People Say.

"Rev. Cunningham has killed our business," remarked one of the three justices of the peace to a Democrat-Sentinel representative today.

"Not a single case in court! How do you think we are going to live if that keeps up?" continued the orating justice, as he glanced over his spectacles to see if his auditor was paying attention to his remarks.

"Billy Drake tells me the criminal element of the city is leaving town on account of being afraid of being arrested, and if Rev. Cunningham continues his work we will have to quit business."

CAN'T THEODORE TELL US.

The cause of the bad weather is a subject of almost universal discussion throughout the United States. What is the matter? is the question propounded to friend and neighbor, but a blank and frigid expression is the only answer. The weather man has grown so irritable that he positively refuses to be interviewed, and all the astronomical and isothermal discussions in which he is supposed to engage in public print may be set down as counterfeits. It has come to be the general opinion of the people that nothing can be done to relieve the situation and induce a more seasonable supply of regular weather until the cause of the disturbance is located.

We have had many beliefs advanced by experts, but they afford little satisfaction.

It may be, as some claim, that the world was knocked out of its course by the 'Frisco earthquake or the Martinique disaster; it may be that the insurance scandal displaced so much atmosphere that the cold air is merely rushing in to fill the void; it may be that the channel to the north pole has become choked in the vicinity of Greenland, that the sun is giving us the baby stare or that the man in the moon has a cold. In fact, there are so many explanations of the strange phenomena, one of which is about as likely to be as far from the truth as the other, that our speculations leave us in a maze of trying perplexity.

But we have a suggestion that is not without hope. Indeed, we have great faith in its effectiveness. There is among us one of more than mortal ken—one who orders warring peoples to stop fighting; one who informs nations "where to get off at;" whose telescopic eye discerns the birth rate that each family should maintain, and has penetrated into the mysteries of 23 Broadway; who understands the animal language of the forest, the ethics of the age, the secret heart thoughts of corporations, the science of all occupations, and who can identify an Ananias 5,280 feet and 6 inches away. He is known by the magic symbol he carries, the Big Stick. Why have we not appealed to him before? Tell us, we beseech the, Oh Roosevelt! Oh warlord of nations, why is it that the wintry winds blew and the snows descended, and the frost nipped the vine, when there should have been gentle zephyrs, heat prostrations and opulent hotel proprietors at our summer resorts?

Inform us the cause, that we may seek the remedy! Tell us, Oh Theodore, where the screw was loose that we may tighten it, and that never again shall the peek-a-boo waist and the mosquito be so long delayed from among us.

BONAPARTE GETTING UP STEAM.

The latest report from Washington would indicate that the head of the department of justice had been malingned. Paralysis has not entirely overtaken the activities of this important branch of the federal government, as has been openly asserted of late. Mr. Bonaparte, it is said, will in the near future find something in the multifarious iniquities of our industrial and commercial life upon which to concentrate his energies and demonstrate his capacity for the office to which he has lately been transferred.

Action is at last to be taken against the coal carrying railroads, otherwise known as the anthracite trust. It seems that the commission appointed by the president many months ago to investigate railroads engaged in the mining and transportation of coal with reference to violations of the Sherman anti-trust act has completed its labors and submitted its report to the attorney general. Proceedings, it is forecasted, on semi-official authority, will be instituted within a few days by this officer against a number of railroads, including the Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and Reading, Chesapeake and Ohio, Atlantic coast line, Seaboard Air line and the Beech Creek railway. No reference is made to the Delaware and Hudson, the Lackawanna, Erie and Lehigh Valley, although all are engaged in the coal business and are understood to have a hand in regulating the supply and price of hard coal throughout the country.

It is a late day to commence operations against the anthracite trust, but action even now is preferable to continuation of the policy of indifference toward certain monopolies, this one among them, which has so long been in vogue at Washington. While the government has shown considerable zeal in prosecuting some unlawful combinations, others have been neglected.

The coal corporations, notwithstanding they represent one of the worst types of monopoly that exists in the country, have thus far been unmolested. Not only have they forced consumers to pay exorbitant rates for fuel by restricting production and arbitrarily fixing prices, but they combine the additional evil of having the coal industry owned and conducted by transportation interests upon which the product is solely dependent for marketing. Evidence in plenty has been adduced to show that this association and consolidation is in violation of the anti-trust law. It should have been broken up years ago, and would have been had the attorney general's office possesed men of energy and courage.

TRULY UGLY MESS, THIS

INVESTIGATING THE INSANE ASYLUM SCANDAL AT ST. JOSEPH.

CHARGES ARE FULL OF DETAILS

They Are Based on Statements Said to Have Been Made to Miss Katherine Boyle by Miss Everline.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 7.—The formal charges which Miss Katherine Boyle has made against Dr. C. R. Woodson, superintendent of hospital for the insane No. 2, were filed with the board of managers yesterday. The board spent the afternoon and evening in an investigation of the numerous charges and allegations. It was announced last night that the session would be continued today.

The board is determined to sift the matter to the bottom, and to this end will examine every employe at the hospital who is likely to know anything about the conduct of affairs there during the last few years.

The sessions of the board are being held at the hospital and the hearing is behind closed doors.

Miss Boyle had been a nurse in the hospital for twelve years and has a good record. Miss Everline, whose name is connected with Dr. Woodson's, has been connected with the hospital even longer, having been promoted, according to the allegations because of partiality on the part of the superintendent.

Miss Boyle's statement says that Miss Boyle and Miss Everline were for years friends and confidantes, and that Miss Everline told Miss Boyle all about her relations with the superintendent. Dr. Woodson is said to have met Miss Everline out of town at various times and to have lavished presents upon her.

Instances of the superintendent having presented to the supervisor diamonds and other gems, silken underwear and other expensive clothing are recited. It is also asserted that he kept her supplied with champagne.

Miss Boyle and Miss Everline visited Colorado together last summer, and during their stay, according to the statement, Miss Everline regularly received endearing epistles from the superintendent. It is also asserted that Miss Everline told Miss Boyle that Dr. Woodson told the supervisor that he loved her, and that if Mrs. Woodson should die he would make Miss Everline his wife and would introduce her into the best society.

It is also asserted that Dr. Woodson permitted the employe to make a very liberal use of the flowers raised in the hospital gardens in the decoration of her room.

The part of the statement which is not based on heresay evidence refers to certain advances Dr. Woodson is alleged to have made toward Miss Boyle herself. She says she indignantly repulsed him. Thirteen efforts along this line were made, Miss Boyle says.

The appointment of a steward to succeed Frank Owens, who prompted Miss Boyle to make the charges against Dr. Woodson, was deferred until the alleged scandal has been disposed of.

WHALE IS A "FAKE"

Court Is Asked to Help Showman Recover $500.

New York, June 7.— When is a whale not a whale? is a question that was submitted yesterday to the profound jurisprudence of the appellate term of the supreme court.

William Muhlig, of No. 27 Frankfort street, paid $500 for a quarter interest in a "preserved Greenland whale," to be exhibited by him and Christian Rebban and August Brehan throughout the country, together with a genuine "sea serpent and several mermaids."

While he was managing the show at Chester, Pa., he discovered that the leviathan was neither fish, flesh nor fowl, but simply a log of wood besmeared with plaster and covered with a painted canvas. Then he brought suit to recover his $500.

The action was tried before Judge Wauhope Linn in the municipal court and resulted in a verdict for the defendants, whereupon Muhlig appealed. Arguments were heard and the appellate term reserved a decision.

WAIF RICH AND TITLED

YOUTH FINDS HE IS SON OF A NOBLEMAN.

Accumulates Snug Fortune in the Klondike, Then Returns to States to Establish Relationship with British Lord.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Twenty years ago a young man whose home is in this city was a waif in charge of the Children's Aid society of New York. He was known on the books of the society as Eugene Purdy and had been sent from the home of the friendless at Kingston. His parentage was unknown.

A few months ago Purdy came to this city from Alaska with $150,000 which he had accumulated during the six years he was in the Klondike, gold mining. He took a house and began a systematic search into his past.

He has received thousands of letters and many people have claimed relationship with him, but the young man known as Eugene Purdy has almost established the fact that he is a grandson of Lord Granville Barker of England and that his own name is Eugene Lee Barker. A London solicitor has informed him that there is a comfortable estate left by Lord Granville Barker.

The young man now expects to prove that he is the oldest living son of Sir Lee Granville Barker, who was the oldest son of Lord Granville Barker of Sussex. For all that Purdy knows his father may still be living.

Purdy first found a trace of his parentage when he found Mrs. Lulu Barker Martin, of Mineral Wells, Tex., who says she is his sister. From her he has learned that their father left England after a quarrel with his father and came to America. He married a southern girl and for many years lived at Memphis.

"Our mother had the yellow fever," said Mrs. Martin, in telling the history of her brother and how he happened to be separated from the family. "Our oldest sister, Carrie May Barker, was the first one to die of it. Our grandmother on our mother's side and three of mother's brothers also died of the plague.

"When the yellow fever was at the worst, Purdy came to our house with his children. He remained there some time and when mother took the fever a younger brother of ours had it at the same time. We thought mother would die and father thought he could save one of the little boys by sending him away with Purdy. Purdy moved to a house on the outskirts of the city and we did not see him or Eugene again.

"My sister Carrie went to Purdy's house to look after Eugene, and while there she took the fever and died. We did not know she was dead until they sent her clothing back. People were dying by the thousands and it was impossible to know who had died and who had not.

"Our mother and the other little boy, whose name was Lee Pearl Barker, recovered from the fever. For a long time we thought all the Purdys had died and that Eugene had died with them. Afterward we learned that Purdy had moved away from the fever-stricken city at night in a wagon, taking Eugene. Then we moved to Carthage, Mo., and father began a search for Eugene.

"He was able to trace Purdy through Tennessee and toward the east, but lost track of him. We moved to St. Louis later and father still continued the search.

"One day father told us that he was going to look for Eugene and that he would not come back until he had found him. We have never seen him since."

Purdy has learned from other sources that he was taken when a baby to some place in New York state by Purdy and that later he landed in the home of the friendless at Kingston. He was sent to the society in New York and from there sent to Missouri in 1886 with a car load of waifs.

PRUSSIANS' THRIFT GROWS.

Year of 1905 Broke Record for Savings Bank Deposits.

Washington.—The statistics of the Prussian savings banks for 1905 have lately been published and they may be taken as a criterion for the flourishing condition of the whole of Germany. Consul T. J. Albert of Brunswick writes on the subject as follows:

"Never before was the increase in savings bank deposits in Prussia so great as in that year. According to a statistician it amounted to $127,120,000 advance over the previous year. In 1870 the entire deposits of the Prussian savings banks were only $117,960,000. In 1905 they amounted to $1,973,880,000. The present annual increase is now greater than the total amount of deposits was a generation ago. Almost 95 per cent of the books were for amounts up to $714.

"The increase in the number of bank books in 1905 was 430,931, or nearly twice as great as the rate of increase in the population. The increase of the previous year had even been greater—namely, 439,303 books."

PAID FOR FARM IN YEAR

THEN HANS DE HARTOGH SENT FOR HIS WIFE AND 12 CHILDREN.

WERE POPULAR ON BOARD OF SHIP

Man Came to America, Bought a Farm, Built Him a Home, Paid for it All and Then Sent for Family.

In the cabin of the Holland-American liner Noordam, in this morning from Rotterdam, came Mrs. Hans de Hartogh and her 12 children, the oldest of whom, Everdina, is 16 and the youngest, a baby in arms, of 5 months,, says a New York dispatch. The family was the most popular on the big liner on the voyage, and this morning when they left the liner preparatory to starting on a long journey to the West, Captain Stenger, the veteran skipper of the Noordam, stood at the gangway and bade the mother and her 12 children a regretful farewell.

Mr. de Hartogh, the father, came to the United States about a year ago, and, going West, bought a farm near Davenport, Iowa. He lost no time in getting his crops planted, and as he had the reputation in his own country of being one of the best farmers in the county where he lived, he determined to earn just an enviable reputation among his Iowa neighbors.

He made a success of the farm, and [illegible] a year had it paid for, had built a fine house and saved up enough money to send to Holland for his family and bring them all over as cabin passengers.

NEITHER SANE OR INSANE

Is the Finding of the Court in the Case of Fred W. Hoen.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 7.—The insanity commission in Justice Stout's court in the case of Frederick William Hoen, the aged prisoner, who is held for trial on the charge of taking $60,000 worth of securities belonging to his sister, Mrs. Christina Nold, rendered a special finding, the substance of which was that Hoen is neither sane nor insane. He will have a preliminary hearing in police court Saturday.

The police say he has squandered about $80,000 of his sister's fortune in a few years, besides stealing the $60,000.

When Mrs. Nold was asked about this, she said: "He did squander more than $50,000 of my money, but he is not mentally responsible."

When the case was called Attorney Edward Gates, for Mrs. Nold, asked for a continuance to give time for the insanity commission to act. Judge Whallon remanded Hoen to jail under $5,000 bond.

In the meantime Mrs. Nold will be summoned to testify why she should not pay taxes on the large fortune hidden away in the safety deposit box in Fletcher's National bank, a part of which Hoen stole when he fled to Cincinnati and Wheeling.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

TO COLLECT MILE OF PENNIES.

Women Adopt Unusual Plan to Pay Off a Big Church Debt.

La Porte, Ind.—There is a debt resting on the First Christian church, of which Rev. Marion H. Garrard is pastor. The Ladies' Aid society of the church has decided to lift the burden, and they will adopt an unusual method of accomplishing the desired end.

They will collect a mile of pennies. Each member of the church will be supplied with a narrow strip one foot in length. On one side of the strip will be printed the financial plan. The other side will be divided into spaces large enough to hold a penny each, 16 to each strip. The coin side of the paper will be coated with an adhesive preparation to hold the pennies.

It is calculated that when a mile of pennies is received the sum of $844.88 will have been collected, and this will enable the women of the church to pay the debt.

Tells on Yankee Nimrods.

London.—The British government has been advised that arrangements are being made in America by large bodies of sportsmen for a visit to East Africa, presumably in quest of game. By direction of his government the British ambassador has directed the attention of the department of state to this matter and has furnished the information that, with a view to protecting game from extermination, everyone must conform to certain strict regulations which are in force in the protectorates of British East Africa and of Uganda. Under these regulations it is necessary to obtain a sportsman's license, which costs about $250 for each protectorate, and no more than 500 such licenses can be issued in any one year.

MORE COCOA IS USED

TASTE OF AMERICAN PEOPLE EVIDENTLY CHANGING.

Big Increase in Value of Imported Product While Coffee and Tea Show a Decline—Figures Prepared by Government.

Washington. — Cocoa importations into the United States are now averaging more than $1,000,000 a month, against an average of $25,000 per month a decade ago. Meantime importations of both coffee and tea show a decline, especially during the last two years. Whether the taste of the people of the United States in the use of this class of the requirements of the table is actually changing can perhaps scarcely be determined by the record of a single year or brief term of years; but it is at least an interesting fact that the value of cocoa imported into the United States has more than quadrupled in the last decade, while that of coffee has actually decreased during that time, and that of tea increased about ten per cent. In quantity, however, the change has been less strongly marked.

The figures of the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor show that the quantity of cocoa imported in the eight months ending with February, 1907, is about three times as much as that of the corresponding months of 1897, a decade ago; that the quantity of coffee imported in the same eight months is more than one-third greater than that for the corresponding months of of 1897, and that the quantity of tea imported during the same period is about 11 per cent less than in the corresponding months of 1897. Thus cocoa importations have increased practically 200 per cent, those of coffee 39 per cent, while those of tea have decreased 14 per cent during the decade.

The total quantity of cocoa imported in the crude state in the eight months ending with February, 1907, is 61,299,427 pounds, valued at $8,344,426, against 20,730,059 pounds, valued at $1,930,831 in the corresponding months of 1897. The total quantity of coffee imported in the eight months of the fiscal year 1907 is 647,206,151 pounds, valued at $51,869,152, against 466,204,372 pounds, valued at $53,332,608 in the eight months of 1897; and the quantity of tea imported in the eight months of 1907 is 72,475,440, valued at $11,606,058, against 81,220,822 pounds, valued at $10,247,506 in the corresponding months of 1897.

The average valuation of the cocoa imported in the eight months ending with February, 1907, is 13.6 cents per pound, against 9.3 cents in the corresponding period of 1897; that of tea, 16 cents, against 12.6 cents a decade ago, while coffee shows a fall, averaging eight cents per pound in the eight months of 1907 against 11.4 cents in the corresponding months of 1897.

It is only during the last decade that cocoa has formed any considerable part in the importation of articles of this character for the table. The value of cocoa imported in the crude state in 1887 was but about $1,500,000. By 1897, a decade later, it amounted to a little less than $3,000,000. In 1907 the total will probably exceed $12,000,000 for the full fiscal year, since the average for the eight months, for which a record is already made, is above $1,000,000 per month, and in the single month of February the total importation was $1,250,000. These figures do not include prepared or manufactured cocoa, of which the importations are comparatively small, amounting to less than $500,000 annually.

A very large proportion of the cocoa imported is drawn from American countries. Of the 61,000,000 pounds imported in the eight months ending with February, 1907, over 15,000,000 pounds were from Brazil, over 13,000,000 from the British West Indies, more than 10,000,000 from the West India islands, about 9,000,000 from South American countries other than Brazil, while the remainder came chiefly from Europe, but was presumably shipped first from the South American countries to European ports and dealers and thence to the United States. Brazil seems to be gaining in its contribution to both the cocoa and coffee consumption of the United States. A decade ago Brazil supplied but 17 per cent of the cocoa imported into the United States, while in 1907 she supplied about 25 per cent. Of the coffee imported in 1897 Brazill supplied 76 per cent and in 1907 83 per cent, these figures in all cases for the eight months ending with February.

In tea importations the decade also shows a marked change in the source of supply. In 1897 China supplied 55 per cent of the tea imported; in 1907 but 33 per cent. Japan, which in 1897 supplied 37 per cent of the total supplied in 1907 practically 50 per cent. The importations of tea from the United Kingdom and the East Indies combined, which may probably be considered as representing the East Indian tea imports, formed in 1897 about six per cent of the total and in 1907 about 14 per cent of the total imports of this article.

HAD PLAYED GAME BEFORE.

Little Clarence and Gwendoline Astonished Whist Club.

The Friday afternoon whist club had assembled at the home of one of its leading spirits when it was discovered that two members were absent, and therefore there were two hands short. The ladies were in a quandary till the hostess announced that her two children—Clarence, aged 11, and Gwendoline, aged 13—had picked up a little knowledge of the game from watching their elders.

She suggested that as it wouldn't do to call the game off after so many had taken the trouble to come, and as she could think of no other way to get two substitute hands, the two children would at least help to fill out the tables—that is, if everyone was perfectly agreeable.

"Just the thing!" declared all the ladies in chorus. The hostess was urged to bring them in at once, everyone would be just delighted.

Clarence and Gwendoline were duly summoned and introduced. They took their seats modestly, the ladies promised to assist them on knotty points, and the game commenced.

There were two prizes offered and both were of considerable value. Every woman present made up her mind to have one of those prizes at any cost. The game was entered into with abandon and no quarter was shown to anyone.

So far from needing any assistance Clarence and Gwendoline seemed to hold their own pretty well. In fact, they seemed so perfectly at home that when in the stress of excitement a member failed to adhere strictly to the rules Clarence would call attention to the error gravely and Gwendoline with ladylike dignity. The upshot of the game was that when the afternoon was over and the final count was made Gwendoline and Clarence were in the possession of both prizes.

The ladies took leave of their hostess in a body with profuse thanks for the pleasant afternoon, all declaring they had had just the loveliest time, and she had been so sweet to them all, they really must thank her again.

But as the door closed after the last smile and goodby, there was an ominous silence in the ranks of the Friday afternoon whist club.

"How nice to have children who can play whist so well," said one lady sweetly, with a small gleam in her eye.

"Isn't it?" agreed another. "It must must be so nice to be able to buy lovely prizes and then keep them in the family!"

And there was scarcely any sarcasm in her voice at all.

Will Be Built So as to Traverse Both Land and Water.

New York.—Admiral B. S. Osbon, secretary of the Arctic club, is authority for a statement that six automobiles are being built here and abroad for individual "dashes" to the north pole. Two of the machines are intended for Dr. Frederick Cooke of Brooklyn and a third is for Anthony Fiala, the leader of the Zeigler expedition. Admiral Osbon said he was not at liberty to tell for whom the other three automobiles were planned, but he said that they were intended for three distinct expeditions. Admiral Osbon said that the automobiles were either copied after or an improvement on an automobile built by a letter carrier in Alaska.

"He has a route covering hundreds of miles near the arctic regions," Admiral Osbon is quoted as saying, "and he navigates immense bodies of water with his machine, for it is a water traveler as well as an ice trotter. The revolving gear which turns the rear wheels while the machine is on solid ice or land, is fitted with blades which drop down and propel the 'craft' when open water is encountered.

LAND SINKS IN NEBRASKA.

Strong Odor of Oil Comes From the Ground.

Gross, Neb. —Five acres of land west of this city have sunk fully two feet in the past few weeks.

The ground affected is on the farm of Mr. Littig, two and one-half miles from the city, and a strong odor of oil is rising from the ground.

Some of the residents are of the opinion that this country rests on a newly forming volcano, while others believe that the disturbed farm rests over a vast subterranean lake of oil.

It is asserted by some of the citizens that they have heard the distinct laving of waves as they have washed against hidden shores in the depth of the earth.

The odor of oil is very pronounced, and there is also a strong aroma of brimstone.

Some of the more superstitious have lost all interest in coal oil and are spending their time in prayer.

160 acres of rich, rolling land within four miles of Lamar, for $4,500

Will take $1,700 cash, balance on long time.

Nearly all the land has been in cultivation, but is now principally in tame grass. There are two houses on the place, one in good repair with five rooms, the other fair with three rooms.

Barn is in good condition and has room for six head of horses, corn crib and hay mow.

Has a fine orchard and some small fruit.

The farm is fenced with hedge and barbed wire, and fencing is all in good shape.

The land is rolling, no timber except some shade trees in the pasture, which consists of 20 acres in tame and wild grass and adjoins the barn lot. There is a good well at the barn which never fails and a good cistern at the house, with pumps in both.

Twenty or thirty acres is underlaid with a fourteen-inch vein of coal which is found from four to seven or eight feet below the surface. Coal is good—black and red mixed. Farm is on the main road to Lamar, ½ mile from school house and in good neighborhood, and on two telephone lines. Land adjoining this place is selling at from $40 to $55 an acre, and the only reason the above offer is made is to consumate another trade.

A Radical Model

THIS is the sort of suit that young men, who strive to go a step beyond the style limitations set by their more conservative elders, will appreciate.

The long, low-opening lapels, disclosing the waistcoat, the slanting pocket flaps, the sleeve cuffs, and the closing with but two buttons, are all distinctive features of this model.

It is typical of the New York fashion of the hour, and has just come from the tailor shops of Alfred Benjamin & Co.—a block from Broadway—a minutes's walk from Fifth Avenue.

Local Option Has Been Upheld in Howell County.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 7.—Through the denial of a writ of prohibition against Judge W. N. Evans, of the Howell county circuit court, the supreme court in chambers yesterday virtually affirmed the legality of the local option election recently held in Howell county and the city of West Plains.

G. W. Galloway and H. P. Jones applied for a writ of prohibition against Judge Evans to set aside an injunction he granted May 28, restraining them from bringing action to compell the county court of Howell county to grant them a dramshop license to keep a saloon in West Plains. The county court refused to grant the petition because local option had been adopted in the county and city.

TOKIO PAPER TALKS OF AN "APPEAL TO THE LAST MEASURE."

INDIGNATION IT AT HIGH STAGE

Frisco Incident Denounced as "Outrage" and Indemnity is Expected—What the "Hochi" Has to Say.

Tokio, June 7.—The Hochi, who is supporting Count Okuma in his position on the American question, says:

"The San Francisco outrages are worse than the murder of a missionary in China, which resulted in the occupation of Kiao-Chow.

"Who would blame an appeal to the last measure if an impotency to protect treaty rights is proved?

"We hope, however, that Ambassador Aoki will be firm enough to make the Washington government quickly take measure to mete justice to the Japanese."

The other leading papers here whose opinions are worth quoting are silent on the question of demanding an indemnity for the so-called bombarding of Japanese establishments in San Francisco. Reparation for damage inflicted and the punishment of the culprits is expected, and it is believed the government is taking proper steps in the matter.

Though the public here is irritated at the tardiness displayed in effecting a solution of the difficulty, opinion has not yet reached the stage of advocating an appeal to a hostile demonstration in any form.

It is true, however, that popular indignation has reached a degree never before witnessed in the history of Japan's relations with the United States.

It is thought by influential Japanese that the quicker the facts regarding the negotiations now in progress here and in Washington are published the better it will be for all concerned, as a stage has now been reached when it may prove dangerous to keep the people in suspense or ignorance of what is being done.

An experienced diplomat, who was a protege of Marquis Ito and is a prominent figure in national affairs, said to a representative of the Associated Press:

"America is the last country with which I expected complications with Japan. Traditional friendship of the two nations uniformly maintained by the government at Washington makes me almost hesitate to believe that an anti-Japanese sentiment exists in Uncle Sam's territory, though the unfortunate occurrences stand unassailable.

"But before forming a final judgment in the present instance it is absolutely necessary to bear in mind that in America the autonomy of the various states is jealously guarded, and the slightest infringement or interference by the national authorities is deeply resented. Consequently the federal government is in a most delicate position.

"Fortunately, the present chief executive of the United States is a wonderful personality. Judging by his speeches and writings, he must be called the incarnation of the principles of Bushido. There is no doubt that he is resolute enough to cut this Gordian knot.

"The Japanese cause, in the present instance, is right, throughout, beyond the shadow of a doubt. This is a fact impossible to escape the enlightened judgment of a personage like President Roosevelt.

"I confidently expect that justice will be meted out and the sooner his action in this matter is made known the better."

Resourceful Capital Newsboy.

"Verily, this is the era of roller skates in the national capital," remarked an old resident, "and the whirr of the wheels is in the air. Although I am not in it myself for physical reasons, I take pleasure in the evident enjoyment of those who are. The saying that there are queer things on skates is true. The other day I saw an enterprising newsboy put his skates to a novel use. He had a big bundle of papers to serve to customers at a distance from the office. The bundle was really too heavy for him to carry without great exertion. To meet that difficulty and save carfare he had in some ingenious manner fastened it to a pair of skates and was rolling it along the smooth pavements at a good pace. It was a labor-saving device sure enough, and showed that the youngster was capable of putting to practical use articles usually employed only for pleasure."

TEXANS RAISE PECANS

NUT-GROWING INDUSTRY SPREADING IN STATE.

Value of Product Proved by Late Governor Hogg—Northern Investors Enter Field and Begin Planting of Orchards.

Austin, Tex.—Texas has at last come to a realization of the pecan's importance as a revenue producer, and the tree that once fell indiscriminately before the thoughtless woodman's axe is now carefully protected.

More than $2,000,000 worth of these unimportant looking little nuts were shipped out of Texas during the year 1906, and there now are nurserymen in Texas who devote themselves exclusively to pecan propagation.

Texas is the chief pecan state of the union, although the tree flourishes in many other southern states, even as far north as the southern part of Indiana and the Egypt district of Illinois, and the culture is spreading year by year.

There was a time not so very long ago when all pecan trees were of the wild variety, but the enterprising nurseryman has brought about a marked improvement, and statistics now show that Texas has 358,955 artificially planted trees, while the number of wild ones in bearing condition is estimated at nearly a million.

The late Gov. James S. Hogg, of Texas, was among the first to appreciate the commercial value of the pecan, and on his plantation near the historic old town of Columbia there stands a large and select pecan grove as a monument to his planting.

It is also a matter of official record in Texas that in his dying moments, Gov. Hogg directed his law partner, Frank Jones, of Houston, to see that his funeral was marked by simplicity, and that his son, William, and his daughter, Miss Ima, be requested to plant as early as possible a pecan tree at the head of his grave and another at the foot, and that when these trees reach a bearing state their product be distributed so far as they will go among the plain people of Texas to be used as seed in spreading pecan culture.

It is the rule rather than the exception for an ordinary pecan tree to bear from three to five barrels of nuts, hence it can be calculated at a glance that in the course of time, an immense quantity of pecan forestry will result from the two trees that stand as sentinels over Gov. Hogg's grave in the Austin cemetery.

As soon as practicable after the funeral the trees of the most improved variety obtainable, were planted in accordance with the dying governor's request, and their growth thus far has been entirely satisfactory.

Nuts grown from wild pecan trees sell for about five cents per pound, while the cultivated nut brings from 20 cents to 50 cents per pound. The trees are long-lived, and it is not unusual for a ten or 12-year old tree to produce a crop worth from $60 to $100. The average, however, is somewhat below that figure, but 25 or 30 trees find ample room upon an acre of ground, thus making pecan raising a highly profitable industry.

Pecan growing has now reached the dignity of classification as a horticultural pursuit, and many northern investors, appreciating the great profit that is possible, are forming syndicates to plant and operate large commercial orchards.

Since the nurseryman has taken hold of the pecan, numerous varieties are springing up, each vying with the other in the matter of early production. The best that has ever yet been reached is a tree warranted to bear fruit in four years from date of planting, while others of the improved varieties require all the way from five to seven years. The wild tree is much slower.

Hardiness is one of the chief characteristics of the pecan tree. It belongs to the hickory family, and grows to a large size. Almost any kind of soil satisfies the pecan sapling, no difference whether it be along the river or along the high plains. Its roots penetrate deep into the ground, and it thus at once becomes able to withstand the severest drought. Owing to its size and spreading branches, the pecan tree serves well for shade, and in many of the towns and cities of Texas, pecans are being planted for the dual purpose of ornament and usefulness.

Experts who have indulged in various tests, assert that the pecan possesses a nutritive value of great merit, and is more easily digestible than most of nuts.

IMMIGRATION IN 1906.

Highest Total in Eleven Years Through Atlantic and Gulf Ports.

Chicago.—The tide of immigration through the Atlantic and gulf ports reached the highest total in eleven years in 1906, according to the statistics compiled by the railroad agents, which show also that more than 500,000 immigrants have settled in the Mississippi river valley states and west during the last six years.

The reports for the first two months of 1907 show a decrease of 5,000 as compared with the corresponding months of 1905, but telegraph reports just received by the Western Passenger association, up to and including April 5, 1907, show the volume of immigrant travel to have been enormous during the month of March and the first week in April, overcoming the loss of 5,000 in the first two months and showing an increase of 22,000 over a corresponding period of 1906.

More than 80 per cent of the immigration was for states west of Chicago. In the northwest, Minnesota and Wisconsin got the bulk of the new population, as nearly all the Scandinavians were destined to those states. The northern peninsula of Michigan also received a good share. Those arriving through the gulf ports were mainly from the Mediterranean countries, and the greater portion were destined to the southern portion of Texas along the new line to Brownsville.

WAY TO SPEND PUBLIC MONEY.

Cornell Professor Writes on Work of Agricultural Commission.

Washington.—The scope of the work of the commission recently appointed to inquire into and report as to the policy that should prevail in the expenditure of public moneys provided for scientific experimentation and research in the interest of agriculture, is discussed in a letter from L. H. Bailey, of Cornell University to President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford university, chairman of the commission. Mr. Bailey is president of the Association of Agricultural colleges and Experiment Stations which the commission represents.

President Bailey in his letter says: "There needs to be a correlating of subjects and methods; an understanding of the most effective distribution of investigation efforts among the different state and national institutions; consideration of the influence exerted in reasearch in agriculture by current methods of appropriations by legislatures; discussion of what constitutes research; the relation of this research to the teaching and publicity functions of the institutions, and, in general, such a directing of experiment and research in the interest of agriculture as shall economize the work, render it more effective and integrate it with wise policies in the interest of the public welfare."

"Next day Simpkins concluded he had better not stay around any longer, for he had seen several persons who knew him. He thought it might go hard with me if I was caught in his company. He said I had better remain and finish the job alone. This was some time in November, 1905.

"Simpkins all this time was a member of the Western Federation of Miners. After he went away I tried to catch Gov. Steunenberg downtown some night, so I could slip out and plant the bomb for him near his home. He was out of the city a large part of the time. Once I came to Boise, but could not find him here. I returned to Caldwell and stopped at the Saratoga hotel, carrying the bomb in my grip. I finally located Gov. Steunenberg Christmas night, 1905, and, taking the sawed-off pump shotgun Pettibone had given me, I went out to his house. I heard the bomb which destroyed Gov. Steunenberg."

Orchard told of receiving a letter while under arrest.

"Are you acquainted with the handwriting of George A. Pettibone?" asked Attorney Hawley.

"I am; yes, sir."

"State whether the letter you received in jail, and which you destroyed, was in the handwriting of George A. Pettibone."

The defense objected to this, saying it was not the proper way to identify handwriting, and gave absolutely no opportunity for controversion. The objection was overruled.

"I believe it was in the handwriting of George A. Pettibone," said Orchard.

The attorneys for the defense moved to strike out the answer on the ground that it was merely a belief. Judge Wood asked the witness if the letter was written by Pettibone.

"To the best of my belief it was," declared Orchard.

"The motion to strike out overruled," said Judge Wood.

Taking the witness back to his experiences in Colorado, Mr. Hawley asked the witness if Haywood had ever said anything to him with reference to the death of Arthur Collins, superintendent of the Smuggler Union mine in Tellurile.

"Haywood told me," said Orchard, "that he had sent Steve Adams and Ed Winster to California to kill Fred Bradley and the superintendent of the mine, whose name I don't remember. He said they had got in jail and they had to send them quite a sum of money.'

Later, Orchard said, Haywood had also told him he had sent Adams to Pocatello, Idaho to throw some "Pettibone dope" or Grecian fire into a train of nonunion miners that was expected to pass through there.

Cross-Examination Begins.

Orchard's story was done. "You may cross-examine," said Mr. Hawley, turning to Attorney Richardson of the defense. The latter began without a moment's hesitation.

"You were born in Canada, you say?"

"Yes, sir," replied Orchard, who had shifted his position quickly to face what was expected to be a long ordeal.

Mr. Richardson first wanted to know all the geography of Northumberland county, Ontario, where Orchard was born. The witness supplied the information unhesitatingly.

"Are your father and mother living?" asked the attorney.

"No, sir—they are both dead."

Orchard said he had one brother and xis sisters. He said some lived in Canada and some in New York state. Orchard gave the names of his sisters as Clara, Florence, Maggie Mabel and Edith. All were married except Edith, he said, but he could remember the married name of only one—Maggie Frazer, who lives near Brighton, Ontario. His brother's name is Joseph Horsley and lives at Wooler, Ontario. Orchard said he married in 1888 and his wife is still alive. He has heard from her since his arrest.

Orchard said he had one child. He said he once lived in Detroit, but denied having ever been in Utica, N. Y.

"You left one wife in Canada?"

"Yes."

"And you have another wife in Colorado?"

"Yes."

"You are a bigamist, then?"

"I don't know what you call it."

"You were married twice and have two wives?"

"Yes."

Orchard said he ran away from Canada with another man's wife, going to Nelson, B. C. The woman's name was Hattie Simpson.

Orchard went into the restaurant business for a while. He then moved to Pilot Bay, B. C., and ran a boarding house.

"You went by the name of Little, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

Orchard said Mrs. Simpson went back home from Pilot Bay and he went to Spokane.

"Which one got [illegible] of the other first?" demanded [illegible]rdson.

"Neither," [illegible] Orchard, amid laughter.

"Did you desert her?"

"No; she went back home."

In Spokane Orchard said he adopted the name of Harry Orchard.

From Spokane Orchard went to Wallace, Idaho, where he acquired a one-sixteenth interest in the Hercules mine, now largely owned by Ed Boyce, the former president of the Western Federation of Miners. Boyce is reputed many times a millionaire.

Orchard said he sold out his interest in the mine in 1897 and bought a wood yard in Burke, Idaho.

Orchard said he had borrowed some money on his mining stock before selling. Orchard said he remained in the mining country until 1899.

"You didn't go away on the ocean, to the Philippines or Honolulu?"

"No, sir"

"But you told Pettibone you made such a trip on a transport, didn't you?"

"I may have; I won't say positively that I did."

"Were you ever employed to watch and report things in the mining country?"

"No, sir."

"Did you tell Pettibone about burning a cheese factory and collecting the insurance?"

"Yes."

"And that you had stolen the cheese and sold it prior to the fire?"

"Yes."

"And that you had an altercation with your brother near Utica, N. Y., and had pitchforked him?"

"Yes."

"Hold on just a moment," said Senator Borah for the prosecution. "Mr. Orchard, please tell us the date of this conversation with Pettibone, so we can connect it with him."

The attorneys for the defense were silent, evidently taken aback by the sudden move.

"It was in 1904," said Orchard.

Orchard said he had never, as a matter of fact, had any trouble before leaving Canada, and never had been in or near Utica, N. Y.

Court here adjourned.

Mr. Muckey Was Fined.

S. D. Muckey pleaded guilty to drunkenness in police court today and was fined $5, which he paid. The case of L. T. Parks, for larceny, was not brought up today.

HAS SIGNATURE OF MURILLO.

Duplicate Engraving of Famous Picture Owned by Denver Woman.

Denver.—Mrs. Samuel Guy, of 733 South Ninth street, has in her possession a steel engraving more than two hundred years old, from which she expects to realize a neat fortune. This ancient work of art is entitled "The Virtue of Holy Charity," and is a duplicate engraving of Murillo's famous painting.

The engraving was made in the year 1700, and was presented to Pope Clement XI., by the artist himself. It is the only engraving ever made of the painting, and two centuries ago was considered a thing almost sacred. In an inscription below the picture the great Italian artist dedicates the engraving to Pope Clement and asks the pontiff's blessing.

There is a pretty little story in the way in which it came to Mrs. Guy. Fifteen years ago her mother, Mrs. Robbie, was visiting her old home in Scotland. Just before she left her native town to return to the United States her brother, a man of advanced age, brought to her a package.

On examining it she found the engraving. Mrs. Robbie was not impressed with either the value or beauty of the picture, and told her brother she did not believe she cared to take up trunk room with a dirty old representation of a painting. Her brother insisted, however, that she should keep the engraving, and told her that years before it had been presented to him by a wealthy man for whom he had once performed some important duty. Mrs. Robbie, after hearing this explanation, packed up the engraving and brought it with her to America, but never gave the matter much thought.

"HOME" GIRLS IN A RIOT

Chillicothe, Mo., Police Bind and Gag the Principals.

Chillicothe, Mo., June 7.—A riot occurred at the state industrial home for girls here yesterday.

About forty of the inmates participated. The girls became unruly and refused to do the bidding of the officers, and the disturbance aroused the neighbors.

The officers of the institution sent a riot call to police headquarters. The chief of police and a detail of officers and the sheriff responded, and were kept busy several hours before the inmates were subdued.

The leaders, who insisted by shouts on keeping up the trouble, were gagged and locked up, but only after fierce resistance by the girls.

Several officers were stationed at the home all day. The cause of the riot is a mystery.

For first class carriage painting and trimming, see E. G. Mosberg; the same place, 314 West Second street.

WED TO A CHINAMAN

White Girl in St. Louis Was Truly Easily Pleased.

St. Louis, June 7.—Miss Birdie Callaway, a dark-eyed girl of 18, renounced her family and home to wed a Chinaman, whose English vocabulary is limited to a dozen words.

They were married in East St. Louis Wednesday afternoon and are living in the rear of 713 Walnut street, in Hop alley.

Joe Huy, formerly proprietor of a laundry at 904 Market street, slim, queueless and ever-smiling, is the Chinaman who has won this girl's affections.

She declares that she believes she will be happier with him than with a white husband, because other girls she has known to marry Chinamen are happy.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

Martin, of Kansas City, a promoter of interurban lines, has filed twenty-one contracts by which property owners south of the city agree under certain conditions to grant leasements to the Interstate Railway company, which contemplates the building of an interurban line between St. Joseph and Kansas City by way of Dearborn and Liberty.

All the contracts are in the nature of options, and most of them expire late in July.

LIVING COSTS MORE

Bread Advances From Four to Five Cents a Pound.

Paris, June 6.—The increase in bread from four to five cents per pound, due to the rise in the price of wheat, is already general in Paris and extending to the interior cities.

The newspapers complain that the increase in the cost of living is not confined to bread, but affects all commodities, and they publish figures showing that there has been an average increase of 20 per cent since 1900.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

WHY NOT CURE IT?

DO YOU HAVE RHEUMATISM EVERY YEAR?

If You Do You Are Doctoring the Symptoms Only—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure the Disease.

There are almost as many ways of treating rheumatism as there are doctors.

Most of these treatments are directed at the symptoms and are considered successful if they relieve the pain and stiffness. But the blood has not been purified and the rheumatism is sure to return, especially after a season of exposure to cold and dampness. The patient goes through this experience year after year and begins to think that permanent relief is impossible.

The only way to treat rheumatism is through the blood. This is the method of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they not only cleanse the blood of the impurities which cause the disease but build up and restore the broken-down system.

Mr. John Riley of Cazenovia, N. Y., says: "In my work as a blacksmith, I am exposed a great deal to changes of temperature. Some time ago I noticed that my health was breaking down. The symptoms were general physical weakness, loss of appetite and nervousness.

"It was evident that my blood was weak and impure. I became no better as time went on and finally this condition of my blood, with the constant exposure, brought on rheumatism. It was of the inflammatory kind and was very painful in the joints, especially of the feet and wrists. Many days I could hardly walk and suffered intense pain. I took to my bed several times for a day or so and once for six weeks.

"A fellow blacksmith advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and as I had gained no help from other treatments, I decided to give them a trial. Within a reasonable time I noticed that I was getting better and in a few weeks I was cured. That the cure is permanent is shown by my not having lost a day at my trade since then. I can truthfully say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills put me on my feet again."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured anæmia, after-effects of the grip and fevers, general debility and sick headaches, dizziness, nervous prostration, even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Nashville, Tenn., June 7.—Herbert W. Estes, 25 years old, a mail clerk whose home is at Martin, Tenn., was arrested in this city yesterday by six postoffice inspectors, who followed him here from St. Louis.

The letter that proved Estes' guilt contained $8 in bills, which was sent to Sophia Wilson, of Hopkinsville, Ky., by Inspector R. M. C. Hosford. On arriving at its destination the letter did not contain the money and showed that it had been opened with a blue pencil.

THE "REFORM" MAYOR

Of Athens Is Accused of Riotous Living by His Wife.

Athens, Ohio, June 7.—The announcement of the divorce proceedings brought by his wife against Mayor Gilbert E. Day has created quite a sensation here.

His honor has been regarded as a reform mayor. Mrs. Day, in her petition, states that her husband has been guilty of gross neglect for three years, spending most of his nights away from home in company of women in houses of ill repute, in gambling, drinking, riotous living and debauchery.

Mayor Day claims he is not guilty, and will stand suit, explaining his wife's actions on the ground that she was "sore" because he did not work in the interest of the "drys" at the recent local option election.

A Great Roast!

Over a ton of Arbuckles' Ariosa Coffee is roasted at a time, in a large revolving cylinder, which drops the coffee through heat again and again until each bean is uniformly roasted.

No other coffee is in sufficient demand to afford such scientific and perfect preparation.

The sales of Arbuckles' Ariosa Coffee exceed the sales of all other packaged coffees combined, and this scientific roasting, which no other coffee can afford, by its very magnitude, reduces our cost to a minimum, and enables us, with our other advantages, to give better value in Arbuckles' Ariosa Coffee than is possible for any one else.

Nine Children Who Are Being Hastened to Chicago.

Columbus, Ohio, June 7.—The east side of this city has been thrown into intense excitement since L. E. Harper, the state bacterioligist, has announced that the dog that terrorized that section a few days ago was a victim of rabies.

The others whose parents are arranging for the trip are George Steinmetz, 5; Virgil Rich, 10; Luther Evans, 12; David Davis, 2, and Edward Quinn, 2.

TO THE E. W. ROSE MEDICINE CO., St. Louis, Mo.

GENTLEMEN—I contracted in the army, about 42 years ago, a very bad case of eczema of the face. During all of which time I have tried every known remedy and a number of physicians. I had doctored until I had given up all hope of ever being cured. Your "Zemo" was recommended to me and I have been using the same a short time and am happy to say that its results have been marvelous from the beginning. From the start it gave me immediate relief, stopped the itching and burning and all symptoms of the disease disappeared. Judging from my case, I consider your remedy a specific for eczema worth its weight in gold.

I heartily recommend its use by any and all who may be so unfortunate as to have this dreaded disease. I am, Respectfully yours,

JOHN I. CAPEL.

MURDER AFTER MURDER

ORCHARD, WITNESS AGAINST HAYWOOD, CONTINUES HIS TERRIBLE STORY.

BOMBS PLANTED EVERYWHERE

Some of the Attempts Failed and Others Were Successful Only in Killing Innocent Men—List of Victims Was Long.

Boise, Idaho, June 6.—When the Haywood trial opened this morning Harry Orchard resumed the stand and continued his story. He began by giving the names of several persons he met in San Francisco when he went there to assassinate Fred Bradley, formerly manager of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mines in the Coeur d'Alene district. He said that he was k[illegible] part of the time while in San [illegible]cisco by the name of Barry Le[illegible].

From California Orchard returned to Denver, wearing the uniform of a soldier. He said he immediately called Pettibone over the telephone.

"Pettibone asked me how Bradley was," continued Orchard. "I told him Bradley was still alive when I left San Francisco, but it was reported he would lose his eyesight and probably be deaf for the rest of his life. Pettibone then said that was better than if I had killed him outright, as now Bradley would be a living example to others."

The witness then said he had asked for money and received $125 from Pettibone, with the assurance that he could get more when he wanted it.

The witness said that Haywood next asked him to to "go to work on Judge Gabbert," of the supreme court of Colorado.

"He said Gabbert," Orchard went on, "had been rendering decisions against Moyer, whom we were trying to get out of Telluride jail on a writ of habeas corpus. I went to Gabbert's house the following Sunday night with Steve Adams and a shotgun, but we did not see the judge.

"Haywood also wanted us to try again at Governor Peabody, saying he did not care how we got rid of him. At this time it seemed that Peabody was about to be elected for another term.

"Adams, Billy Ackerman and I set to work and made a bomb. We put it under the sidewalk at Thirteenth street and Grand avenue, Denver, as the governor walked along there every morning."

Orchard said, however, that he did not get an opportunity to set the bomb off. He reported to Pettibone that he had failed and Pettibone said it was too bad. Orchard, continuing, said:

"After that we tried to shoot Peabody, but not getting an opportunity, never succeeded. We also tried to shoot Frank Hearne, of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. Haywood had said that Hearne was trying to fix the legislature against us and would be a good man to get out of the way. He also said that Dave Moffatt, president of the First National bank, was another. He said he was convinced that Moffatt was behind the people who were fighting the Western Federation of Miners.

Adams and Orchard watched Moffett's house with a gun, but could accomplish nothing.

"We were also told to get after Judge Goddard, who, Haywood said, was instrumental in defeating the eight hour bill."

At this point a bomb which was buried by Orchard at Canon City for the purpose of killing Governor Peabody was produced in court and identified by Orchard.

Continuing his testimony the witness said:

"Peabody went to live at Canyon City, and Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone all three told me to keep after him. It was arranged that I should become a life insurance solicitor. I got a recommendation for that position with one of the big agencies in Denver from Mr. Hawkins, attorney and partner of E. F. Richardson, one of the attorneys now representing Haywood, and from J. C. Sullivan, president of the State Federation of Labor."

Pettibone, Orchard declared, gave him $100 before he returned to Canon City with the bomb.

Later Pettibone told him he had better not try it on Peabody at that time.

"He said, however, he wanted some thing pulled off before the convention—that we must have something to show for the money we'd spent.

"Pettibone and I then prepared the bomb for Judge Gabbert."

Orchard said that Pettibone and he planted a bomb in a vacant lot when Judge Gabbert crossed on his way home. The first attempt failed and Pettibone left for Salt Lake to attend the convention of the Western Federation of Miners, leaving Orchard to attend to Gabbert. Orchard said he then set another bomb for Gabbert, but a man named Wally was killed when it exploded, while Gabbert passed it safely.

Orchard then said that the next man selected for attack was Sherman Bell, former adjutant general of Colorado, but Mercer stopped it, saying that he did not want to pull

FEDERATION OF LABOR

WHAT WAS DONE AT THE REGULAR BUSINESS MEETING LAST NIGHT.

LETTER OF PRESIDENT GOMPERS

Cannot Attend State Meeting Here This Fall—The Action of the Second Regiment Band Was Endorsed.

At the regular meeting of the Sedalia Federation of Labor, held last night, considerable routine business was disposed of, besides considering and acting upon labor matters of a general character.

The publication committee reported that it was carrying out the instructions of the Federation in supplying the press with prepared copies of the proceedings of the Federation, but found it impossible to prepare the same for publication in a morning paper, hence the reports had appeared only in the afternoon paper. The action of the committee was approved.

A letter was read from President Gompers which was in reply to an invitation to deliver an address in Sedalia during the time of the convention of the Missouri State Federation of Labor, which meets in Sedalit during the week beginning Sept. 16.

President Gompers' stated that owing to a meeting of the executive council of the A. F. of L. at that time it would be impossible for him to accept the invitation, but he hoped that circumstances would so shape themselves that at some future time he could avail himself of an opportunity of meeting and greeting the organized workers in Sedalia.

The action of Musicians union No. 22 (Second Regiment band), of refusing to march in the Knights Templar parade on account of having a non-union musician in line, was indorsed by the Federation,

The musicians submitted a lengthy statement of their side of the controversy with the Knights Templar, or those having charge of the arrangements.

From the statement submitted it was shown that the band boys had made every effort in advance to prevent the unfortunate occurrence, and they claim that it was the obstinate attitude of certain persons in authority, and their deliberate attempt to humiliate the members of the Second Regiment band, and force them to violate one of the most sacred principles of trades unionism which compelled the musicians to take the stand they did.

The Federation last night elected the following delegates to act as a provisional committee to outline a program for the forthcoming Labor Day celebration, and to report at the next meeting, when a general Labor Day committee will be selected, which will have entire charge of all arrangements: T. Arnison, J. D. Meyer, W. B. Morgan, Henry Murphy and Jack Mullally.

The question of discontinuing the sale of intoxicating liquors on the grounds where the Labor Day celebration will be held will be discussed at some length, and it was the general opinion that it should be discontinued.

In the future the "lid" may be put on the "foaming liquid" at Labor Day celebrations by organized labor in Sedalia.

BLOW TO LOW FARES

Sweeping Decision in Favor of Street Railway.

Columbus, Ohio, June 5.—The supreme court in a decision in the suit of the city of Cleveland against William Reynolds, gave a great victory for the Cleveland Consolidated Railways company and a blow at low fares.

The case was brought in the circuit court of Cuyahoga county and involved the validity of the street car franchises on Erie and Central avenue.

The circuit court upheld the validity of the franchises of the Consolidated company and the supreme court sustained the circuit court, thus invalidating the low fare franchise.

CUT IN A STREET FIGHT

W. GORDON KAPP, EDITOR OF THE BOONVILLE DEMOCRAT, THE VICTIM.

DR. P. L. HURT WAS HIS ASSAILANT

Governor Folk Is Said to Figure in the Cause That Led Up to the Trouble Between the Two Gentlemen.

Boonville, Mo., June 6.—Dr. P. L. Hurt, of this city, and W. Gordon Kapp, editor of the Missouri Democrat, got into a fight on the street here Tuesday night and Hurt cut Kapp with a knife, making a long gash in his left cheek.

The fight was the result of an article published in the Democrat in which the veracity of Dr. Hurt and Governor Folk appears to be called into question.

Dr. Hurt recently was appointed to the board of managers of the Missouri training school as special representative of Governor Folk, it was claimed.

In the meantime A. G. Blakey virtually had been appointed parole officer of the school. As soon as Dr. Hurt became a member of the board he raised objections to Blakey, saying he was objectionable to the governor because he fought Folk for the nomination. It was also claimed, either by Dr. Hurt or others, that Governor Folk had stated that Blakey should not have the place if he had to reorganize the board to prevent it.

Monday Mr. Blakey went to Jefferson City, called, it was said, by Governor Folk, and had an interview with him. The article in the Democrat stated that the governor denied having made the statement attributed to him by Dr. Hurt and others and said Blakey was satisfactory to him.

The latter accordingly returned to Boonville and reported for duty at the reform school.

It was reported here that Governor Folk had ordered that all republican employes at the training school be dismissed. This, the Democrat stated, was denied by him. It is said that Governor Folk will make a statement in regard to his own connection with the matter.

No arrests have been made, though it is said Kapp will file complaint against Hurt. Both have taken an active part in state politics.

He was taken to a hospital and later was placed in Missouri Pacific train No. 4, and passed through here last midnight en route home.

MINISTERS SING HYMNS

AS THEY PROCEED WITH BUILDING OF A CHURCH IN KANSAS CITY.

WOMEN SERVED LUNCH AT NOON

Intention is to Have the Edifice So Far Advanced That Services May Be Held There on Next Sabbath.

Kansas City, Mo., June 4.—Ten ministers of Christian churches in Kansas City and one evangelist began the work of building a frame church at Fourth and Wyoming streets yesterday. The structure is to be entirely built by ministerial labor and there will be enough of it up by Sunday for the first services—maybe.

The Roanoke Boulevard Christian church—that's what it is to be called—is to serve the purpose of a congregation in this district until funds enough are raised to build a more pretentious structure.

Nearly every Christian minister in Kansas City is helping in the work. They arrived at the site early yesterday, coats were discarded, overalls donned and work began in earnest. Not a man among them is an expert capenter, but each can drive a nail and saw a board. Besides, the work is being done in a systematic manner, as it is being directed by W. O. Holdman, a regular carpenter, who was employed to supervise.

Hymns were sung and church work discussed as the ministers labored. At noon women members of the Christian churches came to the scene of action and prepared a luncheon for the workers, after which the building operations were continued with renewed vigor.

"Of course, it will be quite a simple structure," said Rev. W. F. Richardson, pastor of the First Christian church; "but it will be the only church in Kansas City built entirely by ministers. It will be large enough to seat 300 or 400 persons, and we hope to have enough of it ready by Sunday to give services."

The following are the ministers who are taking part in the work: Rev. W. F. Richardson, First Christian church; Rev. L. F. Cupp, Hyde Park Christian church; Rev. W. Y. Donaldson, South Prospect Christian church; Rex Barclay Meador, assistant pastor of the First Christian church; Rev. J. L. Thompson, pastor Forest avenue Christian church; Rev. S. W. Way, pastor Central Christian church, west side; Rev. Frank L. Bowen, Jackson avenue Christian church; Rev. F. A. Abbott, state corresponding secretary of the Christian church; Rev. James Sharrot, evangelist.

Lay, of Warsaw, were married at high noon today at the home of the bride in Warsaw, by the Rev. Dudley M. Clagett, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian church of Sedalia, only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties being present.

To the esteemed couple the Democrat-Sentinel extends its heartiest congratulations, coupled with the wish that their cup of happiness may be ever filled to overflowing.

THE CLEANER SEDALIA.

The ordinance passed by the city council last night, if rigidly enforced, will close and keep closed every saloon in Sedalia on Sundays, and at such other times as the law prohibits the sale of intoxicating beverages.

It is understood that the better element of the saloon men were in favor of the new regulations, and that they are perfectly willing to abide by them, strictly and without subterfuge.

In consequence of this, it will be the duty of the police, constabulary, city and county attorneys, to see that they are given a "square deal," and that those in the business who still persist in selling, by hook or crook, who establish, up-stairs or basement, "joints," while their more law-abiding fellows close, shall be arrested and punished to the full limit. That some such tactics will be employed by a few is almost certain, but if those delegated with authority do their full duty they can not flourish long.

And while we are about it, let's go after those dives in the lower part of the city that need attention, more than any other evil that Sedalia ever has had or ever will have.

In one of them can be found more corruption and vice, more sin and destruction, than in all the law-abiding saloons in the entire city. They carry on their business openly, night and day, every night and every day, while on Sunday vice reigns supreme, sin and shame hold high carnival, and human beings exhaust themselves with orgies that rival the far-famed ones of ancient Pompeii.

Liquor and beer is sold without let or hindrance, and every law of God and man is violated wantonly, shamelessly, and with impunity. Now that we are cleaning up, don't let us forget these places, for if we do, all the closing of legalized saloons on the Sabbath will amount to nothing in the way of genuine reform.

AN APOLOGY IS DUE MR. LONG.

It seems to be impossible for the president to avoid collision of veracity between himself and other men. Where, however, a person shows contiued persistency in attacking the word and integrity of those about him, it is inevitable that in time he shall himself appear to disadvantage. That Mr. Roosevelt has placed himself in this unenviable light in his latest controversy—that with Dr. Long, the naturalist, will, we think, impress itsef upon all impartial observers. Mr. Roosevelt, it is true, is gifted and versatile. His knowledge of the world and what it contains, judging by the freedom of his criticisms upon all manner of subjects and topics, seems to be well nigh boundless. It appears to encompass the whole field of human endeavor and of material and spiritual phenomena. We know of no subject which has exercised the intelligence of man upon which he is not prepared to venture and instant opinion. But what he has acquired in breadth of view, we fear, has been largely at the cost of depth. His readiness to criticise, his inclination to yield to impulses, his proneness to go off half-cocked, are plainly symptoms of an exaggerated self-confidence and of superficial rather than of profound knowledge of things.

It is certain, in the nature of affairs, that some men know more about certain things than does Theodore Roosevelt, notwithstanding his prodigious learning and the fact that he is president.

Scientists who have spent a lifetime in study, research and investigation along certain lines can tell Mr. Roosevelt more about the subject of their particular line of inquiry than he dreamed existed. David Starr Jordan, for instance, could in a few hours impart to the president information concerning fish that would take him ten, twenty or thirty years to digest, and which he probably never would fully comprehend.

In placing the stigma of misrepresentation upon Dr. Long he runs counter to an expert who unquestionably can walk all around him in the knowledge of wild animals. He has investigated their habits from the close point of view tha can only be obtained by living among them and devoting years to observation. Is all this fund of knowledge, secured at great effort and preserved in books at much pains to be discredited and rendered worthless by the reckless assault of a man whose information of the animal kingdom has been derived chiefly from spending a day or two each year in the woods hunting bear? Most certainly not.

Dr. Long submits proof of the statements Mr. Roosevelt has called in question—something the latter can not possibly do in support of his contention. The president, it is all too clear, has spoken ill-advisedly. He has maligned the reputation of a fellow man hastily, and it would appear, without foundation.

The libel can only be removed by a frank and full confession of error, and such an apology as Dr. Long has with perfect right demanded.

THEY DESERVE PRAISE.

The action of many citizens in commending the county court for refusing a license to Will DeBold, because of violations of the Sunday law, was a deserved tribute to the honesty of purpose and devotion to duty of the gentlemen composing this tribunal' Not only in this instance, but in several others have they shown that they are not mere politicians and time-servers, performing their duties with an eye always to re-election, but, on the contrary, are men fully realizing that their oaths of office mean something, and therefore do not hesitate to follow the straight line of duty, no matter what the consequences may be to themselves personally.

With such a court in charge of affairs the public may rest assured that Pettis county will never suffer, either from neglect, incompetency or greed.

NAY, NAY, SAID THE GIRL

Thereupon the Case Against Her Betrayer Was Dismissed.

Richmond, Ky., June 1.—The case of the commonwealth against John Burton, charged with the betrayal of Miss Pearl Collins under promise of marriage, which was entered into Friday, ended today.

After the commonwealth had presented its side of the case the defendant took the stand and made an offer of marriage, Miss Collins spoke up from her position by Prosecuting Attorney Crutcher, refusing the offer, declaring that she would not marry under any circumstances. The court then ordered the prosecution dismissed.

Burton is one of the best-known young men in the county and belongs to a good family. Miss Collins is scarcely 21, and is a beautiful girl. She was prominent in society circles in the Waco neighborhood. She is a granddaughter of Rev. Josiah Collins, once the most prominent peacher in Kentucky.

A NURSE'S KINDNESS

To a Cancer-Stricken Millionaire Gets Her a $200,000 Bequest.

Bucyrus, Ohio, June 4.—Mrs. Charles Gillis, of this city, has fallen heir to nearly $200,000 because of a kindness done to a sick man.

She was formerly Miss Della Jordan, of this city. She married Charles Gillis, of this city, a professor at Ann Arbor. After the latter's death she took up nursing.

In this capacity she was in attendance on Charles W. Moore, a rich lumber man of Michigan. Mr. Moore died of cancer. In his will he left his estate to three relatives and Mrs. Gillis in equal parts.

A Thirty-Two Pound Catch.

Fred Lyons made the biggest catch of the season at Pertle Springs lake Monday afternoon, landing two German carp weighing 34 pounds, says the Warrensburg Star.

The fish were seen swimming near the bank in shallow water, and young Lyons jumped into the lake, and, after quite a scramble, caught the fish with his hands, without hook or gig.

The fish were almost as large as their captor and he had all he could do to persuade the monsters to leave the water.

STORIES REQUIRE SALT

REV. J. M. PHILPUTT REFERS TO CERTAIN THINGS IN THE BIBLE.

SAYS 'MYTHS' IN REPLY TO DIVINE

Calls Rockefeller-Endowed Chicago University "Hotbed of Infidelity" —Says Others Strayed From Proper Paths.

St. Louis, Mo., June 5.—"Dr. Gustavus A. Hoffman may try to make the world believe that he has firm faith in the tale of Jonah and the whale, while he is trying to get out of paying a debt, but he will get over it," was the reply last night of the Rev. Dr. J. M. Philputt to Dr. Hoffman's accusations of infidelism.

Dr. Philputt is pastor of the Union Avenue Christian church. Dr Hoffman was formerly in the Christian church ministry. Now he is president of the Maplewood bank, real estate promoter, living in Maplewood.

He is being sued by the Bible College of Missouri on his note for $5,000 and sets up in his reply that the subscription was contingent, that the faculty of the college have strayed from the doctrine upon which it was founded, and that it is in league with the University of Chicago in infidelity and destructive criticism.

The University of Chicago has been largely endowed by John D. Rockefeller.

Dr. Philputt was at his home, No. 5109 Fairmount avenue, when he answered his critic last night.

"Dr. Hoffman may seem to rely on the truth of the story of the creation and the myth of Adam and Eve, but when he comes to himself he will take all with a large grain of salt," said the pastor of Union Avenue church.

"The Bible must be taken in a modern sense, using science to guide the road Strip the myths of the heathen of old of their fantastic beauty, of the jingle-jangle bells, and on arriving at the core you will find a duplication of the different stories of the creation, the story of the flood, and the fable of Jonah and the whale found in the Scriptures, fitted up to meet the need of the inspired writers."

Dr. Philputt had no comment to make on Dr. Hoffman's retort, linking the Bible College of Missouri and the University of Chicago. The former is an institution of the Christian church; the latter of the Baptist.

Dr. Hoffman was at his home in Maplewood last night when he was asked if he had any comment to make on Dr. Philputt's counter. He referred to his petition in reply to the suit, and added:

"If I can believe that Christ, the son of God, died upon earth and ascended to heaven on the third day, why can't I believe that Jonah, thrown overboard by the terrified sailors, was in the hands of God, who lodged him safely in the stomach of a large fish, to be transported to shore; or the story of the flood, or creation, for is it harder to believe in them than in the ascension of Christ?

"To be a minister of the Christian church in the true sense, the Scriptures must be taken as the inspired word of God, and just so much as Dr. Philputt digresses from this belief, just so far is he away from being a Christian minister in the true sense. He is bordering on the Unitarian belief."

UPHOLSTERER'S TACK

In the Toledo Boy's Lung Will Have to Stay There

Toledo, Ohio, June 5—.Thirteen-year-old Louis Milutte, who lives on the river road near Walbridge Park, will probably carry with him through life an upholsterer's tack which he drew into his lungs four years ago, as recent efforts to extract the bit of metal have proved futile.

When 9 years old he drew the tack into his lungs, and attempts to get it out then were unsuccessful. Last week Dr. Thomas Hubbard took the boy to New York, where he was examined by Dr. Gustav Killian, of Freiberg, Germany, with especially devised tubes for exploring the lungs.

Prof. Killian examined both the boy's lungs through the bronchial tubes, but found the tack was so imbedded in proud flesh tissue that it could not be extracted without several operations which might endanger the patient's life.

The young patient returned home. The tack in his lung is not giving him any trouble, and it not expected to bother him hereafter.

Did Not Circulate Report.

The report in circulation in East Sedalia that Mr. John Blue was the instigator of a rumor that smallpox existed at the home of J. A. Leach has no foundation.

There was no smallpox at the Leach home, and Mr. Blue is emphatic in the statement that neither he nor any member of his family ever told anyone that there was.

THE "NERVE" OF A MAYOR

ALONE SAVED HIM FROM BEING MURDERED BY NEGRO WHO WAS CRAZED.

LATTER WAS A GIANT IN STATURE

His Honor Alone in His Office With the Madman, and It Was Only By a Ruse That Escape Was Effected.

New York, June 5.—Calmly discussing the details of his preparation for death within a few minutes with John Cannon, a negro maniac, a giant in stature, while they were alone in his office, Mayor Mark A. Fagan, of Jersey City, by sheer nerve and coolness got rid of the would-be assassin in such a quiet way that even his neighbors in the city building knew nothing of the incident.

Cannon, who was released from the Hudson county insane asylum a few days ago as cured, gained admission into the mayor's office late in the afternoon, telling the secretary that his business was private.

When the secretary had left the office, leaving the mayor alone with his visitor, the latter proceeded to tell the mayor that he had held the office long enough; that the people wanted a new man, and that the only way to get rid of him was to kill him, which he intended to do.

The mayor, calmly asking the visitor to be seated, picked up a pen and appeared to be busy with his papers. He touched a button that rang the buzzer for Secretary O'Connor and when the latter appeared at the door he said:

"Just a minute, Joe, I'll speak to you at the door," and he walked over to where the secretary stood and quietly dispatched him for two policemen, who, on arrival, seized the lunatic and he was taken back to the asylum, from which he had been released a few days before.

OLD-TIME PRINTERS

A Quartette Who Used to Make Visits Far and Near.

A "typographical tourist" visited the Butler Democrat the other day, which visit led the editor to muse thus:

"It is a pleasure to think of many of the old artists who in former years toured the country and paid regular periodical visits to the country printing offices.

"Old George W. Matchett, educated for the Episcopal ministry and drifting into a printing office to eke out a living during a summer vacation from his studies.

"Peter B Lee, a veteran who was known in every office from Chicago to Galveston and found a hearty welcome in each.

"'High-Toned' Brown, a linguist and a scholar, who could ask for a chew of tobacco in a half dozen languages and who always appeared in a Prince Albert coat and a silk hat and scorned to ride in a passenger coach when he could 'bum' his way on a freight train.

"Oscar Leonard, a product of Missouri and a graduate of one of the best schools in the state, but who had absorbed the printing office virus in early life. Where are they?

"Old age and the linotype and the typesetting machine have forced those of them who are yet living to abandon the road and take refuge in almshouses in different sections. The tramp printer, as he was known up to twenty-five years ago, will be seen no more."

HINT FROM FEDERATION

IN REGARD TO THE POSSIBLE ORGANIZING OF SECOND BREWERS' UNION.

THE SITUATION GROWING SERIOUS

Labor Body Refuses to Declare Beer of Expelled Workers Non-union—Intimation of Something to Come.

Washington, June 4.—Officers of the American Federation of Labor are are not prepared at this time to take the responsibility of declaring beer made by members of the expelled brewery workers' union to be a porduct of nonunion workmen, and, therefore, not to be touched, tasted or purveyed by good trades unionists. To declare it nonunion would be the logical consequence of expulsion.

There is no immediate prospect of a declaration on the point which was first raised in Pittsburg, and later in New York.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, and highest officer in Washington during the absence of President Gompers declined to say that union waiters and union bartenders would be violating the rules of the federation by handling beers made in expelled breweries. Mr. Morrison said:

"The brewery workers' union has been expelled for open rebellion, not against President Gompers, but for disobeying the order of the last annual convention. Expulsion means that the recognition of the bewery workers' label is withdrawn, and its members are not entitled to support from either the federation or the internationals, or of any of the affiliated bodies."

"Then all beer is nonunion," was suggested to the secretary.

"Well, there are some questions that will have to be left to the future. There may be some union beer in the near future."

This declaration sounds like a threat that the officers of the federation will make an effort to organize another union of brewery workers, who will recognize the distinction between firemen and engineers on one hand, and men engaged in regular brewery work.

SHOT FIRED BY HIS SON

Killed Laycock, Who Had Dragged His Invalid Wife Out of Bed.

Chicago, Ill., June 4.—Awakened from sound sleep by the screams of his sick mother, who was being beaten by her drunken husband, William Laycock, aged 16, the son of Charles Laycock, of Daggett, Menominee county, Mich., seized a 22-caliber rifle and sent a bullet crashing through his father's brain. The man died instantly.

The father was attempting to stab his eldest son, who protected his mother. The father had dragged his wife from bed by the hair.

The boy was arrested, but probably will not be prosecuted.

CARRIED FROM BED TO BED

Of the Stricken Relatives Was the Body of the Young Man.

Bucyrus, Ohio, June 4.—A most unusual occurrence took place at the funeral of 18-year-old Dean Torrence, in this city yesterday.

Torrence died of typhoid fever, all the members of the family being confined to their beds with the same affliction.

The funeral was held from the home of a neighbor, none of the members of the family being able to attend.

After the services the body was taken to the afflicted home and carried from one bed to another so that the different members of the family might see the dead boy for the last time.

THE BOY OBJECTED

To His Father's White Mistress and Shot Him in the Back.

Portsmouth, Ohio, June 4.—William Harris, aged 50, a colored overseer of the George Paris farm, north of the city, was shot through the back by his fifteen-year-old son yesterday.

The shooting followed a series of quarrels growing out of the boy's objections to his father living with Lizzie Pyles, a Kentucky white woman.

Harris is separated from his wife, who, with the smaller children, lives in Columbus. Harris may recover. Officers found the boy in the top of a tree and lodged him in jail.

MISS FLEISCHMANN WEDS

Is Now the Bride of Dr. N. O. Harrelson, of Kansas City

(Wednesday's Daily.)

A popular former Sedalian was written of as follows in the Kansas City Times today:

Dr. N. O. Harrelson and Miss Gertrude Fleischmann were married at 6 o'clock last night at Miss Fleischmann's home in the Oxfoord apartments, Independence boulevard and Park avenue.

The Rev. George H. Combs, pastor of the Independence Boulevard Christian church, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the only daughter of the late Dr. August T. Fleischmann, one of the organizers of the Missouri Druggists' association, and at one time its president.

Dr. Harrelson is the chief surgeon at the Swedish hospital, and a member of the surgical staff of St. Joseph's hospital. He was a major on the surgical staff through the Spanish-American war.

Dr. and Mrs. Harrelson left for a northern lake trip at 9 o'clock last night. They will live in the Oxford apartments.

WILL ENFORCE DOG LAW

Sheep Killing Canines Are to Be Summarily Dealt With.

Mexico, Mo., June 5—The Audrain county court has ordered the enforcement of the new dog tax law and Assessor Jackson has been instructed to enforce the provisions of this act of the last legislature.

The court decided that there should be a fair compensation for the additional duties it imposes on the assessor, county clerk and constable, and a fixed schedule was adopted affecting the pay of these officers.

The law provides that its enforcement depends upon the action of the county court and shall apply only in such counties as are ordered by the court.

The fact that this county has many sheep growers who are the victims of the sheep killing dogs was one of the points considered in its favor here.

BOY TRAPS 800 SNAKES

Been in Business Three Years—Order for 400 Reptiles.

Fourteen-year-old Walcott Gordon Holland, of No. 77 Bellingham avenue, Revere, who has been a snake catcher for three years, has received an order for 400 reptiles, which he hopes to secure around the Revere marshes, says the Boston American.

In the three years the boy has been in the business he has caught over 800 snakes and has sold them to proprietors of exhibits at summer parks and beaches.

Several times young Holland has been bitten, but never seriously.

In speaking of his experiences, "Dodo," as the boy is known by his companions, said:

"Three years ago while I was visiting the snake pit at Revere Beach, Prof. Charles Wolcott asked me if I could get any small snakes for him to be used to feed the large. I told him I thought I could, and started out to see what I could do. I was very successful with the undertaking and have been snake hunting ever since during my spare time.

"I do not have much time to go hunting, but usually gather them during the noon hour, when the sun is at its height, because then the snakes are usually on the ground and probably asleep.

"I have at present 280, having two orders to fill. One order is for Prof. Wolcott, who wants 300 for his pit in Toledo, Ohio, and another order for four dozen to be shipped to Mrs. E. Le Roy Le Count, New Haven, Conn., by the 15th of the month."

Walcott has netted about $100.

POOR PLANTER'S PEWTER POT

Plowed Up Held $3,000 in Gold and $10,000 in Bills.

Milan, Tenn, June 4.—Money buried since the civil war has been unearthed by the prong of a poor man's plow, and Bob Phillips, who for years has led the life of a simple planter, now finds himself with more gold than he ever dreamed of, as the result of stopping to inspect the contents of an old pewter pot turned up with the sod he was plowing.

Ten thousand dollars in Confederate scrip securely wrapped around gold coin amounting to $3,000 was the small fortune found by Phillips in his field, and the discovery has led to more searching for hidden treasure thought to have been buried by people during the war.

HEWOREWIFE'S CLOTHES

FRED GRAYHEARST, A POPULAR TRAVELING MAN OF DETROIT, MICH.

OH, RUFFLES, BUT THIS IS TOUGH

Freddie Wears the Hat, Shirt Waist, Jacket, Shoes and Union—But Never Mind—And Then He Lands in Court.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 5.—Wearing a woman's riding derby, a shirt waist and a jacket, Fred Grayhearst, a Detroit traveling salesman, was arraigned in police court on a charge of intoxication.

"Oh, look who's here!" exclaimed Judge Fiedler, when Grayhearst appeared before him. "He's wearing a lady's clothes."

"Sell for 23 cents if I haven't got my wife's clothes on again," replied the prisoner, with a look of chagrin.

"You see, Judge," continued the prisoner, "there doesn't seem to be any difference these days between a man's clothes and a woman's, except in the tousers, of course.

"I have been embarrassed, aye, deeply shamed, upon more than one occasion by just such an occurrence as this. I am constantly wearing my wife's shoes. Our feet are the same size. Her divided skirt, that she uses when riding a bicycle seems so swagger and college-boy like that I am frequently taken for a student of the University of Michigan when, by mistake, I don them for my own clothes. Her riding derby, her broad sombrero, her chic Panama, I have often worn for my own.

"Her neckties are just like mine. I frequently slip into her shirtwaists, for we wear the same size. And her jackets—well, you see the result of their similiarity before you, judge.

"We came down on the boat from Detroit early this morning. When we landed I said to myself: 'I will just slip out hurriedly and slip one in.' And I slipped into my clothes, slipped on what I thought was my own coat, and you see, judge, what a slip I have made."

"Yes," said the judge, with a smile of pity.

"And as for her other clothes, my wife wears union—"

"That will do," said the judge, hastily. "You are discharged, Grayhearst."

WHY NOT CURE IT?

If You Do You Are Doctoring the Symptoms Only—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure the Disease.

There are almost as many ways of treating rheumatism as there are doctors.

Most of these treatments are directed at the symptoms and are considered successful if they relieve the pain and stiffness. But the blood has not been purified and the rheumatism is sure to return, especially after a season of exposure to cold and dampness. The patient goes through this experience year after year and begins to think that permanent relief is impossible.

The only way to treat rheumatism is through the blood. This is the method of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—they not only cleanse the blood of the impurities which cause the disease but build up and restore the broken-down system.

Mr. John Riley of Cazenovia, N. Y., says: "In my work as a blacksmith, I am exposed a great deal to changes of temperature. Some time ago I noticed that my health was breaking down. The symptoms were general physical weakness, loss of appetite and nervousness.

"It was evident that my blood was weak and impure. I became no better as time went on and finally this condition of my blood, with the constant exposure, brought on rheumatism. It was of the inflammatory kind and was very painful in the joints, especially of the feet and wrists. Many days I could hardly walk and suffered intense pain. I took to my bed several times for a day or so and once for six weeks.

"A fellow blacksmith advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and as I had gained no help from other treatments, I decided to give them a trial. Within a reasonable time I noticed that I was getting better and in a few weeks I was cured. That the cure is permanent is shown by my not having lost a day at my trade since then. I can truthfully say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills put me on my feet again."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured anæmia, after-effects of the grip and fevers, general debility and sick headaches, dizziness, nervous prostration, even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

MORGAN'S NAME

Was Forged to a Check Presented By a Colored Woman.

New York, June 5.—Because she tried to pass a check for $70, signed J. Pierpont Morgan, a negro woman who described heself as Mrs. Edith A. Jones (nee Edith A. Merritt), 21 years old, of No. 24 West Ninety-nintth street, was held in $1,000 bail on a charge of forgery in the West Side court.

Moses L. Frazier, the woman's landlord, said she had asked him to cash the check. It was payable to Edith A. Merritt, and as she said that was her maiden name he gave her $25 on account and told her to come back the next day for the balance.

He found that the Phoenix National bank had refused to honor the check on the ground that the indorsement was forged. In court Mrs. Jones said she had received the check through the mails, but didn't know who sent it, "unless it was Mr. Morgan."

Pilot Grove Items

Pilot Grove, June 5.

Mrs. A. M. Cockrell, after spending three months with her daughter, Mrs. H. L. Stiles, has gone to Warrensburg, her home. Rev. A. M. Cockrell and wife, with several small children, came from Kentucky to Missouri about thirty years ago and located at Warrensburg. Mr. Cockrell is serving the same churches he preached for then, but he is an old man now, and only his companion and one child gather with him around the heartstone. I knew Rev. Cockrell a quarter of a century ago, while attending the Normal school. He was then in his prime and I was a thoughtless school boy. Today the preacher is an old man and I am no longer a boy. My hair is beginning to silver, and the hard school of life has taught me more practical lessons than did the state school, and many of them cost more.

A Radical Model

THIS is the sort of suit that young men, who strive to go a step beyond the style limitations set by their more conservative elders, will appreciate.

The long, low-opening lapels, disclosing the waistcoat, the slanting pocket flaps, the sleeve cuffs, and the closing with but two buttons, are all distinctive features of this model.

It is typical of the New York fashion of the hour, and has just come from the tailor shops of Alfred Benjamin & Co. – a block from Broadway—a minutes's walk from Fifth Avenue.

DON'T NEED CROKER THERE

American Machine Methods Are Not Wanted in Ireland.

London, June 3.—The newspapers are reviving the report that Richard Croker cherishes an ambition to enter the British parliament as an Irish Nationalist member.

Recently Mr. Croker has taken an interest in the work of the nationalists, made contributions to the party funds, lent automobiles for electioneering purposes and identified himself with the party by appearing on the platform at a recent convention in Dublin.

An Irish nationalist remarked to the Associated Press that the party would not welcome any attempt to introduce "American machine" methods into its politics.

Mr. Croker's health, moreover, is a barrier to his re-embarking in active work of any sort. He shows the weight of his 64 years. His recent illness was more severe than published reports indicated. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease.

WILL WED ON JUNE 23

DID SHE YIELD?

Somebody Offered the Beauteous Wife $5 for a Kiss.

Lima, Ohio, June 3.—An offer of $5 for a kiss and whether it was accepted or rejected formed the crucial testimony in a sensational divorce action which occupied the entire day here. Wm. A. Copeland seeks a divorce from the pretty Mary G.

Three co-respondents are named, all prominent, a physician, traveling man and wholesale merchant. All appeared and bravely supported the wife, declaring that they knew the husband to be "insanely jealous."

Mrs. Copeland was alleged to have stated that one of the co-respondents named had offered her $5 for a kiss, and ten witnesses were called but were equally divided in affirming and denying this fact. The court reserved a decision and ordered the attorneys to file briefs.

VAUDEVILLE STAR DEAD

James Glenroy Was Known as "The Man With the Green Gloves.

New York, June 3.—James Richmond Glenroy, a quaint vaudeville actor known as "the man with the green gloves," died of pneumonia Saturday in his home in Brooklyn. He was nearly 60 years old and had been on the variety stage since boyhood. There was nothing really brilliant about Glenroy, but the very ridiculiousness of his manner made him a favorite on the bills.

Glenroy never "made up." His plain costume was amusingly added to on all occasions by a bright green pair of silk gloves. For years he had recited and wept over verses which he would tell his audiences he had copied from tombstone epitaths. His real name was James Richmond.

JUDGE BREWER TO STAY

DISTINGUISHED KANSAN INTIMATES THAT HE WILL NOT RETIRE.

LIVE AND WORK 50 YEARS LONGER

That Is What He Would Like, Despite the Fact That He Is Almost 70 —Publicity Remedy for Existing Evils.

Washington, June 5.—"I am getting to be an old man. Very soon I shall have reached 70 years, when I could retire and drop out of all the activities of the world to live in quiet and seclusion. But I am too much interested in the things that are going on —too young in spirit. I look ahead with hope. with optimism, with faith in the happy future of our country. It is said that optimism is a quality of youth, not of old age. If that be true, then I am indeed young, and can look with confidence at the years to come."

Thus spoke Justice Brewer, of the United States supreme court, as he laid aside a book to talk for a few moments about things past, present and future. It is the first intimation that the distinguished Kansan has given the public that he does not intend to retire from the supreme bench when he reaches the retirement age. He continued:

"I wish the next fifty years were before me, that I might witness and participate in their events, for the coming half century is to be a marvelous period in history. Great inventions will be made, remarkable discoveries will be brought to light, civilization will advance, humanity will progress, and I believe that our nation will approach nearer the blessings of peace, of comfort and of happiness.

"We have millionaires today and billionaires tomorrow. Perhaps we shall have trillionaires next. Let us have them if their wealth is used for increasing the welfare and the happiness of humanity. I do not view with alarm the accumulation of wealth, because I believe that the spirit of humanity and the sense of responsibility is growing among us.

"The greatest hope for the future American nation is the developments of its conscience."

Asked what effect publicity had in improving political and social conditions, schemes and questionable transactions, Judge Brewer said:

"Publicity has a tendency to prevent graft in corporate life. Publicity is one of the things that make it dangerous for men to practice such things. Publicity is not a new force in our national life, but its power is greater today than in the past.

"Publicity helps to form public opinion and public opinion is the mighty force of the age. If there had been publicity of every act of the officers and directors of the New York insurance companies there could not have been the secret financial operations which netted so much profit for the men in charge.

"In the railroad world the people have had reason to cry out, not so much against the rates themselves as against the secret practices behind the management of transportation companies. As a rule the schedule rates charged have been outrageous, although, of course, there have been exceptions, but on the average goods were carried for reasonable sums.

"It has not been the profits made from legitimate carrying of traffic against which the public protests; not that some roads have paid large dividends to their stockholders. Such things are the legitimate profits of business.

"The evils have been in the rebates, the granting of special privileges that gave unfair advantages in competition and in the manipulation of stocks and bonds by those in control."

"Is the tendency of legislation, of court decisions and of public sentiment toward centraliaztion and the strengthening of federal power?" was asked.

"There is undoubtedly a tendency toward national control in many directions," he replied. "But beneath it all there is another tendency on the part of individual citizens which is to be regretted. I am not a believer in a paternal government. Too much and too frequent interference by government blunts the sense of individual responsibility, and the danger is that we drift to a condition where the individual abandons his own duty and simply appeals to government.

"So that if a man buys a pair of shoes that pinches his feet he will rush to the legislature for some statue regulating shoe manufacture, and for fear the state legislature cannot reach every shoemaker in the land, hasten to Washington to have congress undertake the work of regulation under its power over interstate commerce.

"It is human nature to turn responsibilities off if possible, and if you develop in the locality a general feeling that in a government at Washington rests full responsibility, the individual will steadily lose the spirit of independent public spirited citizenship.

"I believe the supreme court is to be the pattern for a future court of nations. We have in this country many cases of disputes between the states of our union. We pass upon them and render decisions, and there is no disposition to question our judgments. The states accept them as final. This method of determining causes, I believe, will be extended throughout the world."

MAKES PITEOUS APPEAL

"LORD" BARRINGTON AT LAST BEGINS TO REALIZE HIS PREDICAMENT.

SENTENCED TO HANG ON JULY 25

Writes to the Press That He Is Willing to Meet His Fate, but His Execution Will Be Legalized Murder.

St. Louis, Mo., June 5.—"Lord" Barrington, the convicted murderer of McCann, turfman, and who is awaiting execution in the county jail, sends a touching and lengthy appeal to the press, the apparent effort being to create further interest in saving his life.

The "Lord," unless executive clemency comes to his rescue, will expiate the crime, which he denies having committed, on July 25.

A petition is being circulated pretty generally in St. Louis asking for a commutation from death sentence to life imprisonment.

In closing his appeal the "Lord" commits himself thus:

"Missourians! I am entirely innocent, and innocence can be satisfactorily established with your help. I appeal to all justice-loving patriots to get together with a view of seeing justice done to the innocent and the guilty; to request your honest governor to turn the calcium searchlight of truth on the Barrington case; on every fact, circumstance and person involved, in order to determine the question of my guilt or innocence to his and your satisfaction before the consummation of a legalized, yes brutalized murder."

Systemic Catarrh of Summer

Affects Many Organs of the Body.

"There is no better remedy in the world than Pe-ru-na for systemic catarrh."
S. B. Hartman, M. D.

A War Veteran's Experience.

General A. F. Hawley, 1336 25th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I have used Peruna and find it very beneficial for kidney trouble, and especially good for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."

Spring and Summer Catarrh.

There is a form of catarrh especially prevalent in spring and summer, called by Dr. Hartman systemic catarrh.

This form of catarrh especially deranges the stomach, bowels and other organs of the abdomen. The whole mucous tract lining the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys is in an inflamed condition, and these organs fail to perform their proper function.

Systemic catarrh may be or may not be accompanied by catarrh in other parts of the body. In some cases there is a hacking cough. It may be also associated with catarrh in the head.

But, in typical cases of systemic catarrh all the organs of the abdomen are in a weakened and sluggish condition.

Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

Sometimes it is called dyspepsia, at other times biliousness, or the patient may be suspected of having kidney disease or appendicitis.

Systemic catarrh presents symptoms which resemble closely a great many different diseases.

Peruna has for a long time been regarded as the remedy par excellence for conditions of this kind.

The accompanying testimonials are sufficient to indicate the promptness with which Peruna relieves these symptoms and the satisfaction which people express concerning the use of Peruna.

Catarrh of Stomach.

Mr. W. R. Callahan, proprietor of Big Hill Farm, and a prominent fruit grower and stock raiser, Glenvar, Va., writes:

"I write to express my kindness toward you and your good medicine, Peruna.

"I had a very bad spell of sickness and could not eat anything at all.

"My head, stomach, in fact, my whole body ached, and it looked as though nothing would do me any good.

"I had almost given up. I decided to try a bottle of your Peruna and before I had taken half the bottle my appetite came to me and my head became all right."

CHICAGO NEWS LETTER

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT IS TO INVESTIGATE THE PULLMAN PALACE CAR CO.

THE ILLINOIS INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Gets Lots of Sympathy, but Very Few Checks, and in Consequence It May Have to Close Its Doors Soon.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Chicago, June 5.—In Chicago another big corporation is to be placed on the dissecting table for investigation under the federal government's lens and scalpel. It is a rare day when no governmetal inquiry is on in this city. The Pullman company is next. The interstate commerce commission is to be the surgeon and the public will watch clinic with interest. Some wag called the case a Pullmanory complaint. The capitalization of the Chicago concern now is $100,000,000, $26,000,000 having been added in stock at the last annual meeting of the stockholders and those interested. Most of the time since 1884 the stockholders have received cash dividends of 8 per cent per anuum and occasional stock dividends much larger. Years ago the capitalization was $26,000,000, but surplus profits have swelled the amount and the dividend rate was maintained on the extra stock. It operates over nearly every railroad in the country, although the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul runs its own cars better than Pullmans. In the Chicago plant there are 348 acres of land. There also are plants at St. Louis, Denver, Buffalo, and in Kentucky and Delaware. The prospect of prying into the vitals of the concern is one result of classing the Pullman company as a "common carrier, under the Hepburn law; there is a question about the justice of its rates. The specific complaint in hand is from George F. Loftus, of St. Paul. Others have vaguely wondered after paying fares why the porter in Pullman cars was in need of tips to make a decent living. All this will soon be looked into rather thoroughly.

Little girls, if they be orphaned and without money, in Illinois, are given less charitable consideration than boys, although their need is greater. This has been the experience of the Illinois Industrial school, to which the juvenile court of Chicago sends little waifs who need care and attention. A crisis in the affairs of the institution has been brought on by lack of money subscriptions by philanthropically inclined people of wealth; the monthly deficit has become $500 and the prospect is that the 125 girls, from 5 to 15 years old, will be homeless soon, and probably be sent to the Cook county almshouse.

"There are many who sympathize, but few who will write checks," said Mrs. Henry Solomon, president of the institution, which is located at Evanston. The board of managers is in despair. Meanwhile the number of $5,000 automobiles in the streets of Chicago increases.

The city sealer of Chicago is investigating the complaint made in New York that each box of the dressed poultry shipped by Chicago packing houses contains less weight of hens and turkeys than the mark on the box calls for. The complaint originated in the discovery of a clerk of a Chicago butcher that a "50 pound" box contained 46 pounds of Chicago plucked poultry. Officers of the Chicago packers explain matters by saying that the instructions to agency managers is to charge only for actual weight.

The flood of colonists which passes through Chicago every spring is this year breaking all records. Most of them are Americans and come from Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin, though many hail from points as far east as New York state and New England. The extremes of crop conditions, excessive rains or droughts, have caused a general movement toward good land, where the amount of moisture in the growing season can be governed by irrigation. Many of the colonists are bound for the Pacific coast, but the larger part are headed for the Canadian Northwest, where the Canadian Pacific railway's irrigation project is now bringing under cultivation a kingdom of fertile land in Alberta twice as large as the state of Delaware and four times as large as the state of Rhode Island. This is the largest irrigation project in America, and will require the digging of 2,900 miles of canals, or enough to make an artificial river from New York to San Francisco. The tract which is being assured of water lies close to the rich wheat lands of Saskatchewan, and is just north of the Montana line and east of Calgary. In size the Calgary project exceeds any now being undertaken by the United States government under the reclamation act, and is easily the largest undertaking of the kind on the American continent. Work in the United States has been divided into eighteen districts, containing a total acreage of 1,900,000 acres of irrigable land, and involving an ultimate expenditure of $35,000,000. The largest individual project provides for the redemption of 250,000 acres—a small figure when compared with the 1,500,000 acres of land embraced in the Canadian project.

A blow at tradition was struck by Mayor Busse, who has abolished the duties and the pay of seven cowcatchers. Records of last year's harvest of stray cows was searched for data, and it was found that no cows were caught, but that a cowcatcher had vindicated the year's salary roll of $5,040 by intrepidly capturing and impounding one horse, age, color and previous condition of servitude not stated. This capture called attention to the cowcatching force, employed to prevent any bossy grazing in Madison or State streets, causing a panic among shoppers, and Mayor Busse decided to take his chance on the perils, and the police will have to add cows to their troubles. About 1000 applicaions were in for the seven jobs.

Municipal ownership having taken a rear seat in Chicago, as the burning question of the hour, the hobo has stepped to the front row and bowed acknowledgment of the public discussion of his needs and his deeds. A banquet, at which Box Car Pete and his followers were guests of honor, has aroused acrimonious discussion between philanthropists and sociologists of the city as to whether one should give the hobo what he wants, be it food or drink, upon application, or should investigate the case. Those who paid for the banquet next held a "clinic," at which the hobo sat on the platform, heard himself dissected, and, with a cheery smile, listened to the theories: "Get the hobo in shape to work by providing him with clean collars, socks, etc., and a meal ticket. Then get him a job."

During the week a boy tramp of 19, who has traveled 100,000 miles in the last four years, who hails from Washington originally, but maintains his residence "under his hat," came to town in a box car. He has kept a diary of his travels by foot, rail, water and handcar, and declared he could not get work because he was neither educated nor trained in a trade.

The Pedestrian Club of America, whose membership is all in Chicago, will start from New York soon to tour France on foot. It will be one of the most remarkable exploits a club of such pretentious name has ever undertaken; the membership will sleep in one bunk of one stateroom, will occupy one chair at meal time (if not seasick), will travel single file and register at hotels as a single person. There has been only unanimity among the club members as to club colors and the official club badge, which is of gold, with crossed soles, rampant in the center of a circle. As a matter of fact, the officers and membership of the Pedestrian club of America comprise one Chicago dentist. He says he has to jolly his patients so much he wants to be alone and so will not admit any one to membership except himself, and so will tramp alone, with time to think. He will wear a specially made suit of loben, imported from Germany, the lightest cloth made, and which turns the rain perfectly.

"There is only one annoyance about the trip," he said. "I have to give in to the postcard craze. I shall buy a bunch of cards at Paris, stamping them with my name, and mail one each day. That will save writing."

Prof. H. O. Frankenfield, of the weather forecasting bureau, has expressed a theory regarding the reason for the backward spring, the backward spring, the backwardest since 1882. Here it is:

"We have an idea that an extraordinary amount of snow has fallen in Siberia during the past six months. All the heat has evidently radiated from it, leaving an intensely cold mass covering the earth. Arctic winds blowing over that mass of snow and ice do not have their temperature raised to any appreciable extent before they hit the American continent. The winds that blow across from Siberia apparently are without moisture. The result is a high pressure over the northern part of the American continent, while in the south there is a low pressure. Atmosphere, like water, flows to the lowest point. There is no doubt about the course of the cold winds that haave served to make the oldest inhabitants speak of this spring as if it were the coldest in human experience, which it is not."

The romance of the City of Zion seems to be approaching its end. The lease under which Wilbur Glenn Voliva, who denounced Dowie, had access to the tabernacle, school and administration building, terminated June 1, by notice from Receiver Hately, and another chapter soon will be added to the rise and fall of a city which was builded on the sands of Lake Michigan. The "cit'y" is in itself unique; the buildings are scattered; nearly all but Dowie's former home are frame; an air of solemnity pervades the place. To the stranger the greeting, "Peace to thee," of the Zionites, even the fat policeman seems weird and sepulchral.

A Circuit Was Formed When Girl Stood on Hot Air Register.

Champaign, Ill., June 5.—Grace Dillon, 18 years old, daughter of G. S. Dillon, was almost instantly killed at 7:15 o'clock yesterday morning as a result of an electric shock from an incandescent light bulb.

Her sister, Bertha, in an adjoining room, heard her scream and found the girl lying on the floor. The thumb and fourth finger of the left hand were burned.

There was also a burn on the great toe of the right foot, where the current left the body to a register on which she stood, which formed a ground circuit.

At this stage Orchard began to tell of the arrangements he made with Haywood in Denver for the assassination of Frank Steunenberg, the man for whose murder Haywood is being tried.

Orchard testified that Haywood first suggested that he come to Idaho and assassinate Steunenberg.

"Haywood said: 'We ought to get Steunenberg; he thought if we got him after letting him go seven or eight years we should then go back to Paterson, N. J., and write letters to Judge Gabbert, Judge Goddard, probably Bell and others, telling them they would get the same thing as Steunenberg did.'

"Haywood said he had sent several men to Caldwell to do the Steunenberg job."

At this point the court took a recess.

BE NO "DRINKS" SOLD

At Liberty Park On the Fourth of July Celebration.

Major William Beck informs the Democrat-Sentinel that no intoxicating drinks will be sold at Liberty park on the Fourth of July, on the occasion of the reunion of the Old Settlers' association and a welcome to all former Pettis county people who materialize for the "home-coming."

The intention is to arrange a program that will insure a day of genuine enjoyment for all—young and old, rich and poor, city and countr folk alike.

There will be horse races, automobile races, bicycle races, a basket diner, and accomodations in the grand stand for 1,500 people to witness free of chage the amusements of the day.

There will also be amusements for the children, and every loyal Sedalian should arrange to spend the day at Liberty park instead of going to some one of the nearby towns to celebrate.

A FINE OF FIFTY

Imposed By the Burgess on His Brother, the Ex-Police Chief.

Pittsburg, Penn., June 4.—When Burgess Patrick Kelley, of Glassport, looked over the bunch of prisoners in his courtroom and saw the face of his brother, Peter Kelley, among them he frowned.

Peter was formerly chief of police of Glassport, but has not been for some time. He got into a fight, and when he was arrested and taken to the lockup, where he had placed so many prisoners in the past, he started a rough house and almost wrecked the little jail.

When Burgess Kelley heard of the way his brother Peter had been acting his frown deepened. Peter tried hard to explain, but his brother would have none of it.

"Fifty dollars fine and costs," said the Burgess, "or 90 days to jail."

HAD 72-DAY POKER GAME

SHIP WAS ICE-BOUND, BUT THE WHISKY SUPPLY WAS UNLIMITED.

TALE TOLD BY RETIRED SAILOR

"Judge" Cooley, Who Was Attached to the Good Old Ship, "Simpson Horner," in 1883, Relates Interesting Experience.

Old "Judge" Cooley, who never gets weary of talking to his many friends of the early period of his life when he was an officer in the American merchant marine service, talked to a few visitors who called on him at his quarters in one of the leading downtown hotels recently of the time when he, with the other officers of the craft to which he belonger, played poker day and night for about three months, or, to be accurate, as the urbane and handsome "Judge" declares, "for just exactly seventy-two days."

"This," said the retired sailor man, "was in the winter of 1883, and a very cold winter it was. I was then attached to the good old ship Simpson Horner. She was a fine old craft, and her duty was that of towing coal barges from Louisvile to New Orleans. My rank aboard the ship was that of assistant watchman, and my special function was that of keeping the lamps trimmed. On the northbound trip in the winter I am talking about we got stalled in the ice just about the vicinity of Paducah, Ky., and we couldn't get out.

"So the only thing we could do," said the old gentleman, "was to make the time pass as pleasantly as possible, and to do that we resorted to the great American game of poker. We were in no danger of starvation, as when we left New Orleans we had eight dressed hogs, a whole barrel of New Orleans molasses, plenty of flour and a whole lot of coffee.

"We had a number of visitors that winter, principally young farmers, who made the trip over the ice almost every night to take a hand in our little social poker game. Where we were stalled up was just abreast a little island near the mouth of the Tennessee river. Some of the farmer visitors were on the inside concerning the way of getting all the moonshine whisky we wanted, so you see we didn't suffer a bit for that particular necessity of life.

"No, sir," said the Judge, "we didn't have any bickerings of any account, not half as many as I hear these fashionable ladies have when they get together and play bridge whist. If anybody was disposed to raise Cain in our little poker party, we just ostracized him, and he couldn't ante up again until he apologized to the special committee we had to hear and determine upon any breaches of the rules. We were a happy family and frowned down upon anything calculated to destroy the peace and good will in our midst. I expect our crowd of poker players was the best natured set of short card men that ever was. Everybody on the boat from the pilot, who was captain, to the engineers and stokers, played, and there wasn't a night but two or three young farmers came aboard and joined in the game.

"Some of the chips these fellows put up would make a cow smile," said the old towboat man. "Sometimes, when a fellow didn't have much coin, he set up a chicken or a dozen eggs or a barn yard duck, valued at the market price, and used the merchandise as chips. I won a pig once. It was a lucky night for me, and everybody was out of the game except one young fellow. I raised him $8, and as he didn't have the cash he proposed that he would call me if I would accept a good-sized shoat of the value of $8. Of course his word was good, but I won out. The next morning at 9 o'clock the young fellow was there with the pork. We had roast shoat for dinner that day, and the farmer I won it from helped to eat it.

"I tell you they were good old times that winter when the gay old Simpson Horner got stalled in the ice and the crew from captain to cabin boy passed their imprisonment playing poker."—Washington Post.

WILL KEEP THE "LID" ON

AN ORDINANCE TO THAT END IS PASSED BY THE SEDALIA CITY COUNCIL.

SALOON MEN PROPOSED THE LAW

Screens and Blinds Are to Be Removed From All Windows and Doors on the Sabbath From This Time Forward.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council Wednesday night, Mayor Collins presiding and all of the aldermen present, the following ordinance, endorsed and proposed by Sedalia saloon owners, was read three times and adopted unanimously:

Be it enacted by the city council of the city of Sedalia, Missouri, as follows:

Sec. 1. No license shall hereafter be granted to any person or persons to conduct a dramshop in the city of Sedalia excepting upon premises which meet the following requirements, viz:

Sec. 1. Said premises shall be located upon the ground floor or first floor and shall consist of a bar room which fronts and opens upon some street or public alley of said city. From said bar room and looking upon said street or alley, or both, there shall be one or more large windows glazed with transparent glass and so constructed and situated that an ordinary person standing upon the street or alley near said window or windows and looking through the same into the said bar room can plainly see the bar and obtain a fair general view of the bar room and of all other entrances thereto and exits therefrom, at such time as the curtains, screens and other obstructions are removed as provided in the following section.

Sec. 2. It shall be unlawful for any dramshop keeper to place or maintain or to permit or suffer or negligently suffer to be placed or maintained within or about the said bar room any shade, curtain, screen or any other obstruction of any character at, upon or near the window or windows provided for by Sec. 1 of this ordinance, or between the said window or windows and the bar or the entrances and exits aforesaid, at any time during any of the periods when by law the said dramshop is required to be closed or the said dramshop keeper is forbidden to sell, give away, or otherwise dispose of any vinous or spirituous liquor.

Sec. 3. All licensed dramshop keepers in the city of Sedalia shall immediately make their premises conform to the above requirements by removing all permanent obstructions which it may be necessary to remove in order to comply with this ordinance.

Sec. 4. Every dramshop keeper violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by fine of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars.

City Engineer Zoll reported that the remonstrance against the paving of Massachusetts avenue did not prevail.

A resolution permitting the Sedalia Light and Traction company to lay "T" rails in place of the flat, or girder rails, on West Third street, was offered by Alderman Winner.

The vote on the resolution resulted in its adoption by a vote of 5 to 3, Messrs. DeJarnette, Ilgenfritz and Hatton voting in the negative.

On motion of Alderman Winner, the council at 9:15 o'clock took a recess to Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Tevebaugh-Chipman Nuptials.

(Thursday's Daily.)

HAS OVER 100 SALOONS

CHIEF OF POLICE HANDS LEAVENWORTH COUNTY ATTORNEY A LIST.

AND 'TIS A PROHIBITION STATE

Not Only Do They Have Open Resorts, but Blind Tigers and Other Things to Suit the Most "Fastidious."

Leavenworth, Kas., June 5.—Chief of Police Cranston has handed County Attorney Bond a list of over a hundred places in Leavenworth where saloons are being run in violation of the prohibition law.

Attorney Bond later began the preparation of legal papers to close the places and said they would be served as soon as the police furnished him with evidence of the violation, which the police promised to do. This follows Attorney General Jackson's ultimatum of Saturday last.

It was announced that the first move would be by issuing warrants and filing injunction suits.

The threat of filing injunction suits caused uneasiness among property owners and several saloon keepers in the business part of town were told by property owners that they would have to get out of the buildings. A general closing up and moving of fixtures is expected at once.

WAS KILLED AT DANCE

Negro Hop at New Franklin, Mo., Ends in Shooting.

Robert Hearson, a negro yardman, of Franklin Junction, was shot and killed at a bowery dance at New Franklin Saturday night by John Hughes, a negro train porter, says Monday's Boonville Democrat.

The trouble grew out of an old feud and was started and over with before any of the other "coons" had an opportunity to get into the fray.

Hughes was arrested and locked up.

THE CAUSE OF A SCANDAL

JEALOUSY OF MR. YERKES' PROTEGE PROMPTS A SUIT FOR DIVORCE.

MISS EMILIE GRIGSBY IS "IN IN"

Dr. Loomis First Met the Kentucky Girl at the Millionaire's Bedside When He Was Dying in New York.

New York, June 7.—Mrs. Julia A. Loomis, of Tuexedo, wife of the widely known physician, Henry P. Loomis, of this city, has appealed to the courts for a separation, basing her petition upon certain incidents connected with the last trip to Europe taken by her husband.

Dr. Loomis admitted legal proceedings had been begun by his wife, but refused to discuss them.

"All you can say for me, he stated, "is that I had hoped nothing of this sort need become public, and that I absolutely refuse to discuss my domestic affairs with any one."

When the case comes to trial it will be found that, according to Mrs. Loomis's complaint, she thought she had cause to be jealous of Miss Emilie Grigsby, the former protege of Charles T. Yerkes, who is said to have settled her claim against Mr. Yerkes' estate for $1,000,000.

Friends of Miss Grigsby declare that Mrs. Loomis had no grounds for her jealousy, and that, while Miss Grigsby and Dr. Loomis may at times have taken automobile rides after a chance meeting abroad, there was nothing in their friendship that need have caused Mrs. Loomis a moment's anxiety.

For six months past Dr. and Mrs. Loomis have found it convenient to live in different places. She maintained a beautiful villa at Tuxedo, while the physician remained in his town house; but their friends thought that this was simply an arrangement made necessary by the demands upon the physician by his large and fashionable practice.

According to friends of Mrs. Loomis, when last abroad, she had expected to meet her husband at Cherbourg. Dr. Loomis is said to have disembarked at Hamburg instead, and while Mrs. Loomis was trying to reach him she learned that he had been on auto rides with Miss Grigsby.

Upon the return of Mr. and Mrs. Loomis to this country Mrs. Loomis left her husband to maintain the town house, while she went to live in their Tuxedo residence.

Miss Grigsby and Dr. Loomis have always been credited with having met at the deathbed of Charles T. Yerkes. When the millionaire lay dying at the Waldorf-Astoria he was attended by Dr. Loomis. At the time it was definitely stated that he had expressed the most earnest desire to see his protege, Miss Grigsby, and that Mrs. Yerkes had objected.

Dr. Loomis believed that a sight of Miss Grigsby might aid in the recovery of his patient, and was reported to have brought her at the request of Mr. Yerkes to the latter's bed side. There stormy scenes took place between the girl and Mrs. Yerkes, and, after the death of the multimillionaire Miss Grigsby brought suit against the estate for 47,000 shares of the stock in a London underground railroad, which, she declared, Mr. Yerkes had promised her. The suit was settled without trial.

After the acquaintance said to have thus begun, Dr. Loomis and Miss Grigsby became good friends. It is this friendship to which Mrs. Loomis now takes exception.

Mrs. Loomis was Miss Julia J. Stimson and is regarded as one of the most handsome women in the fashionable set. Three children have resulted from her marriage to Dr. Loomis. Their oldest son, Alfred, is now a junior at Yale. The youngest son, Henry, died three years ago of rabies, having been bitten by a pet fox terrier, which had been bitten by a black poodle.

The boy's death aroused great interest in the medical world, it being one of the few authentic cases of rabies which the physicians of New York had been called upon to deal with. Mrs. Loomis' daughter was also bitten at the time, but her injury was slight and she suffered no great inconvenience.

Mrs. Loomis is a prominent figure in social circles here, at Tuxedo and at Newport. She is a member of the Colonial Dames and has been prominent in charitable work in the city.

Before deciding to bring the suit against her husband Mrs. Loomis is said to have made overtures toward a friendly settlement of the case. Her friends state that a settlement upon the basis of $400,000 being given Mrs. Loomis was suggested, and Dr. Loomis rejected the proposal, with the remark that "divorces are getting fashionable."

Dr. Loomis is one of the leaders among the members of the medical profession in New York. His father was a faumous authority on lung diseases and Dr. Loomis has attained high rank in the same specialty. He is considered an authority on germ diseases and is on the consulting staff of several hospitals.

Miss Grigsby, who unwittingly aroused the jealousy of Mrs. Loomis, is a Kentucky girl. Her father is said to have been a close friend of Yerkes during the boyhood days of the two, and after Mr. Grigsby's death the multimillionaire took an active interest in the welfare of the girl. Mr. Yerkes is said to have given her advice regarding the investment of the little money left to her.

When she first became known in New York she lived at the Hotel Grenoble, and entertained quite extensively. Afterward she purchased a house here and was taken up by many of the women socially prominent. Since the settlement of her suit against the Yerkes estate she has lived most of the time abroad.

WOMAN HAD NOTHING ON

WHILE CO-RESPONDENT WAS GIVING HER A BATH, THE DAUGHTER SAID.

VERY SENEATIONAL DIVORCE CASE

A Fifteen-Year-Old Girl in the Buckeye State Gave Damaging Evidence Against Her "Flip" Mother.

A sensation was caused in the common pleas court room today when pretty 15-year-old Eva Bellis testified that she saw Kohler Zimmer, married, tall and handsome, giving her mother a bath, says a Marion, O., dispatch.

"What did your mother have on?" asked the prosecutor.

"Nothing," replied the little girl, blushing.

It was through the young witness that her mother, Mrs. Mildred Bellis, and Zimmer were arrested. The girl's father, Edward Bellis, is a railway engineer, who claims that Zimmer broke up his home. He lives at Bucyrus.

A brother of Mrs. Bellis testified against his sister.

The afternoon session was marked by another sensational incident. Mrs. James W. Woodmansee, aged 17 years, while waiting to be called as a witness, remarked that she was "all in," and a few minutes later, when the court bailiff called her name, she fell unconscious to the floor. Dr. S. W. Mattox, who was summoned, announced that she had suffered an attack of nervous prostration as a result of brooding over the fact that she would have to testify at the trial in which her mother's name was scandalized.

Fearing an unexpected visit from the stork in the court room, Dr. Mattox ordered the woman removed to her home. She may not recover.

THE JUDGE'S REPRIMAND

Because He Only Took One Kiss When Girl "Seemed to Like It."

In the Yorkville police court today Patrolman Stapleton appeared to prosecute James F. Higgins, a well dressed young chap who had spent a night in the East Thirty-fifth street station, says a New York dispatch. Higgins said he was a clerk and that he lived at No. 322 East Eighteenth street.

"This here young man was standing on Second avenue, near Twenty-eighth street, last night, talking to three girls," said the policeman. "Just as I came up he kissed one of the girls, so with that I tells him to move on, and he tells me he ain't doing nothing against the law and I runs him in."

"Your honor," said Higgins, "I wasn't drinking and I wasn't disorderly—the officer will tell you that. I was standing there with my lady friend when he told me to move on, and I wouldn't do it. I did kiss her, but there's no law that I know of against kissing a girl if she doesn't object."

"Did the girl object?" asked the magistrate of the policeman.

"It seemed like she kind of liked it," admitted Stapleton.

"The young man is right," ruled his honor. "It is no crime to kiss a girl in a New York street if she doesn't object. Higgins, I discharge you, with a reprimand."

He didn't explain what the reprimand was for.

PRETTY LEG MODELS

In Omaha Store Windows Shock the Church Women.

A number of women, representing the church societies of the city, requested the police today to compel the managers of the stores to remove from their windows the plaster of paris legs upon which the fancy hosiery is displayed, says an Omaha dispatch. The police did nothing and thereupon the women appealed to the fire and police commissioners. The latter have taken no action, but the women declare that they will make a formal demand upon them to have the objectionable legs removed. Commissioner Robert Cowell is manager of one of the stores concerning which complaint has been made.

"The fire and police commissioners are making an effort to clean up Omaha," said one of the women, "and yet they permit these horrid and vulgar models to be displayed in store windows. They are disgraceful and immoral, and they must be removed."

DOCTOR'S FEES $30,000

Fifty Dollars an Hour for Treatment Isn't So Bad.

Heinrich Conreid, who for the past two months has been lying on his back at the Kaiserhof hotel, hardly able to move his limbs, owing to a form of locomotor ataxia, walked nearly two-thirds of a mile yesterday, unaided, as the result of the novel treatment given him by Dr. Fraenkel, which consists in making the patient walk the floor, placing his feet according to chalked diagrams in certain positions, says the Detroit Free Press. The treatment was begun five months ago, when Dr. Fraenkel was paid $30,000 by Conried to come to New York.

That the treatment is bona fide is assured by the fact that half a dozen patients, formerly unable to walk, are now able to get about Berlin. One is completely cured. Dr. Fraenkel has a German degree. He spends six months here and holds a six months clinic at Lake Constance every year. At first he was much disparaged by his medical colleagues, but now this feeling is said to have been changed. Dr. Fraenkel's usual charge is $50 an hour, millionaires in proportion.

WORMS

"I had for years suffered from what medical men called Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach. In August I purchased a box of Cascarets and was surprised to find that I "had 'em"—yes—a wiggling, squirming mass left me. Judge our doctor's surprise when I showed him thirty feet, and in another day the remainder(about the same length)of a tapeworm that had been sapping my vitality for years. I have enjoyed the best of health ever since. I trust this testimonial will appeal to other sufferers."

Got Anti-Liquor Crusaders While Collecting Evidence.

Pittsburg, Kas., June 7.—Wednesday night the city marshal of Frontenac placed Rev. J. W. Primrose and Rev. A. F. Rev. Primrose and Rev. Berkstresser did active work recently in placing the lid on in Fort Scott, and they were in Frontenac on a similar mission. They were released Thursday afternoon on their own recognizance, but the samples were retained.

WILL TAKE SIXTH WIFE

An Old Fellow in Iowa is Striving for a Record.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 7.—Announcement comes from Blencoe, Iowa, that Thomas J. Strupper, aged 71 years, will next month wed Mrs. Julia Comstock, of Warren, Ohio, aged 72 years, to whom he was enggaged before the war, their separation resulting from his five years in the army.

This will be the sixth time Strupper has "stood" for the marriage ceremony. He has been twice in jail for bigamy, and, unless records change suddenly, his last venture may place him there again.

Strupper was the center of a recent sensation when he brought his twenty-year-old bride, Eva Scott, from Sidney, Iowa, where he was married July 2, 1906. He was accompanied by his third wife, Mrs. J. A. Kelly, aged 65 years, who had been nursed back to health by the Scott girl and was herself witness to her husband's marriage to the young woman.

TO FARMERS WHOM HE CALLED UPON ON RECENT VISIT OVER IN OHIO.

WHEN RETURNING FROM CANTON

Where He Had Attended the Funeral of Mrs. McKinley—Vice President Fairbanks Was With Him on the Trip.

The photographs of President Roosevelt, each carrying the president's signature, and an autograph letter from him as well, have arrived at the home of Wallace Wuchter, a Tallmadge farmer, says an Akron, O., dispatch. Mr. Roosevelt and Vice President Fairbanks called at the house on their "hike" through Tallmadge township last week while waiting for train connections after the funeral of Mrs. McKinley at Canton. The heads of the nation called at three farmhouses. One of the pictures received was for each. The letter which Mr. Wuchter received was as follows

"My Dear Mr. Wuchter: I send you three photographs, one for yourself and the other two I will ask you to give to the two Thomases, at whose farms I stopped. One of them gave me a glass of milk and the other had four such fine sons. Give my regards to your wife and all the Mr. and Mrs. Thamases and the other friends I met. Sincerely yours, Theodore Roosevelt."

The Thomases, David and Frank, are neighbors of the Wuchters. The former gave him the milk and the latter had "four such fine sons." President Roosevelt heartily enjoyed his "hike" through Tallmadge while his train waited at the edge of Akron. And he astonished the natives, for he wore the frock coat and silk hat with which he had attended the McKinley funeral. So did Fairbanks.

Their appearances in that abode of the jumper and the broad-rimmed straw is the sensation of this generation. When the president left Wuchter's home he got the farmer's address and told him they would hear from him again, but they little thought he would make good so soon.

WISH OF DYING MOTHER

CARRIED OUT BY A WOMAN WHO RESIDES AT LA JUNTA, COLORADO.

WAITED 20 YEARS TO GET $80,000

In the Meantime the Lover of Her Youth Remained True, and Now They Have Been Most Happily Married.

Denver, Colo. June 7.—After having been engaged for over 20 years to the girl he loved, but not permitted to marry her on account of the provisions of the will left by her mother, Josiah Rutlidge, superintendent of the Colorado Telephone company, has claimed as his bride Miss Catherine Quinn, a society woman of La Junta, who is well known throughout Colorado.

Miss Quinn will be $80,000 richer as the result of her long wait. When Mrs. Quinn, mother of the bride-to-be, died, 22 years ago, her will was found to contain a clause to the effect that if the young woman, who was then engaged to Rutlidge in Rockford, O., remained single and cared for her baby brother, Gerald, until he became of age, she would receive $80,000 from the estate.

Rutlidge, who was successful as an electrical engineer at the time, suggested that they should marry and together take care of the child, but the girl was true to what her mother wished. During 20 years of waiting the couple have lived near one another.

Two weeks ago Gerald Quinn arrived at the age of 21, and his sister and Rutlidge decided to marry at once.

THEY ESCAPE GERMS

Tall People Do, Where Shorter Ones Catch Them.

"Blessed are the tall, for they shall be long lived," said Martin Freidrich, health officer of Cleveland, Ohio, as he was poring over the reports of deaths sent to the department.

"A six-footer" he continued, "has more chance to escape disease germs than the little fellow. Those built close to the ground must be on the lookout."

Friedrich was looking at the physicians' mortality report and noticed that nearly all of twenty-six cases of cerebro spinal meningitis, or spotted fever, reported since January 1, were those of children. In explaining this he said:

"I believe that most of the disease germs are close to the ground. We have known that these germs are taken into the system through the nose in breathing. They find a breeding place in the dirt of the streets, and as they are stirred up by the passing pedestrians they are drawn into the nose.

HELD HER TONGUE

When Men Grew Facetious and They Painted the Wrong House.

Marion, Ohio, June 7.—Through a mistake two workmen, too reserved in conversation, gave the front and back porches of the home of Frank Detwiler a much needed coat of paint.

"What are you doing?" asked Mrs. Detwiler.

"Painting," replied one.

"Why " was the next question.

"Because it needs it," chimed the other.

Then Mrs. Detwiler held her tongue. When her husband came home he informed the painters that they were working on the wrong house. Unless the entire house is now painted he will bring suit against their employer, Charles Curtis, he says.

Bert Barber, of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your Kidney and Bladder Pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills, as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's Kidney and Bladder Pills, which are unequaled for backache, weak kidneys, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles. A week's treatment for 25c. Sold by Arlington pharmacy.

"CALLED" TO MINISTRY

As Atonement for Killing His Father Is This Student's Belief.

Marion, Ohio, June 7.—Believing he was called by God to serve Him in the ministry to atone for the killing of his father, George Kenyon, 33, and married, left for Mound City, S. D., where he has accepted a Methodist Episcopal church pastorate.

Eight years ago Kenyon slew his father and saved his mother from a death blow. Two years ago he applied for a local preacher's license, but failed to pass the examination held at Marysville. He continued his duties, however, and was granted a minister's certificate at the Upper Sandusky conference last April.

BEAT THE BOOKMAKERS

THE ONLY MAN WHO EVER MADE A KILLING WAS "PITTSBURG PHIL."

HE WAS A GENIUS OF A RARE TYPE

Bookmaker Has the Best of it, Yet Comparatively Few of Them Weather Storms Incident to the Game.

In the last 20 years there has been only one man who is known to have been successful at beating "the race-track game" to a conspicuous degree, says the Broadway Magazine. That was George E. Smith, better known as "Pittsburg Phil." He was a genius, and geniuses are rare. He paid for his success with his life. He got so that he was a monomaniac. He thought, talked and had interest only in racing. The passion consumed his vitality. Nearly all the men who were prominent as big betters when he was one of the leading figures on the turf have fallen by the wayside.

Michael F. Dwyer, whose wagers were colossal, went "broke," suffered complete physical collapse and was a wreck for the last few years of his life. Riley Grannan, whose pyrotechnic rise made him a national figure, has been lucky enough of recent years to get occasional employment as a bookmaker's cletrk. Joe Yeager, who thought nothing of betting $5,000 on a race, lasted less than one season. Of the crop of plungers that followed this quartet not one is known to be ahead of the game. "Davy" Johnson, who was the biggest better last year, has gone "broke" more times than it is pleasant to recall, and he finished the season with very little money, despite the fact that in Roseben he has had one of the most remarkable horses the world has ever seen.

The better thinks the bookmaker has the best end of it. He has; yet comparatively few of the bookmakers weather the financial storms incident to the game. Of 100 who "weighed in" at the beginning of last season less than fifteen were doing business at the end of the racing year. One of the most experienced bookmakers in America. "Eddie" Burke, lost six "bank rolls" in one season. The bank roll, in the parlance of the ring, is the capital back of the bookmaker.

The public hears much of the winnings made by the bookmakers, but the losses are announced rarely. One of the things the public does not appreciate it that many of the bookmakers are only managers or partners in the "books" they make. Wall street men, saloon keepers, business men and politicians frequently subscribe to the bankroll of bookmakers, and occasionally a woman is the backer of a bookmaker.

The better also thinks that the horse owner has superior opportunities for "beating" the racing game. This time he is wrong. Few horse owners get rich. Most of them die poor. There are few owners who have so good judgment in regard to the horses under their charge as have the really observant men who make a business of betting. If anything, the opinion of the dispassionate "handicapper" or student of form is more reliable. The majority of horse owners get financial indigestion from betting on their own horses.

Howard's Call

HE girl in the ruffled lace waist shook her head regretfully. "Isn't it a shame!" she said to the young woman in the velvet suit. "I'd just love to come over and play cards this evening, but Howard Magruder is coming to call. Such a nuisance!"

"Telephone him that you have a headache," cheerfully suggested the girl in velvet.

"I think such fibs are disgraceful!" declared the girl in the ruffled lace waist, firmly. "No matter what it cost me I should scorn to employ such a method to escape an unwelcome caller. I—"

"Seems to me Howard calls here an awful lot for an unwelcome person," suggested her friend. "You never used to be slow about getting rid of people you didn't want to see. Remember how you made me go to the door and tell Tom that you had been called out of town when all the while you were giggling behind the parlor portieres?"

"I was very young and thoughtless then," said the girl in the ruffled waist. "I see now how wrong it was.

"Bring Howard along," said the girl in velvet, who had an inspiration. "I can make up another table—"

The young woman in the ruffled lace waist interposed, sweetly: "That is just like you, but I shall not let you upset all your plans out of your kindness of heart. I'll suffer a stupid evening all by myself while you are having a good time. Besides, who knows but that cards may be Howard's besetting sin? I don't want to tempt him. I'm sure I don't know what I can find to talk about for a whole evening with him. Isn't it dreadful when a man comes and keeps coming—"

"You could tell him you had an engagement when he asked— Oh, I forgot your prejudice against white lies," said the other. "But what an awful time you must have if every unpleasant person who wants to call on you calls and you don't stop him."

"I don't call Howard an unpleasant person," said the girl in the ruffled lace waist, stiffly. "I should hate to call any of my friends that. He has a very bright mind."

"But why don't you like him?" persisted the girl in velvet.

The young woman in the ruffled lace waist frowned. "I never said I didn't like him, did I?" she inquired. "You are so literal! Of course I don't mean that I care especially about him. Not in the least. If he'd only give me time to think whether I do like him, but he is here so often that I am simply tired to death of him."

"Seems to me you went to an awful lot of trouble dressing up for him when you care so little for his opinion," said the girl in velvet, suspiciously.

"I always try to look as well as possible," explained the girl in the ruffled lace waist, coldly. "I should have put on this gown even if Howard was not coming. I don't care whether he admires me or not. I am perfectly indifferent to his opinion."

The maid entered with a note that had just come by messenger and the young woman in the ruffled lace waist read it eagerly. A wave of disappointment swept her face. "It's from Howard," she said. "He can't come tonight because the president of his company is in town and has to see him. Of all the—"

"How fine!" cried her friend in velvet, joyously. "Now you can come to my house after all and have a good time."

"I suppose I might as well," said the girl in the ruffled lace waist, gloomily. "There's no use staying at home and wasting this dress on an empty room! I have my opinion of a man who breaks an engagement!"

"I believe you are sorry he isn't coming!" cried her friend in velvet, amazedly.

"Why, of course not," protested the girl in the ruffled waist, stifling a sigh. "It—it's just the principle of the thing."—Chicago Daily News.

ENGAGED ON FRIDAY

Jilted on Sunday, Married to Another on Tuesday.

Engaged on Friday, jilted on Sunday, re-engaged on Monday, married on Tuesday.

This is the strenuous experience of Elton Blakeslee, lover, 79 years old, of 8505 Woodland avenue, veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, and a widower of only seven months, says a Cleveland, O., dispatch.

About a week ago the veteran announced his engagement to his housekeeper, Mrs. Wilfong, who had nursed him through a spell of sickness. He was happy in the coming event, but at that time the prospective bride was dubious.

"There's many a slip between the cup and the lip," she remarked when the engagement was announced.

The sting of those words came to the veteran wooer Sunday afternoon, when the woman refused to marry him.

"Yesterday morning I was home when Mrs. Wilfong's niece came to the house with another woman," said Blakeslee. "She was Mrs. Anna Felon. In five minutes I had proposed to her and she was wearing the engagement ring."

They were married Tuesday night.

THE END TO "DOC" FRAME

HE ORIGINATED BLACKBOARD SYSTEM FOR ALL THE POOLROOMS.

T GREW TO BE A GREAT BUSINESS

One of the Old Time Sporting Men of the West, Long Identified With Kansas City—His Advice to Wayward Boys.

James A. Frame, one of Kansas City's early sporting men, died this morning at the home of S. E. Ellis, 106 East Thirty-third street, says Thursday's Kansas City Star. He was 80 years old and had been ill for weeks. The funeral will be held from the house at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Burial will be in Elmwood cemetery.

"Doc" Frame was a picturesque character. He was a man with a bright mind, and in the early days of Kansas City history possessed a fortune. When the sporting fraternity reveled in the north end districts, in rooms where light came from oil lamps, where sawdust was the carpet and tinseled paper on the walls, "Doc" Frame was a leader.

He was known in those days as the man who "never turned a trick," and since then was said to be absolutely honest. One of his friends said this morning he often heard "Doc" Frame say to young men who were becoming wayward:

"Boys, stay away. You are going against my game, and, you know!"

"'Doc' Frame was educated for the ministry," this friend said. "He was born in Virginia of good parentage and he studied hard in his days at school. He came out west and studied law at St. Joseph. In 1849, when the gold fever struck the country, Mr. Frame joined in the throng that sought the golden nuggets in California. And in the mining camps out there he learned the game of cards. He did not succeed in his search for a mine. It was about 1867 that he came to Kansas City and mingled with the sporting men. He learned to love race horses. He watched their performances—kept a record of their races.

"In 1884 'Doc' Frame had $75,000 in the bank. That year he went into business at 511 Delaware street with John Bishop and W. H. Christy, and he perfected the blackboard system for pool room races. Bets on the races were registered there on a small blackboard. Gradually the 'system' was enlarged until it became practically what it is today. The odds on the horses, the names of the jockeys, the weights, and all such information was given. It was the beginning of pool room business in this country.

"But his money came and went. He finally lost heavily and quit. One day he had money, the next he had none, but wealthy or 'broke,' he was as happy and cheerful as any man."

Mr. Frame was married in 1870 to Miss Lou Clehous. Two daughters were born to them, both of whom now live in Kansas City.

Seen frequently together in the early part of the 80s were "Doc" Frame and Henry D. Teas, known everywhere as "Hank." Teas died Tuesday. At one time also he was well known in sporting circles and is said to have been one of the best informed race horse men in the country.

Away back in the latter part of the 60s or the early 70s a young farmer boy drove up to Market square in Kansas City with a load of wood. He had driven there many times before from his home near Shawnee town, sold his wood and driven home. But on this particular day some young men inveigled the farmer boy into a room and drew him into a game of cards.

"We'll get his money—this farmer's money—they thought, as they sat down to a green covered table.

But, somehow, it wasn't easy. When they held good "hands" he held one better. When a particularly valuable stake was on the board he seemed to hold a particularly valuable hand and he won money.

This young man was "Hank" Teas, and this was his entrance into Kansas City sporting circles. He played more games in town. He became acquainted in Marble hall, a palatial house on Main street, between Fifth street and Missouri avenue. It was headquarters for the plungers. Finally, he had accumulated a considerable amount of money and opened a place of his own on Missouri avenue. He opened another near it on Main street and another in the West bottoms.

"He got a lot of money," one of his friends said today. The farmer boy developed into an expert. One of his places was run by a fellow known as 'Buttermilk Jake.' It was about 1885, I think, that one night 'Buttermilk Jake' closed shop and ran away with all the money in the bank.' Next year—I believe it was 1886—'Hank' Teas quit the cards and turned to horses. He became an authority, and at the time of his death he knew the record of every horse of any consequence that has ever raced before the public."

The funeral of Henry Teas will be held at Lenexa, Kan. The body will be sent there at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. He leaves a wife in Kansas City and a daughter in Seattle, Wash.

THE MASK OF HEALTH

Few People Are Really as Well as They Look—Cause and Remedy.

Many people in Sedalia, both men and women, who believe themselves to be in perfect health, are often in the greatest danger.

Indigestion, which is so common a trouble, is the principal cause of the greater share of the general poor health. It has misleading symptoms that seem to have no reference to the stomach, such as headache, sleeplessness, specks before the eyes, pains in the back and side, etc.

The success of physicians everywhere with the prescription that is now embodied in Mi-o-na stomach tablets has made this remedy in the last few years the acknowledged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Mi-o-na is prepared expressly o strengthen the digestive organs and its use for a few days puts the whole digestive system in such shape that it can care for all the food that is eaten without pain or distress.

CHICAGO BEAT "GIANTS"

IN THE SECOND GAME OF THE SERIES BY CLOSE SCORE OF THREE TO TWO.

TAYLOR HAD BEST OF M'GINNTIY

The Former St. Louis Twirler Let New York Down With Four Hits, While the Lakeside City Boys Got Ten.

Chicago, June 7.—In the presence of eighteen thousand delighted fans the voracious Cubs gnawed some more fringe off the tattered Giants yesterday, with the score of 3 to 2. The crowd which saw the trick turned was as large as it was possible to get inside the park, and fully eight thousand were turned away from the gates besides.

Wednesday the mighty Mathewson was pounded all over the sward by the Cubs, so yesterday McGraw sent in "Iron Man" McGinnity in hopes of stemming the batting tide.

After eight hits had been made off his delivery he was dragged back and Wiltse sent in for the final inning. The Cubs made one hit off Wiltse. Meanwhile Brakeman Jack Taylor made the Giants eat out of his hand, giving them but four hits for the entire session.

In addition to his gilt-edged twirling he made two hits, causing much surprise on both sides. One came in the third and the other in the fourth, this latter aiding materially in scoring the run which eventually gave the Cubs their margin of victory.

Cihcago scored two runs in the third, after two were out, clever sliding to the home plate by Randall and Sheckard being the features. Randall was assisted materially by Shannon's miscalculation. He let Sheckard's drive past short get through. Seymour made a splendid throw to the plate, but Randall dove under Bowerman, winning by an eyelash.

Sheckard repeated the trick when Steinfeldt's smash rebounded from McGinnity toward the plate, Joe's attempt to scoop the ball up to Bowerman proving ineffectual. In the fourth inning Evers led off with a hit. Taylor singled and a long fly by Randall brought in the winning run.

In the eighth the Giants appeared dangerous for the first and only time. Powerman & McGann opened with singles to center, and the crowd began to sit up and take notice. Slagle's poor throw in advanced each man a base Both scored on Dahlen's single. Corcoran sacrificed for the first out. Strang came to bat for McGinnity, but he flied to Slagle. Shannon walked and Brown flied to Slagle, ending the agony.

CASE OF WM. D. HAYWOOD

FOR THE KILLING OF FORMER GOV. STEUNENBERG IN IDAHO.

J. H. HAWLEY'S ADDRESS TO JURY

Wife of the Defendant Was Wheeled Into Court and Presented With a Bunch of Red Roses by Mrs. Adams.

Boise, Idaho, June 4.—The trial of Wm. D. Haywood for the murder of former Governor Steunenberg began in earnest this morning, when, immediately after the convening of court, James H. Hawley commenced his address to the jury.

The court room filled up quickly with those who came to hear the opening statement of the prosecution and first witnesses in the famous case.

The jury filed in promptly, but there was a brief delay, owing to the fact that the defendant was said to be none too well.

Haywood was a trifle pale as he took his seat a few minutes later, but declared he felt quite well.

When Mrs. Haywood was wheeled into court in her invalid chair she was handed a large bunch of red roses by Mrs. Steve Adams, wife of one of the men said to have been involved in the alleged conspiracy.

Mr. Hawley said in his address they expected to prove that the officers and executive committee of the Western Federation of Miners were responsible not only for the death of Steunenberg, but scores of others besides. The defense objected, but the objection was overruled. In reply to a question from the court Mr. Hawley said he expected to prove everything he said.

Hawley said the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners always aimed at controling not only the organization of the Western Federation of Miners, but the governments of different states where the organization existed.

Mr. Darrow again objected, on the ground that the statement is a "pure piece of rhetoric and no part of the statement of the case."

Mr. Hawley asked not to be interrupted "by this counsel."

Counsel argued at some length, and both Hawley and Darrow lost their patience.

Judge Wood smoothed the matter over, Mr. Hawley agreeing that the defense should hold the right of objection to every statement without interruption.

Mr Hawley said he would prove that the Western Federation of Miners "left a trail of blood, traded in blood, hired paid assassins and collected huge sums of money which they used and squandered to carry out the objects of the few men of the "inner circle."

He said he would show that the "inner circle" used this emergency fund to hire the best legal talent to defend those of their circle charged with crime.

Mr. Hawley drew an affecting word picture of the assassination of Steunenberg, and described the arrest of Orchard.

Mr. Hawley said they would prove that after Orchard's arrest he received a telegram signed "M," which was followed by the presence at Caldwell of Miller, one of the counsel now defending Haywood.

Mr. Hawley said the prosecution would produce the letter from Pettibone to Orchard when the latter was in jail.

Mr. Hawley announced that Orchard had made a full confession to McPartland, and that Orchard and McPartland would be on the stand.

Hawley said that he would prove that the "inner circle" was responsible for the death of Arthur Collins at Telluride, Colo., and many other people in Colorado and elsewhere.

Mr. Hawley charged that the blowing up of the Independence depot in Colorado causing the death of fourteen [illegible] to be the direct instigation of Haywood. He said Orchard and Adams committed this and other crimes on the specific request of Haywood.

Mr. Hawley concluded his address at 11:06 o'clock.

Mr. Darrow announced that the defense would reserve its opening statement until the state's case had been closed.

C. F. Wayne was the first witness called.

Wayne was an eyewitness to the murder of Steunenberg.

The second witness was Dr. Gue, who attended Steunenberg the night of the murder. Neither Wayne nor Gue was cross-examined by the defense.

Rice, of Caldwell, an attorney and N. S. Ellis, a Caldwell merchant, testified to the presence of Thomas Hogan, alias Orchard, at Caldwell prior to the murder.

Both Rice and Ellis were cross-examined by Richardson.

A. J. Ballentine was called to the stand, and court took a recess till 2 o'clock this afternoon.

New Orleans, La., June 3.—The sentence of the Savannah court in the famous Green and Gaynor case, involving fraud in government contract work in Savannah harbor, amounting to over $500,000, was affirmed today in an opinion handed down by the United States circuit court of appeals.

The sentence of four years' imprisonment each and a fine aggregating $575,000 against the two defendants will now have to stand unless a further appeal to the supreme court is taken.

WERE PUT OFF A TRAIN

BECAUSE THEY WERE SLOW IN PRODUCING TICKETS ALREADY BOUGHT.

TWO BROTHERS DRANK TOO MUCH

Were Ejected in the Dark and Started to Walk to Town, When One of Them Fell Through Trestle and Was Drowned.

Seaford, Del., June 4.—So dark that you could not see your hand before you, the wind blowing a gale of 60 miles an hour, rain falling in torrents, Julius Henry, 27 years old, and his younger brother, Frank, were put off a south-bound passenger train here at the end of the long bridge crossing the Nanticoke river by Conductor John Layfield, of the Pennsylvania railroad, because they were slow in producing their tickets, which they had bought, but which Julius misplaced.

Conductor Layfield became incensed at their delay, and, as both had been drinking, thought they were trying to beat their way.

Julius found the tickets after being put off, and they started to walk back to Seaford.

When in the middle of the long bridge Julius, a few feet in advance of his brother fell over into thirty feet of water. His brother called to him, but there was no response He then crawled on his hands and knees to the end of the bridge, where he notified the bridge tender.

Both young men lived in Laurel, Julius having recently been married. His young wife is prostrated. Hundreds of people dragged for the body without result. Relatives say they will institute proceedings against the railroad company.

PROBING A POOR HOUSE

Board Finds Fault With Sullivan County Institution.

Jefferson City, June 4.—It is probable that the state board of charities and corrections will appeal to the grand jury of Sullivan county to have wrongs which the board believes exists at the poor house in that county corrected.

Among the poor houses visited by the board since the last meeting were those in Callaway, Audrain, Nodaway, Sullivan, Linn and Livingston counties.

It is the intention of the board to visit evtry poor house in the state. The board found much to criticise in a general way regarding all these poor houses, but nothing of a startling nature, it is said, except in Sullivan county.

A number of jails were visited and the St. Joseph and Fulton asylums for the insane, industrial home for girls at Chilicothe, reform school for boys at Boonville, colony for the feeble minded at Marshall, and the confederate and federal homes.

HE'S GIANT IN STATURE

CASKET FOR CARL SHACKLES IS TOO BIG TO GO INTO THE HOUSE.

DEAD BOY WEIGHED 550 POUNDS

Coffin is 6 Feet 10 Inches Long, 38 Inches Wide, 22 Inches Deep and Had to Be Left on the Front Porch.

Zanesville, Ohio, June 4.—Carl Shackles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shackles, of Summerfield, Noble county, died yesterday after an illness of but 10 hours.

In one respect, at least, he was perhaps the most remarkable boy in Ohio. Only 16 years old, he was 6 feet 6 inches tall and weighed 550 pounds.

Until five years ago he was just an ordinary boy, physically normal and intellectually brilliant. At that age he began to expand and lengthen out, and it is believed that he had not yet attained his full growth.

A special casket, made in this city for the body, will be shipped to Summerfield. The casket is 6 feet 10 inches long, 38 inches wide and 22 inches deep, and is too large to be taken into the Shackles home.

It will be placed on the front porch, and, after the funeral services, the body will be placed in the casket outside of the house.

The father of this remarkable boy is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 210 pounds. The mother weighs 160 pounds. He was the only child and had turned down several offers from circus men. Heart trouble caused death.

AFTER COAL CARRIERS

Proceedings Probable Against Five Eastern Railroads.

Washington, June 4.—There is reason to believ ethat action will be taken within the next ten days against the Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and Reading, Chesapeake and Ohio, the Atlantic Coast Line and the Seaboard railways for alleged violation of the Sherman act, as a result of the report from Messrs. Todd and Simpson, appointed some months ago by the president to investigate both the anthracite and bituminous coal carrying railroads.

Attorney General Bonaparte said yesterday that it is intended to first submit certain questions of importance both as to the law and the policy of the department to the president.

A BOMB WAS THROWN

Two Detectives Killed, Five Wounded and Thirty Arrests.

Lodz, Russia, June 4.—Two detectives were killed and two soldiers and three other persons were wounded in the street here today by a bomb thrown at the police by terrorists.

Infantry later opened fire on the crowd, wounding thirteen persons. Thirty were arrested.

MISS ETHEL COMING OUT

EVENT NOW LOOKED FORWARD TO BY SOCIETY AT THE CAPITAL.

A DAUGHTER OF THE PRESIDENT

Young Girl of 17 Years Who Is Just Budding Into Beautiful Womanhood—Resembles Sister, Mrs. Longworth.

Washington, D. C., June 4.—Washington society is beginning to speculate on the possibility of Miss Ethel Roosevelt, now in her seventeenth year, being presented on New Year next.

Although she will not have finished her school course here in the National Cathedral School for Girls, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt, it is said, feel that she should see as much of White House events and entertainments as possible, and, while she will not leave school, she will appear more generally than before.

Miss Ethel is budding into a very handsome looking woman, and has all of the frank charm, with added vivacity, of her sister, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth.

She is a devotee of horseback riding, and, with her mother, can often be seen on the boulevards and in the parks around the city.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel are among the best horsewemen in Washington, and are quite as much at home on a good horse as they are in a drawing room.

Mrs. Roosevelt invariably wears the plainest of black broadcloth habits, made with a severely tight-fitting jacket and rather a short skirt.

She usually wears a sailor hat, though in the past winter she appeared with a derby. Over her hat and face she wears a thin black chiffon veil, tied down closely over the hat about the neck.

Miss Ethel frequently wears a black suit, with white shirt waist and a black and white sailor hat.

SQUARE DEAL FOR WOMEN

President Roosevelt Advocates An Eight-Hour Day for Wives.

Washington, June 4.—"Give your wife an 8-hour day," was President Roosevelt's advice to a large crowd of workingmen whom he addressed from the platform of his car on his return trip from the west.

"I've mighty little use," he said, "for the man who is always declaiming all of having an 8-hour day for his self and does not think anything at add of having an 8-hour day for his wife. Give fair play all around and remember that the woman needs fair play even more than the man. I believe in an 8-hour day for the man, but I want to see the man's wife given as good a show as the man.

"Remember that your first duty in being a good neighbor is to be a good neighbor to those who are nearest to you. Be a good neighbor to your own wife and children."

TAKE NO MORE ORDERS

Shoe Machinery Company Calls Off Its Traveling Agents.

Spencer, Mass., June 4.—A copy of what appeared to be a general order sent out from the headquarters of the United Shoe Machinery company in Boston has been received by the company's agent in Spencer, instructing him not to take orders for any more machinery until further orders had been received from the company.

The signing of the "anti-shoe machinery bill" by Governor Guild on Saturday is supposed to be the reason for the order. The anti-shoe machinery bill prohibits any manufacturer of shoe machines from leasing such machinery on condition that the product of no other shoe machinery manufacturer shall be leased by the lessee.

Young Boys Arrested.

Three young boys, all of respectable and well to do parentage, were arrested by the constabulary late yesterday, charged with stealing a small quantity of supplies from the storeroom of the American Telegraph and Telegraph company. The preliminary examination will be held in Judge Rickman's court Saturday, all three being released on a $100 bond each. Other arrests will follow.

Circuit Court Adjourns.

(Sunday's Daily.)

After disposing of the following entry Saturday morning, Judge Louis Hoffman adjourned circuit court to court in course, and Monday the first day of the June term of criminal court will be convened:

T. J. Dobbins vs. J. W. Marsh, appellant, contract; motion for new trial overruled and plaintiff excepts and appeal granted to the Kansas City court of appeals.

SURE ENOUGH BURGLAR

NIGHTMARE HABITS FOOLED HIS WIFE AND COST HIM SUM OF $500.

WOKE AND FOUND MAN IN HIS ROOM

Grappled With the Burglar, but His Better Half Thought He Was Wandering in His Sleep and Thief Got Away.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 4.—Because he was subject to nightmare, David Ordway, of No. 22 Elmwood street, in Lakewood, a suburb, lost jewelry valued at $500. He was awakened by a burglar in his room, and, hoping to frighten the burglar, he yelled at the top of his voice.

Then he tried to get up and chase the midnight invader, but just as he was making a flying leap out of bed his wife, aroused by her husband's screams, seized him.

"Burglars! Burglars!" shouted Ordway while trying to free himself from his wife's grasp. But she held on with a death-like firmness and urged him to lie down and go to sleep.

She thought he had the nightmare and would injure himself if permitted to pursue the phantom robber. The couple had a lively tussle, Ordway finally tearing away and running downstairs with his wife hot on his trail.

When his wife saw an open window through which the thief had escaped, she realized that her husband had been in dead earnest. Two diamond rings and a diamond stud were missing from their bedroom dresser.

"Dave has nightmares frequently," she said last night, "and I was afraid he would tumble down stairs, so I grabbed him."

SURPRISES FOR SCHMITZ

It Is Promised That the Prosecution Will Spring Them.

San Francisco, Cal., June 4.—When the trial of Mayor Schmitz on the charge of extortion began this morning it was expected the jury would be completed without delay.

The special prosecutor announced that the actual trial would begin immediately after the jury is impaneled.

It is understood the prosecution will spring several surprises in the line of evidence against the defendant.

BLACK HAND IN MISSOURI

Demands $200 of Farmer or Will Blow Up House.

Rich Hill, Mo., June 4.—Dave Arnold has received two threatening letters signed "The Black Hand," demanding that $200 be placed under a rock at a designated spot near Harwood.

The writer threatens to dynamite Arnold's house should he fail. Arnold has turned over the letters to the county officers.

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 3.—Cerda Krum Nathansen, a celebrated Danish actress, was shot and mortally wounded by her husband yesterday. The husband afterwards committed suicide. Jealousy was the cause.

CHLOROFORM WAS USED

IN ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP BEAUTIFUL GIRL AT ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

PURSUED BY A WEALTHY LOVER

Miss Marie Love is Undoubtedly Being Followed By a Man of Wondeful Ingenuity and Numerous Resources.

Atlanta, Ga., June 4.—A startling chapter in the pursuit of Miss Marie Love, beautiful daughter of Dr. Love, by Raymond Trustlow, who styles himself a Chicago millionaire, was written when a man broke into Miss Love's room and attempted to chloroform her.

The attempt was baffled by Miss Love, who screamed as the man leaped through the window. He dropped a bottle of chloroform on the girl's bed when she screamed, and escaped as Dr. and Mrs. Love answered their daughter's cry. As the man leaped out of the window he cried out:

"I will get Marie yet!"

Dr. Love summoned Captain Jett, of the police force, who examined the premises and found signs showing that a man had entered the girl's bedroom. Jett also found a note on the veranda of the Love home signed "Raymond Trustlow," reading as follows:

"I am going to have Marie for my wife by fair means or fowl. It is useless to oppose me. By the 16th of June she will be a happy bride."

For three months Miss Love has been pursued by "Raymond Trustlow," who avows his purpose of marrying her. Atlanta detectives have been unable to trap Trustlow, though they have been on his heels several times.

Messrs. Arnold and Rossner, leading lawyers of Atlanta, have investigated the case at the request of Dr. Love, and report that Miss Love is undoubtedly being pursued by a man of wonderful ingenuity and of boundless resources.

The Loves reside in a fashionable quarter of Atlanta.

MANY WILL TAKE ISSUE

Dr. Wiley Insists That Mothers Nurse Their Babies.

Washington, June 4.—"Of each 1,000 babies fed in any other but the natural way," said Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, yesterday, no less than 252 die before reaching the age of one year. These figures are given after a study of all the available statistics on the subject."

Dr. Wiley hopes to make the bureau of chemistry the greatest engine in the world for preserving human health and life. The new pure food law opens a wide field of operation in this direction.

But Dr. Wiley says the chemist can do little or nothing for the young baby. It is up to the mothers.

"Only forty-seven in every 1,000 die," he continued, "when the babies are fed in the natural way. Taking all babies, the average death rate is 178. Thus, 100 babies in every 1,000 are sacrificed because it is not fashionable for mothers to nurse their own offspring. It is true that in many cases the mother is not responsible for the lack of nourishment, but the responsibility lies with an ancestor of hers."

A 22-STORY HOTEL

It Is to Be Erected in Chicago and Cost $3,000,000.

Chicago, Ill., June 3.—Arrangements have been completed at last for the erection of a great modern hotel at the northwest corner of La Salle and Madison streets. The plans contemplate a building which in size, architectural beauty and completeness of arrangements and fittings not only will be far in advance of any existing one, but will be, it is claimed, the peer of any in the world.

The building will be twenty-two stories high—the highest hotel building in the world, and also the largest hotel building ever constructed under an original contract.

It will contain nearly 14 acres of floor space and will have 1,150 rooms—about 100 more than the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

It will cost between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 and its furnishings will bring the total cost up to about $3,500,000. It is planned to begin the wrecking of the present buildings on the property about August 5, next, and to have the building completed in fifteen months.

Nothing is given out concerning the identity of those who are to finance the project beyond the statement that they are Chicago and New York capitalists. It is announced, however, that George H. Gazeley, late of New York, will have the direct managementof the hotel. Gazeley was connected with the Waldorf-Astoria for seven years and later became manager of the St. Regis.

YOUTH WAS CRAZED

"Thrown Over" By a Woman, Pursued and Killed Another.

Freeport, Ill., June 3.—A nineteen-vear-old youth, crazed with drink, pursued Mrs. Edna Rumelhagen for half a block on the principal business street of the city, flourishing a revolver and twice firing at her, but missing.

He caught up with the fleeing woman in front of George W. Eaton's grocery, and, when so close to her that the powder burned her dress, he fired a third time, the ball entering her body below the left shoulder and piercing the heart. She fell into Eaton's arms and died.

The man is a stranger here, and so far as known was a stranger to his victim also. He said he killed Mrs. Rumelhagen, mistaking her for a Rockford woman, who had "thrown him over."

THE PEEVISH MRS. GOULD

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE WITH EMPLOYES AND TRADESPEOPLE IS THE REPORT.

A GREAT SENSATION IS PROMISED

Wouldn't Stand for a Yacht Sailing Master With Pink Whiskers—Cabled Her Gardener's Discharge.

New York, June 3.—When Mrs. Howard Gould's suit for divorce comes up for trial the husband will seek to show that his wife, among other things, has been in almost constant trouble and litigation with tradesmen and employes. The alleged extravagant eccentricities of Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould will be aired in detail when her husband puts in his defense to her suit for separation and alimony of one-quarter of a million dollars a year.

The discharge of a yacht sailing master whose whiskers were red is said to be only an illustration of her peevishness. One day in Thebes, Egypt, it is said, Mrs. Gould suddenly decided that her gardener at Castle Gould on Long Island did not suit her. She had not seen him for months nor had she received any advere report of his conduct. She cabled to him that he was discharged. The gardener cabled back that he would go when he received a month's wages. When he sent his cablegram the Goulds were journeying up the Nile. It cost $110 to carry the cablegram from the gardner to Mrs. Gould.

In December, 1904, she was sued by Mme. Brauo and Mme. Leroyer for $3,700 for frocks. Sixteen gowns were enumerated in the bill, ranging in price up to $500.

In 1901 she was sued by the dressmaking firm of Smith and Dillon for $1,955 for raiment she refused to pay for.

At about the time this suit was in the court Frank Chester Kingsland,an aristocratic young man, who occasionally had acted as private secretary for millionaires' families, had a thrilling experience with Mrs. Gould. She engaged him to help her in her business affairs in building Castle Gould.

She invited him to visit her on Long Island and talk the matter over. He says that he was received as a menial and put to work on a bundle of bills. The swagger young secretary went to work angrily. He did not remain on the job long—about two hours. At the end of that time Mrs. Gould came to him and delivered a few stinging criticisms of his methods. He immediately went back to New York and sent a bill to Mrs. Gould for $11.75. It was returned to him without comment, whereupon he wreaked his vengeance by receipting it and sending it back to the Goulds.

In 1903 Mrs. Gould did not like the methods of the mechanics who were at work and ordered that several hundred employes be discharged.

One of the many suits in which she was made the defendant was brought by Henry Jones Thaddeus, a Welsh portrait painter. She engaged his to paint a full length portrait of her with which, she said, to surprise her husband. She agreed to pay him $5,000 for the portrait, according to the artist. At the third sitting, when the work was half done, she informed the artist that he had not properly set the gown. She refused to sit again or pay for the work done. Taddeus obtained a judgment for $5,682.

The most famous suit against the Goulds was that of Abner Haydel, who was engaged to draw plans for Castle Gould, following the architecture of Kilkenny castle. He drew plans to which Mrs. Gould objected. When he argued with her she called him, he testified in court, "a damned architect," and said if he did not get out of the house she would have him thrown out. Haydel got a judgment for $25,000 that Howard Gould was compelled to pay'

Mrs. Gould found fault with the springs of a wagonette she had purchased from Cairn, Cross and company for $1,000. She said it was rickety and shook her when she rode in it. When the suit was tried she said she had bargained for "omnibus springs," and had got an entirely inferior article. The carriage makers won the suit. Howard Gould paid.

The suits growing out of the building of Castle Gould, which was a pet scheme of Mrs. Gould, aggregated more than $100,000. A builder got a judgment for $65,000, and Arthur E. Benedict, of Sands Point, N. Y., sued for $33,000 for construction work on green houses Mrs. Gould found fault with.

"WILLIE" SELL'S FAILURE

TO PASS HIS EXAMINATION IN TOPEKA FOR A PHARMACIST DIPLOMA.

NOT DISMAYED; WILL TRY AGAIN

Expects to Continue Work in Senator Griffin's Drug Store—Will Take Another Examination in Six Months.

"I'm taking my first vacation," said Willie Sell, who was recently pardondoned by Governor Hoch after having served twenty years in the state penitentiary for the murder of the Sell family on a farm near Erie, Neosho county, as he sat in the office of his friend and counsellor, Fred C. Slater, this morning, says Saturday's Topeka Journal.

"I am returning from Kansas City, where I took the pharmaceutical examination and failed to make the required grade to pass.

"I was not greatly surprised or disappointed, for though I had considerable experience in compounding prescriptions and work of that kind, I knew nothing of the mode of conducting examinations of this kind or of the technical knowledge necessary to secure a druggist's certificate. I will take another examination in about six months, and think that with the things I learned this time I will have no trouble in making the required grades.

"I could not think of passing through Topeka without stopping off and seeing Governor Hoch and Mr. Slater, who have been my friends without hope of remuneration or reward. Mr. Slater has given of his time and ability, and has been one friend who has done more for me than anyone else, and I want to publicly express my lasting gratitude to him. Governor Hoch, too, has done much for me, and I have his letter of advice in my pocket and I have carried it with me since I received it.

"Topeka is the most beautiful city I have ever seen, though it has changed much since I was here twenty-seven years ago. I was singing in a glee club at that time and Governor St. John's campaign was on, and I toured the state singing prohibition songs for the central committee."

"You sing some now?" was suggested.

"Oh, yes, a little, but I have not done much singing of late, and I expect that I am pretty badly out of tune."

Sell is a pleasant appearing young man whose age might easily be guessed at 25, though he admits he is 37. He is well dressed and neat appearing and willingly discusses all the different phases of the crime that caused him to spend twenty years of his life in a felon's cell and of which he claims he is entirely innocent. There are no crow's feet about his eyes or gray hairs on his head to indicate the troubles which have been his and apparently he bears no animosity towards those whe were responsible for his imprisonment.

"Many letters have been written to me from my old home district expressing sympathy and congratulation," said he, "though I know that some harsh things have been written and said about Governor Hoch in his action in pardoning me. There are but a few people who feel toward me as do these few, but, unfortunately, they are of the wealthy and influential class.

"Mr. Seth Wells has taken an active interest in the case against me and is responsible for considerable of the agitation against me in Neosho county, and this can be accounted for only in one way, politics. His mother might have been one of my principal witnesses but she was never placed on the stand for some reason. She was suffering from consumption and was sitting near a window and saw the three men ride up the street on the night of the murder, and Mr. Wells knows of this incident. The omission of her testimony is only one of the incidents showing some of the errors in the trial of my case. I have heard from nearly all of my relatives since my release. One of my uncles, Harrison Sell, who disappeared shortly after the murder, has never been heard of since, though we have made repeated attempts to locate him. I remember many incidents that occurred about the time of the crime, and particularly the visit of this uncle just a few days prior to the murder.

"There is no doubt in my mind that considerable more money was owned by my father than has ever been accounted for, but the fact that $275 was found in his pocket was one of the strong links in the chain of evidence which convicted me. The money represented his salary for school teaching for a full term and was drawn the day previously.

"I hold no ill feelings towards any one and shall try and follow the advice of Governor Hoch and my friends. I have a nice place in Senator Griffin's drug store at Nortonville and receive the best of treatment from everyone. I am behind the prescription case a great deal of the time, but as we handle notions I wait on the trade in all of the departments."

TRUMPET AND BASSOON

ART OF PLAYING WIND INSTRUMENTS AWAKENS NEW INTEREST.

Musical Contests of Ancient Greece —Why German Youths Become Skilled Musicians — What Americans Are Doing

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Boston, June 1.—Are Americans, who have long been accustomed to blow hard in many directions, about to become noted among the nations of the earth for their excellent blowing upon wind instruments? Until lately it was believed that a good cornetist, a good flutist, a good oboe player, could not be developed on this side of the water. A short time ago, however, a young cornetist who had learned his art entirely in the United States appeared before the king of England and won unstinted applause in the court of that royal connoisseur.

When American boys acquire such skill without going abroad for it, there is certainly something new in the wind. Heretofore, while occasionally a native American, who has started in early and practised late—usually to the discomfort of neighbors—has become sufficiently skilled to secure a violin or 'cello part in one of the important orchestras of the country, the performers on the pieces that require breath have almost invariably been drawn from abroad—the executants on the brass instruments being mostly Germans and those on wood wind French. In the fatherland, where nearly all young men must understand conscription, and where regimental bands are about as common as hand organs with us, good players are trained in great numbers. The brightest young Germans, in order to escape the necessity of shouldering a musket, begin as small boys to learn to play the cornet or flute. That means that when the time comes for going into the army they are virtuosi of high attainments.

In this country the disadvantages of conscription are fortunately not present. Of late, however, the growing importance of orchestras has set many young men wondering why all the positions demanding skill with flute, oboe, clarionet, bassoon, trumpet or French horn, should be filled from abroad. An ancient opposition exists between the instruments of string and wind, one dating back to the days when the lyre of Apollo was adjudged by competent listeners to have outplayed the flute of Marsyas. American musicians, for some reason, used to give preference to the string rather than to the wind. The infectious enthusiasm, however, of such performers as those of the Boston Symphony orchestra, many of whom teach at the New England Conservatory of Music, the oldest and largest of American music schools, has brought it about that many American candidates for musical honors are demonstrating that we have no national incapacity for "tunes blown by boy's mouth on a reed."

The names of C. Lenom, oboist, C. Vennini, clarionetist, Daniel Maquarre and Arthur Brooke, flutists, and L. Kleopfel, trumpeteer and cornetist, all familiar to Americans who attend the concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra when it is on the road, are of a character to give a little explanation of the present vogue of the wind instruments. These men, by virtue of their membership in the Boston Symphony orchestra, are past masters of their art. Those of their students who are sufficiently advanced to play in the conservatory orchestra are coached professionally during the rehearsals, and are thus put in line for orchestral work of the most difficult kind.

At the same time they are being initiated into the mysteries of a craft that, for all we know, goes back to the era of the ichthyosaurus and megatherium. Along with bones, at any rate, of animls now extinct, there was found some time ago in France a flute, straight cut, and provided with a mouth piece and with finger holes. The instrument itself was made of the bone of a reindeer, evidence, apparently, that the climate and zoology of France have altered radically. Other wind instruments of the Stone Age have been found in various countries.

The craft, too, is one which early became prominent in ancient Israel; and down to this very day at the Jewish New Year and the Feast of the Atonement, in urban synagogues, notes are sounded from the Jewish shophar, constructed in the old time way from a ram's horn and blown always to the accompaniment of ceremonial phrases, "Tahhee-oo, Schee-oo-min, Taru-o."

Of bamboo in far Oriental lands, of willow, of reeds, of bones of animals, the ancestors of the modern wind instruments are to be found in our museums, as in the department of musical instruments in the Metropolitan museum in New York City, or in the remarkable collection of old instruments at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston. In this latter, which has been enriched by bequests until it is one of the notable musical museums of the world, are specimens which show that human ingenuity has been able to make a wind instrument out of almost anything.

As they puff and blow during the rehearsals of the student orchestra, the young Americans appreciate something of the enthusiasm of the Greek trumpeteers at festivals and athletic games, when a youth was proud of bursting a blood vessel in his excess of zeal, as in the story of Harmonides, the flute player, who, wishing to astonish his audience, did so by expiring on the expiration of his first strenuous note. He had literally blown himself out in one breath.

Then as a background to modern efforts there are the stories of the evolution of the various wind instruments, which to the ordinary man look more or less alike, but which in the sight of the musician have each its capacities and excellencies, and each its defects which the skilful writer of orchestral music has taken into account. There is, for example, the story of the improvement of the flute, and indirectly of several other instruments, by the invention of Captain Gordon, of Charles the Tenth's Swiss guards, and the practical introduction of this invention, together with controversies that have filled whole volumes, by Theobald Boehm, in his new flute, constructed in 1832, one which for the first time provided that each note should speak independently out of a single hole, as though the remainder of the bore were entirely cut off, and that all keys in their position of rest should be permanently open. There has been and is still going on the perfecting of the oboe, the most artistic and most elaborate of wind instruments, adapted alike to sportive and light-hearted passages or for those that are slow, pleading and beseeching, suitable, as has been expressed, either for a wedding or for a funeral. The oboe was ingeniously improved sixty years ago by Triebert, upon the suggestion of Barret, who was a soloist in the Convent Garden orchestra. Since that time it has been an instrument of thirty-four notes, all good. It is superior in intensity and timbre to all the other wind instruments.

Withal, the young players must familiarize themselves with the clarionet, less distinctive than the oboe, but with even a greater range, one of forty-two notes, adaptive, capable of taking the part of several instruments. There is the bassoon, the sole bass in the wood wind group, an instrument of uneven quality, but absolutely necessary, though it presents difficult problems to the writer of orchestral music.

The trumpet and the cornet of the brass wind group are more limited in range, with only thirteen or fourteen notes, and with breaks in the scale such that, as has been expressed, the trumpet can only proceed like a sparrow hopping from branch to branch. For a long time the cornet superceded the trumpet in orchestral favor, but the reverse just now holds true. The cornet's technical advantages show to the best advantage in the secondary forms of musical art, in military and brass bands, or in such performances as those of the old days in Germany when it was a characteristic custom on Sundays and holidays to have the choral for the day played by a band of cornets and trombones standing in the tower in the principal church.

In this country in the early days little attention was paid to the wind instruments except by the royal military bands in the colonial capitals. In the rural districts the pitch pipe was the only counterpart to the fiddle. It is read, however, that in one of the most celebrated of Boston churches the accompaniment of the singing, before the introduction of the pipe organ, was given by flute, bassoon and violin-cello, and in the eighteenth century some advertisements of horns, flutes, clarionets and trombones give proof that band playing was beginning to be popular.

Gottlieb Graupner, the father of American orchestral music, he who started the Philharmonic society in Boston in the early nineteenth century, was an oboe player from a German regiment who settled in this country in 1797; and Carl Zerrhan, who in the middle nineteenth century did much for the cause of American music, started life as a flute player.

Could these pioneers witness the orchestral opportunities offered to ambitious young musicians at the Conservatory of Music today they would appreciate that in music as in all things else America is the land of promise.

THE BRIDE-TO-BE ELOPED

MISS CARRIE SMITH OF WEBSTER GROVES WEDS L. M. SHEPARDSON.

SURPRISE CAUSED FOR AN IOWAN

Persistent Suitor Wins Girl Night of Her Graduation and They Are Married the Following Night.

St. Louis, Mo., June 4.—Less than a week before the date set for her marriage to a distant sweetheart, Miss Carrie Smith, of 54 Sylvester avenue, Webster Groves, eloped and was married to a determined young man, who is said to have persistently vowed that he would see that "her marriage with the other man should not come about."

Louis M. Shepardson, about 22 years old, a rate clerk for the Illinois Central railroad, is the man who demonstrated that courting in person is more effective than courting by letter.

Harry G. Clark, who lives in Iowa, visited Miss Smith at her home last Thanksgiving and obtained her promsie to marry him.

The wedding day was set for Thursday. Plans were progressing without any apparent element of dissatisfaction. Miss Smith talked freely with her classmates about her approaching marriage, and had proudly displayed her almost completed trousseau. Last Friday her white wedding gown received the finishing touch from the dressmaker, and was fitted for the last time.

Friday evening Miss Smith was graduated from the Kirkwood High school. After the commencement exercises the class had a banquet. Mr. Shepardson was present and attentive to Miss Smith. It was a stormy night and he arranged to accompany her home, according to the statements of the class.

Because it was known that Mr. Shepardson continued to admire Miss Smith deeply, and because of the nearness of her wedding with Mr. Clark her friends are said to have remonstrated about such attentions being given and received, but entreaties did not aavil and the two went home through the storm together.

Saturday morning Miss Smith came to St. Louis on the pretext of playing at a concert but the propinquity of the sweetheart who pleaded his love in person on Friday night prevailed over the cold words of the letters of the distant lover, and the man who was to have arrived from Iowa Tuesday is left to mourn for the consequences of his delay and absence. Miss Smith was married to Mr. Shepardson Saturday and since then they have not been seen by friends or relatives.

At the Smith home the girl's mother refused to make any statement and did not admit that she had any knowledge of the marriage. She said her daughter was not at home.

Shepardson had been living with his mother and brother at 302 Gore avenue, Webster Groves. The home was closed Monday, and neighbors said no one had been there since Saturday.

Widow of a Member Who Suicided Asks for $1,100.

Mrs. Elizabeth Trigg, wife of the late Christopher Trigg, through Attorney Williams, Saturday sued the sovereign camp of the Woodmen of the World for $1,100 in the Pettis county circuit court.

Plaintiff states that her husband was a member in good standing of the Woodmen of the World, and, according to his benefit certificate, the lodge was to pay $1,000 insurance at his death, and also $100 for a monument to be erected over his grave.

According to the petition, Mr. Trigg died on December 31, 1906, but the order still refuses to pay the sum of the policy, and the amount due for the monument.

Summons were ordered issued to Cole county, returnable at the October term.

TINY MARK ON THE NECK

WAS FOUND ON THE VICTIM OF A MYSTERIOUS THUG IN BIRMINGHAM.

A CRIME MAY RESULT IN DEATH

Fifth Assault of Its Kind, and None of the Men Assaulted Have Ever Been Able to Tell How They Were Hit.

Birmingham, Ala., June 4.—Unable to speak, his neck broken, the result of a fearful blow from behind, just as other victims have been struck, James P. Mosley, a farmer, lies at the hospital unconscious and with one chance in a thousand for his life.

The almost lifeless body was found in the suburbs early yesterday morning. His pockets were rifled and his valuables were all gone.

He was on his way home when he was attacked by highwaymen, according to the theory of the police, who say that a bold set of men are operating, using some mysterious means of creeping up on their victim and then dealing a blow with a powerful weapon that, although not breaking the skin, leaves a tiny crimson mark in the back of the neck.

Mosley is the fifth victim, two of whom died with broken necks. Robbery has been the aim of each hold-up.

People in the outlying districts are terrorized in some localities. "The men with the gum shoes," as the highwaymen are now called, have baffled the efforts of the police and not a single clew has been left to work on.

None of the victims have ever been able to tell how or when they were hit, and the previous two who died never regained consciousness.

If you suffer from bloating, belching, sour stomach, indigestion or dyspepsia, take a Rings Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal, and overcome the disagreeable trouble. It will improve the appetite and aid digestion. Sold by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

TO LOOK AFTER MORALS

MISS GERTRUDE BEEKS GOING TO ISTHMUS OF PANAMA TO INVESTIGATE.

THE CHARGES OF REV. FERGUSON

They Were Discredited By Secretary of War Taft, Who Now Says He Wants All the Facts Made Public.

Washington, June 4.—Although the administration was disposed to ignore and make light of the scandalous charges by Rev. Ferguson in relation to moral and other conditions on the Panama isthmus, their reiteration evidently has induced Secretary of War Taft to take cognizance of them.

As a result, a New York woman, Miss Gertrude Beeks, secretary of the welfare department of the National Civic Federation, will sail for the isthmus next Friday to devote six weeks or more to a thorough investigation of the condition of the canal employes.

Miss Beeks, it is understood, has quasi authority from the secretary of war, although the investigation will be carried on really under the direction of the Civic Federation.

The report, it is pointed out, should be impartial, coming from such a source, and the administration wishes to have the Ferguson charges answered in that way.

Ralph Eastey, secretary of the Civic Federation, in New York, accompanied Miss Beeks here a few days ago, when they held a long conference with Secretary Taft.

While the Ferguson charges had to do solely with alleged immorality on the isthmus, it is understood Miss Beeks will take into account many other phases of the surroundings of the canal employes.

POST-DISPATCH IS SUED

MR. E. G. LEWIS WANTS $750,000 FROM PAPER AND POSTAL OFFICIALS.

BASED ON THE CHARGE OF LIBEL

Brings Action in the Name of the People's United States Bank—Papers Filed at Clayton, Missouri.

In a suit filed in the circuit court at Clayton Saturday afternoon, the People's United States bank, of which E. G. Lewis was president, sues to recover $750,000, alleging libel, from the Pulitzer Publishing company, James L. Stice, assistant postmaster; Robert M. Fulton, inspector in charge of this division of the postoffice department, and William T. Sullivan, a postoffice inspector, says the St. Louis Times.

The suit is based upon certain paragraphs which, the plaintiff alleges, appeared in the Post-Dispatch of May 31, 1905.

For printing these statements the plaintiff asks for $200,000 actual damages and $50,000 punitive damages.

The plaintiffs ask $400,000 actual damages for another statement and $100,000 punitive damages. The petition contains two counts.

A. E. L. Gardner, together with Barclay & Fauntleroy, are attorneys for the plaintiff and filed the suit.

The history of the battle of the E. G. Lewis Publishing company with the postoffice department has been a long and bitter one. It has made history of University City, where E. G. Lewis erected as handsome a publishing plant as there is in the world.

Mr. Lewis established a banking business in connection with his publication and was reported to be doing an immense business up to the time of the publication of articles attacking the enterprise.

Such prominence was given the matter that St. Louis and the west took sides, many favoring Lewis.

When the bank was closed Mr. Lewis asserted that he had paid dollar for dollar to every depositor. Owing to the fact that he had periodicals in which he could advertise, his business was reported to have grown to mammoth proportions.

After the bank was closed trouble came with the postoffice department. There was a difference of opinion as to Lewis coming within certain regulations as to the proper number of subscribers and as to the amount of postage he should pay. What class of mail his publications were to be was another point at issue. Recently Lewis announced that he would suspend publication of his Woman's Farm Journal.

FIRST PREMIUM A PENNY

Oldtimer Tells of Initial American Accident Policy.

Washington, June 3.—"The first accident policy ever issued in this country," said Senator Bulkely, of Connecticut, was for $5,000, and the premium paid was 1 cent.

"J. G. Batter, late president of the Eastern Insurance company, decided to introduce accident into the insurance of the United States. He organized the scheme, called his brother in and insured his safety on a trip from his office to the depot, two blocks away. If he was killed $5,000 was to be paid. His brother put up a penny for the policy and made the trip in safety.

"The big copper cent, carefully treasured, hangs today in the office of the company as the first money ever paid for an accident insurance policy on the American continent."

A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Mr. M. M. McCormick Celebrated His Eightieth Anniversary.

M. M. McCormick was given a delightful surprise at his home on South Vermont street on May 26th, the occasion being in anticipation of the celebration of his 80th birthday on May 22.

Mr. McCormick thinks he is the oldest settler in the county, he having moved here in 1830, when what is now Pettis county was a part of Saline county. Mr. McCormick writes the Democrat-Sentinel as follows:

"I was surprised Sunday, the 26th, when some of my old neighbors and friends came in on me from the country with well filled baskets, with all the good things that the appetite could wish for.

"Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Green, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Leiter and children, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Allcorn and children, Mrs. Mosby, Mrs. John T. Shy and Mrs. Yankee and children."

CHAPTER ON FASHIONS

CATHERINE MANN-PAYZANT IS UP-TO-DATE IN ALL HER SUGGESTIONS.

SHE TELLS HOW TO DRESS WELL

If You Have the "Dough," All That is Necessary is to Follow "Catherine's" Advice and You'll "Be in the Swim."

Special to Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, June 1.—Eyelet embroidery will remain in vogue just as long as its faithful adherents can keep it. Of all the needle work types it lends itself to the most lacy effects and is of all of them the most universally popular. Few strikingly new patterns crop out in it from year to year, for past years seem to have exhausted all of them that are desirable. Moreover, just now, with the liking for things quaint, the traditional wheel and sprig pattens are right in order.

Voile is as popular this season as it has been for the past two seasons, and now it is not only the checked and striped variety, but is a resurrection of the clan kind. The latter is often made up over figured lining, so the effect of the plain and the fancy materials are, in the end, about the same. Both the checked and striped voiles figure among the fancy sorts, and the colors are of the unaggressive kind, usually combining several shades of the one color of a soft tone with white. Occasionally one sees a voile with an embroidered dot or other design upon ground of delicate one-shade or two-shade check or stripe. The new plain voiles are finished in beautiful borders, and these can be made up most artistically, with panels of folds on the skirt and with fichu, draped yoke effect or bolero trimming on the corsage.

A pretty touch is given to a trig little tailor-made of pale grey by the fastening of the coat. The garment is held across the front by velvet loops, through which threads a pale blue ribbon scarf. The mushroom hat of natural cikired straw has a big bow which exactly matches the scarf. The bow and scarf are arranged to be easily taken off; and before this suit goes to the country for the season there are to be two other sets, one in black and the other in rose color, to give variety to a comtume that is expected to give hard and long service.

Rubberized pongee is the thing for smart practical motor and traveling wraps. The outside garment is ordinary fine quality silk pongee in natural color. Inside is a coat of fine rubber that makes the material absolutely water-proof. The price is $1.48 a yard.

The all-white frock is put in the back-ground somewhat by the tendency to give everything a touch of color. Some of the handsomest embroidered white gowns are trimmed with narrow bands of colored linen, which appear on the hems of the skirts and on the coats. These colored bands are now and then striped with white to add to the complexity. Yellow, green, pink and blue are used in this way. The colored material often makes up the collar and cuffs on gowns that are otherwise plain. Right in line with the idea is the dainty fashion for embroidered collar and cuff sets of thin colored lawn worked with white and edged with tiny knife-plaitings of the materials. Sometimes these sets are plain but for the hemstitched edges or a sprinkling of tiny embroidered dots. Narrow black taffeta scarfs are worn with the colors. The scarf of an attractive set seen lately passed through crocheted ring and ended in silk tassels.

The new redingote is being made by the best houses and worn more every day by the fashionables. The material is grey lainageg, threaded with grey of a darker tone, cut both plain and bias. The skirt is made without a bit of stiffening about the hem—as has been the mode in finishing skirts for many seasons, the aim being to produce a clinging appearance. A binding of velvet is put around the redingote and the revers are also of velvet; just below the shoulders in the back the fulness begins, finished both back and front with little curved pieces. The hat worn with the redingote is a real bell shape of heavy rice straw, white garnished, with a band of black taffeta, with three huge colored roses at the side. A narrow bandeau is placed under the brim in the front to lift it slightly from the head. The veil is black point d'esprit, with a border of delicate black lace. The veil is cut to fit the hat and is made curved in the upper part, wider in the back than in the front. This is done so it may lie in pretty folds about the face—just the dress all around.

A trimming seen very much in millinery and has had great success is the very long and much curled ostrich feather, which begins at the right side of the crown of the hat and winds across the brim to the left side, there falling in a shower at the back of the hat. The narrow front and wide back brim make most of the big chapeau rather picturesque.

The passing of the high bandeau is a great point in favor of the new millinery. Never has there been a style more ungainly or unbecoming than the tilting of the hat to an alarming degree at the side, back of the head and down over the brow. If it exists at all, the new bandeau is low, round, modest, and barely lifts the hat from the head and tilts it not at all. It is wound with a bit of illusion.

Styles both for hat and dress are undergoing a change already gradual, certainly, but noticeable. Gowns are becoming more graceful; the big, shapeless Japanese sleeve is adjusting itself to the figure, and jackets and redingotes are less ample in size. Hats are getting to be less quaint and neat in appearance. But it is disappointing to say that there is no particular smartness about them as yet.

A new style hat is reported, and the manufacturers are trying to make it go. It is suggestive of the shepherdess shape made with a low, oblong crown and curved broad brim, with a gentle sweep at the sides.

A word must be said about the bathing suits seen recently. Many of the most attractive bathing suits have white pongee tights buttoning around the waist. There is a buttoned strap around the knee. The bathing suit skirt is made of blue, brown, cardinal or tan colored serge or pongee, strapped with white, and there is a wide white collar.

Many of the smartest bathing suits are made without the wide gapping white collar. The neck is finished with a pointed front and there is a Windsor tie knotted or drawn through a gold buckle or ring. Other necks are finished double-breasted and piped with a contrasting color, and some of these are very smart, indeed.

One of the new bathing suits is quite empire in its tendencies. It is made of heavy washable silk, and the skirt is pleated around the waist band to give it fulness. The blouse is rather short in the waist and there is a folded girdle of silk, which is grought up very high in the back and pulled down very low in the front. This makes the suit particularly alaptable for the slender woman's form.

To enjoy motoring thoroughly one must wear the right clothes for it. Every woman should have one hat in her outfit that will fit snugly under a motor veil, and an example of one seen the other day is good for all purposes. It was a continental hat of brown straw, with the left side brim caught up with roses; the roses shade from brown to ecru. A soft fold of brown silk encircles the brim.

The small sailor is conspicuous among the motor hats. The favored models have the straight brim, trimmed with a handsome wing mount at one side, the left usually. Other models are trimmed with a deep silk band of soft silk about the crown. Loops of ribbon and roses are placed at the left side. Milliners are showing close little turbans in all shapes, and matching in shade, the motor coat; and with the motor hat goes the motor veil of chiffon, shirred around the sides and back of the turban, and leaving the face exposed. The veil is usually the shade of the straw, and sometimes a very sheer silk is used instead of the chiffon, answering the purpose of protecting the hair and neck, and wearing much better than the more flimsy material.

Motor hats and veils in black are very smart and are especially becoming to the slight fair woman with plenty of color, but they show the defects too plainly and easily to become as popular as their smartness might demand.—Catherine Mann-Payzant.

TWO ARE DEAD IN WRECK

IT OCCURRED IN KANSAS CITY SOUTHERN YARDS AT NEOSHO, MO.

RUNNING AT HIGH RATE OF SPEED

Several Were Injured When the Train Left the Track at Milling Company Switch at 6:30 Sunday Morning.

Neosho, Mo., June 3.—Passenger train No. 1, on the Kansas City Southern railway, due here at 6:59 last night, was wrecked a half mile west of the depot.

Two were killed and several injured, one seriously.

The dead:

Fireman Pepper, Pittsburg, Kas.

Frank Flinn, baggage checker, Joplin, Mo.

The train was running at a high rate of speed. At a street crossing the pony trucks jumped the track, and, being on a curve, the locomotive carried them about 150 feet, they running on the curve braces.

At this point the switch to the mill and elevator of the Neosho Milling company leaves the main track.

When the trucks struck the switch they threw the locomotive and tender on the switch, the cars continuing on the main track.

The locomotive, after running on the switch, jumped the track, turning over.

Under it were caught John Brannon, the engineer, who escaped with a few bruises, and Pepper, the fireman, who was crushed to death.

The baggage car was thrown from the track, turning completely over, to the north. The baggage man escaped with several broken ribs and several bruises.

The mail car did not leave the track, but the smoker and day coach were thrown from the track to the south, turning partly over.

Frank Flinn, the baggage checker, of Joplin, Mo., was caught under the smoker and crushed to death. The sleeper did not leave the track.

The passengers escaped with slight bruises and a shake-up.

Fireman Pepper lived at Pittsburg, Kas. He was a young man, and had been married only about three weeks.

Flinn had been on this run about two weeks, and leaves a young wife, having been married about four months.

TRUSTY SAVED A GUARD

WITH A BROOM HE BEAT OFF TWO REFORMATORY PRISONERS.

IT OCCURRED AT HUTCHINSON, KAS.

Both Assailants Were on the Eligible List for Parole, But Will Now Have to Serve Sentence Much Longer.

Hutchinson, Kas., June 3.—An attempt to escape by two prisoners at the state industrial reformatory here was foiled Saturday night by the bravery of Sherman Monroe, a guard, and the loyalty of a trusty, George Goodman.

John Simpson and Blair Riley sawed the bars from their cells and got into the corridor of cell house No. 2. When Monroe went to the third floor to register a call to the office, the prisoners attacked him with two iron bars, which they had broken from their beds and with which they had pried the bars of their cells open.

The officer was without a weapon, but protected himself as best he could and made his way toward the door of the cell house, calling loudly for help.

Goodman, the trusty, whose duty it is to prepare meals for the night force of guards, heard the cries. He grabbed a broom stick, the only weapon available, and started to the aid of the officer.

Monroe, in the meantime, had felled one assailant and was making his way to the door under the blows of the other. As soon as this assailant saw Goodman approaching he gave up the battle and the officer was able, with the assistance of the trusty, to make his way out of the cell house and lock the door.

Both Riley and Simpson were on the eligible list for parole and Simpson would have been paroled last month if the parole officer had been able to find a job for him. He would certainly have been paroled at the June meeting of the board of managers.

NEW GAME LAW OF STATE

THE SHALLS AND SHALL NOTS WHICH THE HUNTERS MUST OBEY.

IT GOES INTO EFFECT ON JUNE 16

The Essential Points in the Measure Are Presented for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

The old game law which for two years has caused much confusion and discussion will be a dead letter the 16th of this month and the new law will on that day take effect.

As copies of the new law are hard to obtain the Nevada Post gives the law in as condensed form as possible to make it clear.

The New Law.

No person shall catch, kill or have in his possession, dead or alive, nor shall he purchase or offer for sale, any wild bird other than a game bird except as provided in this act. This also applies to plumage, skin or body of birds.

Birds Considered Game.

Game birds are defined as follows: Swans, geese, brant, ducks, rails, coots, mudhens, gallinules, shore birds, plover, surf birds, snipe, wood cock, sand pipers, tattlers, curlews, wild turkey, grouse, prairie chickens, phesants, partridges and quail.

Taking or needlessly destroying or having in one's possession nests or eggs of wild birds is prohibted.

Penalty for violation of above, $25 fine for each offense and $5 additional for each bird.

These two sections do not apply to persons holding certificates for collecting for scientific purposes. Such certificates are granted by county game warden, and bond for $200 must be given to secure them. These certificates are good for one year and only good in the county in which they are granted.

Unprotected Birds.

The following birds are not protected by this act: English or European house sparrow, coopers hawk, chicken hawk, goshawk, sharpshinned hawk, great horned owl, black bird, buzzard and crow.

Open Season for Birds.

The open season for game birds is as follows:

Wild turkey, all of December and January.

Quail, all of November and December.

Prairie chicken cannot be killed until 1910 and the open season then will be from November 15 to December 15.

Ducks and geese, from September 15 to April 30.

Snipe, same as ducks and geese.

Plover, woodcock and doves, August 1 to December 31

Penalty for killing game birds out of season $25 to $50 for each offense and $5 for each bird.

Ruffled grouse, Mongolian, Chinese and English Pheasants and all other imported game birds protected until December 1, 1910. Open season after that date is November 15 to December 15.

The use of boats, swivel or punt guns in hunting birds on water and the use of blinds in hunting on ice is prohibited.

The use of pitfalls, nets, traps and drugs in hunting is prohibited.

Deer.

The open season for deer is November and December. The use of artificial light in killing deer is prohibited. Penalty $25 to $100.

Fish.

Obstruction by seins, fishdams etc., of free passage of fish in all rivers, ponds, sloughs and other water courses is prohibited.

Use of lynamites or explosives, except under the personal supervision of the county game warden, in waters of the state, is prohibited under a penalty of $500 to $1,000.

The use of any kind of seins or traps for catching fish is prohibited. This, however, does not apply to their use by persons in lakes or reservoirs wholly on their own premises. From June 1 to December 1 the use of seins and trammel nets is permitted residents, in their own counties, for taking fish to be consumed only by their own families. The minnow seine is limited in size to 4x20 feet. This section does not apply to taking fish in waters wholly the result of back waters or overflows.

Pearl Fishing.

Limited to March, April, May and June.

Dams.

All dams must have fish chutes.

Game Wardens.

The state game and fish warden is appointed by the governor and serves two years. His salary is $2,000 per year. His expense account for traveling, $2,000 per year.

The county game warden of each county is the sheriff. His deputies, constables and justices of the peace are deputy county game wardens. Their fees are the same as the fees in other criminal cases.

Licenses.

No license required to hunt in the county in which one resides. A person is also allowed to hunt upon his own lands or a tenant upon the lands he occupies for agricultural purposes. A license must be secured to hunt with a dog or gun in any county other than that in which he is resident, except as provided above.

Hunting licenses are procured from the circuit clerk of the county in which the hunter resides and are good in all the counties adjoining his own. They cost $1.00. For hunting in counties other than those adjoining his own a hunter must secure a license for each county in which he hunts from the circuit clerk of that county at a cost of $2.50. All licenses are good for one year from the date of issue.

The clerk's fee out of the money received for each license is 30 cents. The balance of the license fee goes to the county road fund.

Game wardens are authorized to examine a hunter's license whenever he desires.

Hunters not residents of Missouri must pay a license of $15 in each county in which he hunts.

Trespass.

Permission must be obtained from the owners or persons in control of all enclosed or cultivated lands to hunt thereon. Penalty for violation of this section $10 to $25, half of which goes to the owner of the land entered upon.

Elk.

Protected until 1912.

Squirrels.

Open season is from June 1st to January 1st.

Sale of Game.

Game may be sold in the county in which it is killed, when such game was lawfully taken. During the open season game may be shipped into and sold in this state from other states and territories.

Shipment of Game.

Game cannot be shipped out of the county in which it was killed, but a hunter may, in person, during any open season, take with him to his residence game that he has lawfully killed. In amount this shall not exceed 1 deer, 2 turkeys, 25 other birds or 50 fish.

Limits.

The limit for killing during any one calendar day is one deer, two turkeys and twenty-five other birds for any one person. No person shall have in his possession more than twice the above amount at any one time. This act does not prevent the shipment of deer and elk alive or dead from any private preserve where the same was raised in captivty.

TWO SPLENDID LECTURES

CHARLES E. NEWLIN ENTERTAINED GOOD AUDIENCES AT COURT HOUSE SATURDAY

ARRANGED FOR JUDGE ARTMAN

Latter Is the Indiana Jurist Who Recently Gave Noted Decision That Licensing Saloons Was Unconstitutional.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Charles E. Newlin, a business man of Indianapolis, Ind., and one of the most able orators ever heard in this city, spoke to a crowd of over seventy-five at the court house Saturday afternoon and to a somewhat larger crowd again last night. His subject on both occasions was "The Unconstitutionality of Saloon Licensing."

Mr. Newlin arrived here from Jefferson City Saturday afternoon, having spoken at St. Louis Friday night. He was escorted immediately to the court house, where Rev. James Parsons, pastor of the First Congregational church, introduced him to the audience.

Mr. Newlin spoke for over an hour on the subject given above. He cited instances where different courts in the country had held that it was illegal to license saloons, and told of what results he had accomplished in his work, and how he expected to attain still higher success for the cause in which he is laboring.

Mr. Newlin leaves today for Kansas City, where he is booked to deliver three lectures, after which he will deliver addresses on the same subject in different cities in the country.

Mr. Newlin is an orator that benefits every auditor. He speaks clearly and strongly, outlines his subject in a capable manner, scores his points to the best advantage and arouses the enthusiasm of all his listeners.

Mr. Newlin stopped at Jefferson City Saturday morning, en route to Sedalia, and while at the state capital had a long talk with Governor Folk.

In conversation with a Democrat-Sentinel representative he complimented the executive official very highly, and referred to him as a "fearless man, willing at all times to enforce the laws, especially those regulating the saloons."

The conversation between Governor Folk and Mr. Newlin bordered mostly on saloons, so Mr. Newlin stated, and to him Governor Folk said that if Missouri had the prohibition laws that Kansas possesses he would drive every saloon out of the state within a year.

While here, Mr. Newlin made arrangements for Judge Samuel R. Artman, of Lebanon, Ind., to speak in Sedalia on July 6.

Judge Artman is judge of the circuit court of Boone county, Ind., who recently rendered the famous decision declaring the licensing of saloons unconstitutional. He is associated with Mr. Newlin in his work. He leaves his home in the early part of July for a sixty-five days' tour of the country and will be here on July 6. From here he goes to Kansas City and will make a flying trip over the country, visiting thirty-seven different states, concluding his tour at Kalamazoo, Mich., on September 14.

S. G. Whiprecht—President.

Wiley Hausam—First vice president.

Lynn Rupert—Second vice president.

Pearl Dukes—Third vice president.

Emma Bras—Fourth vice president.

Claud Thornton—Treasurer.

The following were elected to the district convention at Scheil City June 11, 12 and 13: E. D. Robb, Lynn Rupert, S. G. Whiprecht, Lauretta Slagle, Boineta Sagar, Hazel Linabary

After the meeting the young men served refreshments, and an enjoyable time was had.

Higher Prices for Beef.

The controversy between the packers and commission men has reached a point where the consumer has a personal interest in the matter, says Sunday's St. Louis Globe-Democrat. There was a rise of from 2 to 6 cents a pound yesterday on the various kinds of beef at the meat markets.

He Likes Army Life.

Earl Castle, a former member of the Sedalia Rifles, is in receipt of a very interesting letter from "Tod" Hardin, a former Sedalia boy, who enlisted recently in the cavalry branch of the United States army at the local recruiting station.

"Tod" says in the letter that he likes army life the best in the world, and would not accept a discharge for anything. Drills and practice, he continues, are a snap and the life he is living is well worth trying for by any young man.

SAYS THE DOG WAS DYED

MRS. A. O. VAN HEUSEN SUES PRINCESS DE MONTGLYON FOR $50,000.00.

IS TROUBLE IN SOCIAL RANKS

The Defendant in a Celebrated Libel Case Is a Member of a Famous Belgian Family and Beautiful.

New York, June 1.—Proceedings in a libel suit have been begun against the Princess de Montglyon, member of an ancient Belgian family in an action instituted by Mrs. A. O. Van Heusen, a well-known horsewoman of this city. Mrs. Van Heusen sues for $50,000 damages.

Mrs. Van Heusen's suit is the outcome of a protest lodged by Mrs. Van Heusen last February at the Boston dog show.

Mrs. Van Heusen in her protest claimed that the princess's winning dog, Chow Chow-Chin Chino, of Argentau, had been dyed, and after the dog had been examined by a veterinarian the protest was sustained

The result was that the managers of the Boston show canceled the dog's win without reporting the matter to the American Kennel club.

The Princess de Montglyon then appealed to the American Kennel club and that body has yet to act on the matter.

In the meantime letters appeared in Field and Fancy, a weekly paper, insinuating that the protestants of the show had waited until Princess de Montglyon and her kennel manager were both absent from the Boston show and had maliciously dyed the dog.

Hence Mrs. Van Heusen's action, and also her formal protest lodged with the American Kennel club that the Princess de Montglyon had shown a dyed dog in Chin Chino of Argenteau, at Boston.

WENT TO SEE HIS FAMILY

It Was Then That He Was Arrested on Embezzlement Charge.

Xenia, Ohio, June 1.—James C McMillan, who, it is alleged, embezzled $28,000 from the Mutual Home and Savings association, of South Charleston, when its secretary five years ago and who has since eluded the authorities, was arrested at the home of his wife at Cedarville yesterday afternoon.

McMillan was taken to Springfield and placed in jail. The indictment against him was returned in 1904.

Since he left South Charleston McMillan has been in Honduras, Isthmus of Panama and Mexico. He was employed by a firm in Mexico and had come to Chicago on business for his employers a few days ago. Thinking it comparatively safe, he came to Cedarville to see his family.

Second—You shall, in case of accident, sickness or need, apply to your local dealers for aid and credit, as we do not know you.

Third—You shall buy your tools from us and be your own mechanic, in order to drive the mechanics from your vicinity, for we wish it so.

Fourth—You shall believe our statements and buy all you need from us, because we want to be good to you, although we are not personally acquainted with you.

Fifth—You shall apply to your nearest city to aid you in building good roads so you may conveniently get the goods from the depot which you buy from us, for we do not build country roads.

Ninth—You shall look often at the beautiful pictures in our catalogue, so your wishes shall increase, and you will send in a big order, although you are not in immediate need of the goods, otherwise you might have some money left to buy goods of your local merchants.

Tenth—You shall buy church bells and interior fixtures from us and forward the money in advance, for that is our business method, and you shall collect from the business men in your vicinity as much money as you can for the benefit of your churches. Although we get more money from you than they do, still it is against our rules to donate money for building country churches.—St. Paul Trade Journal.

BALLOON 700 FEET IN THE AIR AT ROYAL REVIEW ON THE SABBATH.

THE SIGHT WAS TRULY HORRIFYING

Italy's King Sees Explosion and Army Captain Dashed to His Death in the Presence of Terrified Thousands.

Rome, June 3.—A tragic incident took place yesterday during a review of the troops by King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena.

As a part of the maneuvers a military balloon was sent up to a height of 700 feet with Captain Uilivelli in the car.

A storm which had been coming up burst suddenly, and the thousands of spectators were horrified to see a flash of lightning strike the gas bag.

There was an enormous burst of flame and a terrific detonation and the collapsed balloon, with its dangling car, fell to earth a mile from the scene of the review.

Crowds of persons, afoot and in automobiles and other conveyances, rushed in the direction where the balloon had fallen.

Captain Uilvelli was found alive, but unconscious. He was placed in an automobile and rushed to a hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness.

King Victor Emmanuel and the military authorities went to the hospital after the review to enquire concerning the injured man.

CROP REPORT FOR JUNE

ISSUED BY GEORGE B. ELLIS, SECRETARY STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

CORN HAS GAINED THREE POINTS

In the Past Month—Wheat Crop Fell Off Two Points in Same Period —Fruit Crop is a Practical Failure.

The regular monthly statement on condition of crops for Missouri was issued at Columbia Saturday by Geo. B. Ellis, secretary of the state board of agriculture, as follows:

During the first twenty days of May the temperature was considerably below the normal throughout the state, causing slow growth of vegetation. About the 20th of the month the temperature increased and for several days was above the normal, putting the soil in good condition and giving the farmers a good opportunity to plant their corn. Throughout the first half of the month there was precipitation over a large portion of the southern part of the state, but droughty conditions prevailed in several counties in the northern part of the state. The drought has been broken in the northeastern portion, but a few counties in the extreme northwest still report a deficiency of rainfall. Frosts occurred several times during the month and some damage is reported from that cause. Frost was reported as late as the morning of the 26th in the northwestern counties.

Corn—On May 1 36 per cent of the entire crop was planted; in the southwest section 74 per cent of the crop was planted; but on account of the cold weather and excessive rains a large portion of that planted up to May 1 rotted and had to be replanted. On May 31, the time of making up our present report, 79 per cent of the entire crop had been planted, the central section having the greatest amount of corn yet to plant—only 71 per cent of the crop being planted in that section, while in the northwest section 86 per cent of the entire crop was planted. The corn that was planted after the 15th of May is generally coming up to a good stand. The present condition for the entire state of what is planted is 74, which is an improvement of three points during the month. The highest condition is in the northwest, where it is 80, while the lowest is in the southwest, where it is only 69. Some fields are getting weedy, and the greatest need of the corn crop now is clear, warm weather.

Wheat—The condition of the wheat crop has fallen off only two points during the month. There is an improvement of two points in the northeast and southwest sections, while the northwest shows a falling off of one point, the central four points and the southeast seven. The present average condition for the state is 80. The principal damage to the wheat in the southeast section comes from army worms and plant lice. The greatest dama e seems to have been in the counties bordering on the Mississippi river, from the extreme southeastern portion to as far north as Jefferson, St. Louis and Franklin counties. The army worms are reported as far north as St. Francois county.

In the southwest section the greatest damage has been done by the plant lice, a very heavy damage being reported from some of the large wheat-prodncing counties, namely, Jasper, Newton, Lawrence, Greene, Dade and other adjoining counties in that section. A number of our correspondents report the lice less numerous in the wheat fields than several days ago, and with favorable weather from now on perhaps but little more damage will be done. The present average condition of the wheat crop for the entire state with favorable weather from now on is sufficient to produce a fair crop of wheat.

Oats—The very cold weather during the month has not been favorable to the development of the oat crop and the crop has made but little growth during the month. In the neighborhoods where the plant lice have been on the wheat they are now found on the oats, and in fields are doing considerable damage. The present condition of the oat crop is 75, exactly the same as it was one month ago. Warm weather with frequent showers would improve the condition of the crop materially during the present month.

Meadows and pastures—Meadows and pastures have made slow growth on account of the low temperature, but the condition remains about the same for the state as it was one month ago. The only material damage to meadows is in the southeast counties, where the army worm has destroyed a great many meadows. Warm weather is needed to put a check on this pest. Pastures, where not overstocked, are in fair condition and all classes of live stock are doing well.

Fruits—The fruit crop, taken as a whole, is a practical failure. The average condition, as shown by all correspondents reporting, shows only 11 per cent of an apple crop, 8 per cent of a peach crop, 7 per cent of a cherry crop, 14 per cent of a plum crop, 46 per cent of a strawberry crop and 44 per cent for the grape crop. The only apples and peaches of and consequence will be in orchards on high gound and in protected localities.

Luckett's Majority Was 1,093.

The final returns on the recent election of T. R. Luckett for school commissioner of Pettis county were received by County Clerk Imhoff Saturday. Mr. Luckett's total vote was 2,496, while that of G. L. Coleman, ex-commissioner, was 1,403, leaving a majority of 1,093 for Mr. Luckett.

HICKS, THE FORECASTER, SAYS THE MONTH IS TO BE "STORMY."

FREAKISH WEATHER IS IN STORE

Excessive Heat, Cold, Rain and Wind and Possibly Tornadoes Promised—Fair After the 27th Instant, 'Tis Said.

A lot of people are pinning their faith in weather predictions of Rev. Irl Hicks, the St. Louis astronomer, whose almanac for this year, made up last fall, has been hitting the nail on the head in a most remarkable manner. Last month Hicks seemed to be making the weather, so closely did his predictions materialize, notwithstanding the fact that it was one of the most freakish months ever experienced. Hence Hicks' predictions for June are worthy of some respect.

Hicks says that June is to be one one of the stormiest months of recent years, and even more freakish than May or April—"phenomenal perturbations will reach some sort of crisis in earth and sky," is the way he puts it.

The first storm period will extend from the 2d to the 7th, beginning with marked rise of temperature and falling barometer and culminating in severe thunderstorms, cloudbursts, hail and possible tornadoes.

There is another storm period on the 9th, 10th and 11th; excessive warmth, extreme humidity and violent thunder and wind storms will characterize this period, according to Hicks.

From the 15th to the 18th will be one of the most "decisive turmoil" seasons of the whole month; low barometer, humidity and excessive heat will be followed by violent and dangerous lightning storms, in which destructive winds will reverse all their usual directions and blow from anywhere to everywhere.

The next storms will occur about the 22d, and resemble those just mentioned, excepting that there will be local rain deluges in widely separated sections and wind vortices of great destructiveness.

The last of the June storms will occur about the 27th, during which there will be heavy rains, wind and thunder daily for three or four days. Taking June right through, Hicks says there are to be unusual volcanic disturbances, earthquakes, sun spots, auroral displays and all sorts of freakish magnetic earth currents that sailors especially had better pay attention to.

WIFE ATTACKS HUSBAND

Painfully Burned, but Eyesight Is Not Impaired.

Constable John McGrath was awakened at his home in Marshall last Friday night by a knock at his door and, on opening it, he was attacked by his wife, who held in her hand a revolver and a bottle of carbolic acid.

McGrath jerked the revolver from her, but she threw the acid in his face. Although painfully burned, his eyesight was not impaired.

Domestic troubles caused him to separate from his wife some weeks ago. No arrests have been made.

YEAR WITHOUT SUMMER

SNOW AND ICE PREVAILED IN JUNE. JULY AND AUGUST BACK IN 1816.

ENTRIES FOUND IN AN OLD DIARY

Man Left Home on the 17th of June and Was Found Half Covered With Snow and Both Feet Frozen.

June 2, and overcoats and wraps in demand, with steam heat and fires to heat dwellings, is something unusual in Sedalia, but that's what we have just the same.

The season so far has been out of the ordinary to such an extent as to be remarkable, and the memory of the "oldest inhabitant" recalls nothing of the kind before.

Here is an article from the Danbury, Conn., News along the same line, and no doubt it will be perused with interest by Democrat-Sentinel readers:

The year 1816 was known throughout the United States and Europe as the coldest ever experienced by persons then living. There are persons in Northern New York who have been in the habit of keeping diaries for years, and it is from the pages of an old diary begun in 1810, and kept up unbroken until 1840, that the following information regarding the year without a summer has been taken.

January was so mild that most persons allowed their fires to go out and did not burn wood except for cooking. There were a few cool days, but they were very few. Most of the time the air was warm and springlike. February was not cold. Some days were colder than in January, but the weather was about the same. March, from the 1st to the 6th, was inclined to be windy. It came in like a small lion and went out like a very innocent sheep.

April came in warm, but as the days became longer, the air became colder, and by the first of May there was a temperature like that of winter, plenty of snow and ice. In May the young buds were frozen dead, ice formed half an inch thick on ponds and rivers, corn was killed and the corn fields were planted again and again, until it became too late to raise a crop. By the last of May, in this climate, the trees are usually in leaf and birds and flowers are plentiful. When the last of May arrived in 1816 everything had been killed by the cold.

June was the coldest month of roses ever experienced in this latitude. Frost and ice were as common as buttercups usually are. Almost every green thing was killed; all fruit was destroped. Snow fell ten inches deep in Vermont. There was a seven inch fall in the interior of New York state, and the same in Massachusetts. There were only a few moderately warm days. Everybody looked, longed and waited for warm weather, but warm weather did not come.

It was also dry. Very little rain fell. All summer long the wind blew steadily from the north in blasts, laden with snow and ice. Mothers knit socks of double thickness for their children and made thick mittens. Planting and shivering were done together, and farmers who worked out their taxes on the country roads wore overcoats and mittens.

On June 17 there was a heavy fall of snow. A Vermont farmer sent a flock of sheep to pasture on June 10. The morning of the 17th dawned with the thermometer below the freezing point. At 9 o'clock in the morning the owner of the sheep started to look for his flock. Before leaving home he turned to his wife and said, jokingly:

"Better start the neighbors soon; it's the middle of June and I may get lost in the snow."

An hour after he left home a terrible snow storm came up. The snow fell thick and fast, and, as there was so much wind, the fleecy windward sides of the fences and outbuildings. Night came and the farmer had not been heard of.

His wife became frightened and alarmed the neighbors. All the neighbors joined the searching party. On the third day they found him. He was lying in a hollow on the side hill with both feet frozen; he was half covered with snow, but alive. Most of the sheep were lost.

A farmer near Tewksbury, Vt., owned a large field of corn. He built fires. Nearly every night he and his men took turns in keeping up the fires and watching that the corn did not freeze. The farmer was rewarded for his tireless labor by having the only crop of corn in the region.

July came in with snow and ice. On the Fourth of July ice as thick as window glass formed throughout New England, New York and in some parts of the state of Pennsylvania. Indian corn, which in some parts of the east had struggled through May and June, gave up, froze and died.

To the surprise of everybody, August proved the worst month of all. Almost every green thing in this country and Europe was blasted with frost. Snow fell at Barnet, thirty miles from London, England, August 30. Newspapers received from England stated that 1816 would be remembered by the existing generation as the year in which there was no summer.

Very little corn ripened in New England. There was great privation, and thousands of persons would have perished in this country had it not been for the abundance of fish and wild game.

Makes a Correction.

The W. C. T. U. wishes to correct the statement made, that Rev. Cunningham was hired by them to get up cases against the saloon men. Rev. Cunningham did what he did on his own responsibility and not the W. C. T. U. Hence, to justify Mr. Cunningham, this correction is made.

MINISTER'S WIDOW SUES

HUSBAND'S LIFE WAS INSURED FOR $5,000 IN A MINNEAPOLIS COMPANY.

THE LATTER OFFERS ONLY $100

Has No License for Doing Business in Missouri and Is Certain of Advertising That Is Not Desirable.

Maryville, Mo., June 1.—Denied payment of the insurance policy held by her late husband, a minister of the gospel, in a company which made a specialty of insuring men of that calling, a Maryville woman has found on appealing to the law for justice that the company has no right to do business in Missouri, and cannot, therefore, be sued in this state.

Instead she has been compelled to bring action for the collection of the amount of the policy in the city in which the company has its headquarters, and a suit has therefore been begun by her in Minneapolis, Minn., against the Ministers' Casualty company, of that city.

The complainant in this suit is Mrs. Mary M. Brummitt, of South Market street, widow of the late L. M. Brummitt, a minister of the Methodist church, South.

The husband died February 27, after only a week's illness, his death occurring at Craig, where he had been pastor of a church for several months.

Death resulted from exposure endured while the minister was caring for his aged father, Banner Brummitt, during the latter's fatal illness in Skidmore only a week before.

Six weeks prior to his death the minister had taken out a policy for $5,000 in the Minneapolis company.

After his death an effort was made to collect the face of the policy, but the company refused to pay, tendering $100 in settlement of the claim.

It was alleged by the company that a clause in the policy exempted the insurer from payment because of an uncertainty as to the exact cause of the insured man's death.

Raleigh Martin was appealed to recently by the widow for counsel, and he began an investigation of the case. He soon learned from correspondence with State Insurance Commissioner A. H. Vandiver, of Jefferson City, that the company had never been given permission to do business in Missouri, although it was writing policies on the lives of preachers in this state.

Attorney Martin immediately commenced suit in the United States circuit court in Minneapolis against the company. He believes he will be able to collect the entire face of the policy for the widow, in addition to making public the methods which have been employed by the company in securing business.

Sedalians at Warrensburg.

Prof. Carl Wise and wife, of Sedalia, will visit the family of L. Fountain next week, says Saturday's Warrensburg Star. Mrs Cohn returned home in the evening, while Julius will remain over Sunday with his father....Mrs. J. A. Hamrick, daughter and son, of Sedalia, spent Thursday and Friday with the family of L. KERENS DENIES A STORY

NOTHING IN A ROADWAY FROM THE VATICAN DOWN TO THE SEA.

ST. LOUISAN WILL NOT TAKE PART

No Chance for the Philadelphian's Scheme Unless Italian Government Granted Right, Says Mr. Kerens.

Richard C. Kerens, railroad builder, one of the wealthiest men in St. Louis and through five presidential elections a member of the republican national committee, declared on his arrival home Friday night from his 10 weeks' trip to Europe that the report of his connection with a proposed roadway from the Vatican to the sea to restore the temporal power of the pope among the nations of the world was idle gossip, and the result of a lively imagination, says the St. Louis Times.

"Why, I never heard of such a project until announced by Mr. Martin Maloney, a well-known financier of Philadelphia at the breakfast in Rome given by Cardinal Satolli," said Mr. Kerens, "and as far as Thomas F. Ryan, of New York, is concerned in it, I don't believe he ever thought of the subject.

"Mr. Maloney's motives were beneficent and of a genuinely noble character and design; but in the short discussion of the subject it was determined that no such undertaking could have a chance of success unless it were championed by the Italian government, and a law passed by the parliament of that country granting the right of eminent domain and to condemn property, the same as is done in the United States by the railroads.

"Beyond the preliminary discussion started by Mr. Maloney, I never gave the subject any thought. I do not think that any one has petitioned the Italian government or the king of Italy for any favors in the premises, and with all respect to the laudable intentions of Mr. Maloney, I would not be a participant in the plan, relying on the Italian government in any particular. Some one has made much ado about nothing."

A SMALLPOX REMEDY

This Will Fix Both Smallpox and Scarlet Fever, So Says a Writer.

The following remedy for smallpox is from the Stockton, Cal., Herald:

I herewith append a recipe which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It will prevent or cure the smallpox, though the pittings are filling.

When Jenner discovered cowpox in England the world of science hurled an avalanche of fame upon his head, but when the most scientific school of medicine in the world, that of Paris, published this recipe as a panacea for smallpox, it passed unheeded. It is as unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will cure scaret fever. Here is the recipe, as I have used it to cure smallpox when learned physicians said the patient must die it cured: Sulphate of zinc, 1 grain; foxglove (digitalis), 1 grain; half a teaspoonful of water; when thoroughly mixed add four ounces of water; a teaspoonful is a dose. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child give smaller doses according to age. If countries would compel their physicians to use this there would be no need of pest houses. If you value advice and experience use this for that terrible disease.

Has Option on the Springs.

(From Monday's Daily.)

J. A. Robinson, who has a sixty-days' option for the purchase of the McAllister Springs property from Mr. A. Hollenbeck, left this afternoon for Tipton, where he hopes to induce certain capitalists to join with him in purchasing the famous resort and making of it what it was a few years ago.

Try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for Rheumatism.

Mr. J. W. Jamison, a merchant of Newport, Iowa, says: "I have sold Chamberlain's Pain Balm for several years and have recommended it for neuralgia and reumatism, as well as for more common pains, and it has given good results. I sell more of it than of any other liniment I carry and cheerfull recommend it to the public." For sale by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

A Day in the Country.

Damon Porter, John T. Turner, T. T. Duncan and Al Baumgartner drove out north of Beaman Sunday and spent the day, returning at 10 o'clock at night, after a truly delightful outing.

Peter Kuhn and John Hegarty also spent the Sabbath in the country, and when they returned at night each said that he felt ten years younger.

MAY AFFECT THE TARIFF

Senatorial Contest in Iowa is Far Reaching.

Washington, June 3.—Much interest is taken in the senatorial contest between Senator Allison and Governor Cummins in Iowa.

Allison is the only Western member of either house on the committees which handle tariff bills.

If he loses out the West will be at the mercy of the East if the tariff is revised at the special session of congress in 1909.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

DR. WILEY, PURE FOOD EXPERT OF GOVERNMENT TELLS GREAT SECRET.

EAT PLENTY AND SLEEP SOUNDLY

Another Popular Opinion Exploded by the Chief Chemist in Washington —Average of Life Is Growing Greater Yearly.

Washington, June 1.—"Eat plenty of good, wholesome food, sleep the sleep of innocence—that is, eight hours of peaceful, restful sleep in every twenty-four hours. Take plenty of exercise. Do not make it too violent. Don't be afraid to fight. Fight with all your energy when fighting, but the moment the fight is over forget it. The man who carries envy and hatred to his bed is bound to die young."

This is the formula for a century life time, laid down by Dr. Wiley, chief chemist and pure food expert of the department of agriculture. Dr. Wiley continues:

"It is true that we are all living longer. The average of mankind is five years greater now than it was several years ago. Old age should be the medium of the reaper, and the rapid advancement of science will practically keep the reaper busy with his old age mowing machine.

"It is true I once belonged to a century club. It was a New York gathering. Every member was pledged to live a hundred years. The club has died a natural death, although the principle still exists."

"What diet would you suggest," Dr. Wiley was asked.

"No suggestions on that point. I am too wise to say what to eat. My directions to the man who wants to live 100 years is to eat plainly of good, wholesome food." was the reply.

"What do you think of Prof. Irving Fisher's declaration that the harder you chew your food the longer you will live?"

"It's all right in some particulars, but he is wrong about meat eaters. Flesh eating animals never chew their food. They bolt it. Man by chewing his meat makes it indigestible. The saliva mixed with the meat forms an alkaline. Before the meat can be digested that alkaline must be neutralized. Chewing mechanically is a good thing, for it breaks up the meat, but practically it is a bad thing, for it makes the meat hard to digest. Of course, chewing is beneficial when eating hard substances."

BACK AT THE OLD WAGES

Strike of 10,000 Iron Workers Settled in San Francisco.

San Francisco, June 1.—The first rift in the series of strikes and unsettled labor conditions which have overshadowed San Francisco for many weeks occurred Friday when the strike of 10,000 iron workers was amicably settled.

The men went out several weeks ago to enforce the demand for an eight-hour work day and an increase in wages.

This resulted in closing the Union iron works, the Fulton iron works, and all the foundries, machine shops and iron works, not only in San Francisco, but in all the bay cities.

The men return to their work upon the same conditions of hours and wages provided when they struck, and which shall remain in effect for eighteen months.

NEW THEATER PROJECT

DR. H. W. WOOD, OF SEDALIA, IS INTERESTED IN A JOPLIN ENTERPRISE.

TO PRESENT THE SHUBERT PLAYS

Sedalian Says He Has a Ten Year Contract With the Theatre People Who Are Outside of the Big Trust.

(Sunday's Daily.)

Dr. H. W. Wood, who returned last night from Joplin, Mo., was written of as follows in the Joplin Globe of Friday:

Dr. Wood, of Sedalia, is in the city in the interest of the project of a new Shubert theatre for Joplin, and expects during the visit to conclude the preliminaries, assuring the consummation of plans for the erection of a modern and beautiful temple of amusement here.

The progress of negotiations looking toward the securing of this enterprise have been delayed during the last few weeks on account of a rumor of a combination between the Shubert people and the theatrical trust.

Dr. Wood last night emphatically denied the existence of a combination and assured the Globe that he and local parties interested in the enterprise have a ten-year contract with the Shubert people.

It may now be stated positively, on authority of Dr. Wood, that as soon as the ticket sale is complete work will begin on the new theatre, assuring the people of Joplin a modern playhouse constructed on plans conforming to legal requirements in the matter of fire escapes, and thoroughly equipped with modern utilities for presentation of high class concert and drama.

The visit of Dr. Wood has awakened renewed interest in plans for a structure which will give the amusement loving public of Joplin opportunities of hearing all that is best in music and the drama without the expenditure of time and money heretofore required in making a trip to distant cities.

NEGROES THREATEN REVENGE

Convention to "Blacklist and Gibbet" Jim Crow Advocates.

Jefferson City, June 1.—The liberal support which the Jim Crow separate coach bill received in the last session of the Missouri legislature has brought forth a call for the negro democratic state league of Missouri to meet in Jefferson City June 28 to take steps to more thoroughly organize the negroes of the state against such legislation. The meeting has been called by G. B. Vashon, of St. Louis, president, and J. S. Barnes, of Kansas City, secretary.

In their call they refer to the action of the senate in passing the Jim Crow bill, also to the favorable action which the measure received in the house and concludes by saying that the principal object of the meeting is to "black list and practically gibbet every known advocate of the Jim Crow measures."

Each negro democratic club in the state is entitled to two delegates at this meeting and each county having no such organization is entitled to two delegates.

MISS SPRECHER GETS HONORS

Former Sedalia Young Lady Graduates With Distinction.

Miss Carrie E. Sprecher, a young lady konwn to many Sedalians, has just graduated from the Jacksonville, Ill., college with high honors, having finished second in a large class. Miss Sprecher entered Jacksonville college on a scholarship awarded by this insttution for the highest rank in public school work. There were two scholarships offered, and every pupil attending the public schools in the state of Illinois was eligible to contest for the certificate. Miss Sprecher received one of them, being declared the second best pupil in the state, leading her class in the East St. Louis schools, which alone was a very high honor. She has now sustained this honor and added greater laurels by finishing college second in her class.

Miss Sprecher is a daughter of D. H. Sprecher, formerly of Sedalia, and now a commission man of East St. Louis, and is a niece of Sheriff I. N. Sprecher and Will Sprecher, of this city. Her Sedalia friends and acquaintances congratulate her upon her very remarkable success.

For the Home-seekers' Benefit

By Theodore Waters

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Did you know, Hocky," remarked Mr. David Gimbold to his partner, Mr. Israel Hochheimer," did you know that just previous to his death, Roswell P. Flower was planning a corner in zinc?"

"No, I did not know it," replied Mr. Hochheimer, reflectively, gazing out of the window of their Wall street office.

"I've been thinking, Hocky," went on Mr. Gimbold, "that we might take up the matter where Flower laid it down. I have a notion that we might corral the necessary funds simply by modifying Mr. Flower's methods. In fact, I believe we could get the government to help us.

"Nearly all of our zinc comes from Arkansas and Missouri. There is a trust, but it is a puny affair, down at Joplin, with a paltry half-million at stake. For a peculiar condition exists. Most of the land in the zinc country is government land, subject to the homestead law. The government charges a fee of about $14 for every 160 acres of land, but every applicant must live five years on the land before he gets his title. Now, if we could get that government land we would be able to control almost half of the zinc output of the district. And we could force the trust to buy us out."

"Very good," said Mr. Hochheimer, as Gimbold paused for breath. "But since no man can secure more than 160 acres, and since each applicant must swear that he intends to establish a home, and is not taking the land for purpose of speculation, how are we to get around it?"

"Hocky," replied Mr. Gimbold, waving his hand around comprehensively, "there are many poor fellows in this city who would be glad to own land in Arkansas or in Missouri. You know a great many, and so do I."

"I know a great many poor fellows —too many," murmured Mr. Hochheimer.

"Well, then, if we showed those poor fellows how to get land free in Arkansas and Misouri—if we paid the government fee for them, and bought them railway tickets to their new homes, don't you think they would be grateful enough to assign us the right to mine whatever ore might be under the surface of the land?"

"Davy," said Mr. Hochheimer, feelingly, "you are a wonder."

"But that isn't all," said Gimbold. "I believe there are many benevolent old persons in this city who would be delighted to subscribe to a fund which we would be glad to manage, and which would be used to transport those poor fellows to their new homes."

"Beautiful," said Mr. Hochheimer. "Simply beautiful."

"Of course, it would not be necessary to say anything about the option on what is under the surface, either to the benevolent old persons or to the poor fellows, until after the latter had started on their way."

"But how would we hold them, in case they refused?" asked Mr. Hochheimer, anxiously.

"Well, you see," replied Mr. Gimbold, "as managers of the fund we would go to the railroads and secure transportation in bulk. There ought to be a good commission in that. Of course, those poor fellows will want their household goods sent on ahead. We will be glad to do that for them, but we will not give each one a ticket until just before the train starts. I am sure that not one of them would object to signing the option on the spot. In case any one refuses, it will be very easy to have one of our 'investigators' suddenly find that under the rules of the benevolent fund the ungrateful fellow is ineligible."

Gimbold went into the churches and the charity bureaus and among the old gentlemen, and appealed in the name of all that is kindly and true for the relief of the suffering poor. From the moment it got fairly launched, the scheme began to take care of itself.

"Great Caesar, Hockey, look there!"

It was the morning after that memorable Sunday when the three color prospectus had formed the basis of so many sermons. Hochheimer and Gimbold had come down town together somewhat late. They went up to their office in a crowded elevator, and when they got off at their floor the crowd went with them. The corridor was jammed from wall to wall with an indiscriminate mass of humanity—male, female, respectable, disreputable, well-dressed, unkempt, native, foreign—pushing and crowding, babbling and gesticulating.

There was no turning them away, those poor fellows, for not only were there clergymen among them, as Gimbold had seen, but reverend gentlemen were in many cases leaders of special contingents of home-seekers, and many others in the crowd carried letters from contributors to the fund which were not to be ignored. It was late in the day before the last application was received, the last dreary explanation made, the last golden promise uttered. Day after day the crowd surged into the office and out again. And it grew not only in size, but in its exactions, for humanity in general is very insistent in the matter of its rights when they involve free-for-all schemes. Then the notoriety which the newspapers gave the scheme not only increased the size of the crowds, but it brought in a couple of government inspectors, who wanted to know if it was being thoroughly explained to each applicant that the non-speculative clause in the government contract would be rigidly enforced. It also brought in a "plain-clothes man" from Mulberry street, who caused the partners additional concern.

The contributions so far received were, ironically enough, no more than sufficient to pay the expenses of all those for whom governmental fees had been forwarded and favorable answers filed. They decided to close the deal at once, and the conclusion was forced upon them that under the new conditions it would be impossible to exact the options in the railway depot. The very labor of it would require hours to perform. They must risk getting them beforehand.

They set out upon their task with callous disregard of the consequences. They were sending a horde of unfortunates thousands of miles away from familiar associations, to mountain fastnesses which in many cases would yield nothing to the plow, and in return they were exacting the only product which made the land worth the acquiring. Summoned to their office, the home-seekers came one by one, and in the private room the question was put to each. Some of them, poor innocents! were eager and willing to do anything in return for the boon of a promised home. Some had to be coaxed, some wheedled, some threatened, and a few, who saw through the whole business, placated. But on the morning of departure Gimbold and Hochheimer had secured signed options on mineral rights from three-fourths of the home-seekers. The rest were considered too risky to approach.

On the morning of the departure they went over to the railway station. Nothing but the fascination of seeing the last of their handiwork took them there.

In the depot they were given a rousing reception, and they beamed from one to another of their dupes, and went among the mothers and their children, helping them to seats in the train and bidding them Godspeed with a benign courtesy that was beautiful to behold.

In the end they were compelled to make a speech—Gimbold made it from the rear platform of the train—a speech so inspiring in its patriotism, so tender in its pathos, that the enthusiasm invoked was tremendous, and the people struggled with one another to get to the orator, who was forced to retreat into the car. There he met the government inspector face to face. Back of the inspector stood the "plain clothes man" from police headquarters.

"And now, Mr. Gimbold," began the inspector, without preamble, "and now that you have excited those innocents until their feelings are at the breaking-point, what do you think they would do to you if I were to tell them that those options of yours rendered their homestead claim invalid?"

"Why, I—I—" stammered Gimbold, taken aback, "I—I—don't know what you mean."

"Oh, yes you do," replied the inspector, calmly. "You have with you signed options on all the ore bodies underlying the claims of these people. Suppose I tell them they have invalidated their titles?"

"I don't believe it," blustered Gimbold, hotly. "It's a point of law—it would have to be proved!"

"Granted," said the inspector; "but those fellows wouldn't wait for the law to settle it if I told them of my doubts."

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" demanded Gimbold, reverting to that time-worn defiance.

"Why, I'm going to tell them, unless you hand over those options."

"Never!"

"I guess you'd better give them up, Gimbold," put in the "plain-clothes man." "I don't believe the chief would like it to be found out that you had disregarded his advice."

Gimbold thought a moment. Then the futility of resistance must have struck him, for with an imprecation he pulled a thick wallet from his pocket and handed it to the inspector.

The crowd outside surged up the steps and into the car, calling loudly for Gimbold and his partner. The people wanted to see more of the men who had done so much for them.

While the enthusiasm was at its height the conductor called "all aboard." The crowd instantly forgot its gratitude and rushed for their places in the train.

"Well, what do you think, Hocky?" asked Gimbold at last.

"I think," replied Mr. Hochheimer, bitterly, "I think we have been working for the benefit of the poor."

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative and my book on either dyspepsia, the heart or the kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

GO THEIR OWN WAY

CHINESE IN AMERICA MAKE LITTLE TROUBLE.

Settlements Have Their Own "Mayor," Who Is Absolute Ruler and Settles All Disputes — Functions of "Highbinders."

There were about 40,000 persons in San Francisco's Chinatown before the earthquake and there are about 7,000 in that at New York, and these two settlements are veritable cities within cities. Each has its own "mayor," who rules over it without reference to the laws of the land, but who manages to maintain order much more successfully than the white mayor and his police do in their territories.

No Chinaman ever seeks the aid of the American courts. He has few business disputes, for the Chinaman is noted for his honesty as a trader. Commercial "paper" is unknown among them. The Chinaman is the one man in business whose word is accepted by white merchants as being as good as his bond. If misfortune overtakes him and he cannot pay he commits suicide and bequeaths all that remains of his property to his creditor.

Occasionally a dead Chinaman is found in the street with a knife or bullet wound to tell how he came by his death. The white police take charge of the body and make the usual inquiries, but they never discover anything. At the sight of a policeman or detective Chinatown becomes dumb, but those who have the confidence of the Chinaman can easily learn that Wing Sing was a man without respect for the emperor or his ancestors, who neglected to obey the most excellent commands of the "mayor."

The "Highbinders" who have been mentioned are supposed to fill another function as well as that of an inofficial police. They are said to be maintained by the Six Companies, that mysterious trading organization with headquarters in China, which controls nearly every Chinaman in America.

The great Chinese laundry business in most of the cities of America is controled by them, as are the Chinese grocery and supply shops and the curio shops, where oriental articles are sold to the white man at astonishingly low prices. The "Highbinders" carry out the will of their masters, the Six Companies, sternly suppress any revolt against their authority and wreak vengeance on any man who is so careless of his life as to deal dishonestly with his masters.

On rare occasions the American police secure evidence enough to justify an arrest on the charge of assault or manslaughter against a Chinaman who is supposed to be one of these mysterious secret police. The man no sooner appears in the police court than one of the ablest criminal lawyers obtainable appears to defend him and a cloud of witnesses is produced to swear that he was a thousand miles away when the crime was committed.

The power of the Six Companies is said to extend even to China. They can wreak their vengeance on the relatives of the man who offends them in America, should he succeed in escaping, and so great is the family affection which is characteristic of the Chinaman that he seldom makes any effort to escape, preferring to suffer the consequences of his wrong doing in his own person.

Both in New York and San Francisco the Chinatowns are self-contained cities. They are not even dependent on the white man for their food supply. Dozens of quaint, weird-looking things to eat are to be found in the Chinese quarters. Chinese cloths and silks are imported from China for clothing and Chinese furniture and utensils for the household. Even the fresh vegetables are grown by Chinese market gardeners in the suburbs of the cities, and the poultry which forms so large a part of the Chinaman's food is bred by Chinese poultry farmers. Eggs are imported from China and are considered a great delicacy when they have attained the age of two years.

The health authorities find the Chinese cleanly and remarkably free from disease and amenable to discipline.

"Grammar Schools" No More.

English educational authorities wish to break away from the now meaningless term "grammar school." The words as used in England commemorate the overwhelming importance attached to Latin in the Tudor times, when the old schools were founded. It was Latin grammar that they were designed to teach, though the American "grammar school"—intermediate between primary and high-schools—is a school where English grammar is taught. At one time "grammar" in England covered almost everything that formed part of a Latin education, just as the ancient "grammatice" of Greece and Rome once covered "letters" in the widest sense.

Superstition About Robins.

"It is unlucky to kill a robin" is a well-established saying in England. "How badly your hand shakes; you can scarcely write," said a teacher to a boy in a school in England. "It always shakes," said the boy. "I once had a robin die in my hand, and they say if a robin dies in your hand it will always shake."

Didn't Want Anything New.

"Shall I give you gas, sir?" said the English dentist to his patient from the country. "Na, na," was the answer. "I'm for nane o' thae new-fangled inventions. Just gie me paraffin oil."

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF SCROFULA

Through the blood, diseases are carried from one generation to another. Parents transmit them to their children, and so it goes on down the family line for years and years unless the taint is removed from the blood. Especially is this true of Scrofula, for it is a disease that is "bred in the bone," and unless the blood is purified and every trace of the trouble removed the miserable disease will finally undermine the entire health and wreck the life of its victim. The usual symptoms of Scrofula are enlarged glands or tumors about the neck, which often burst and become discharging ulcers, weak eyes, Catarrh of the head and throat, skin diseases, etc. The trouble being so firmly intrenched in the blood often attacks the bones, resulting in White Swelling, or hip disease, while a waxy, pallid appearance of the skin, loss of strength and energy, and often lung affections, show that the disease is entirely destroying the bright red corpuscles and rich, nutritive qualities of the blood. Scrofula being a constitutional disease, one affecting the entire circulation, must be treated with a remedy that builds up and strengthens every part of the system, which has so long been denied the strength and nourishment it should have received from the blood. S. S. S. is the best of all blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics, and is therefore the ideal remedy for Scrofula. S. S. S. searches out and destroys all germs, taints and poisons, gives strength, richness and vigor to the blood and cures Scrofula permanently. It so thoroughly removes the trouble from the blood that no signs of it are ever seen again, and posterity is started out in life with a clean, pure blood supply, which is their rightful inheritance. S. S. S. while thorough, is gentle in its action, and the healing vegetable ingredients which compose it build up every part of the system. Book on the blood and medical advice free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

TRUMPET AND BASSOON

Musical Contests of Ancient Greece —Why German Youths Become Skilled Musicians — What Americans Are Doing

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Boston, June 1.—Are Americans, who have long been accustomed to blow hard in many directions, about to become noted among the nations of the earth for their excellent blowing upon wind instruments? Until lately it was believed that a good cornetist, a good flutist, a good oboe player, could not be developed on this side of the water. A short time ago, however, a young cornetist who had learned his art entirely in the United States appeared before the king of England and won unstinted applause in the court of that royal connoisseur.

When American boys acquire such skill without going abroad for it, there is certainly something new in the wind. Heretofore, while occasionally a native American, who has started in early and practised late—usually to the discomfort of neighbors—has become sufficiently skilled to secure a violin or 'cello part in one of the important orchestras of the country, the performers on the pieces that require breath have almost invariably been drawn from abroad—the executants on the brass instruments being mostly Germans and those on wood wind French. In the fatherland, where nearly all young men must understand conscription, and where regimental bands are about as common as hand organs with us, good players are trained in great rumbers. The brightest young Germans, in order to escape the necessity of shouldering a musket, begin as small boys to learn to play the cornet or flute. That means that when the time comes for going into the army they are virtuosi of high attainments.

In this country the disadvantages of conscription are fortunately not present. Of late, however, the growing importance of orchestras has set many young men wondering why all the positions demanding skill with flute, oboe, clarionet, bassoon, trumpet or French horn, should be filled from abroad. An ancient opposition exists between the instruments of string and wind, one dating back to the days when the lyre of Apollo was adjudged by competent listeners to have outplayed the flute of Marsyas. American musicians, for some reason, used to give preference to the string rather than to the wind. The infectious enthusiasm, however, of such performers as those of the Boston Symphony orchestra, many of whom teach at the New England Conservatory of Music, the oldest and largest of American music schools, has brought it about that many American candidates for musical honors are demonstrating that we have no national incapacity for "tunes blown by boy's mouth on a reed."

The names of C. Lenom, oboist, C. Vennini, clarionetist, Daniel Maquarre and Arthur Brooke, flutists, and L. Kleopfel, trumpeteer and cornetist, all familiar to Americans who attend the concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra when it is on the road, are of a character to give a little explanation of the present vogue of the wind instruments. These men, by virtue of their membership in the Boston Symphony orchestra, are past masters of their art. Those of their students who are sufficiently advanced to play in the conservatory orchestra are coached professionally during the rehearsals, and are thus put in line for orchestral work of the most difficult kind.

At the same time they are being initiated into the mysteries of a craft that, for all we know, goes back to the era of the ichthyosaurus and megatherium. Along with bones, at any rate, of animls now extinct, there was found some time ago in France a flute, straight cut, and provided with a mouth piece and with finger holes. The instrument itself was made of the bone of a reindeer, evidence, apparently, that the climate and zoology of France have altered radically. Other wind instruments of the Stone Age have been found in various countries.

The craft, too, is one which early became prominent in ancient Israel; and down to this very day at the Jewish New Year and the Feast of the Atonement, in urban synagogues, notes are sounded from the Jewish shophar, constructed in the old time way from a ram's horn and blown always to the accompaniment of ceremonial phrases, "Tahhee-oo, Scheeoo-min, Taru-o."

Of bamboo in far Oriental lands, of willow, of reeds, of bones of animals, the ancestors of the modern wind instruments are to be found in our museums, as in the department of musical instruments in the Metropolitan museum in New York City, or in the remarkable collection of old instruments at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston. In this latter, which has been enriched by bequests until it is one of the notable musical museums of the world, are specimens which show that human ingenuity has been able to make a wind instrument out of almost anything.

As they puff and blow during the rehearsals of the student orchestra, the young Americans appreciate something of the enthusiasm of the Greek trumpeteers at festivals and athletic games, when a youth was proud of bursting a blood vessel in his excess of zeal, as in the story of Harmonides, the flute player, who, wishing to astonish his audience, did so by expiring on the expiration of his first strenuous note. He had literally blown himself out in one breath.

Then as a background to modern efforts there are the stories of the evolution of the various wind instruments, which to the ordinary man look more or less alike, but which in the sight of the musician have each its capacities and excellencies, and each its defects which the skilful writer of orchestral music has taken into account. There is, for example, the story of the improvement of the flute, and indirectly of several other instruments, by the invention of Captain Gordon, of Charles the Tenth's Swiss guards, and the practical introduction of this invention, together with controversies that have filled whole volumes, by Theobald Boehm, in his new flute, constructed in 1832, one which for the first time provided that each note should speak independently out of a single hole, as though the remainder of the bore were entirely cut off, and that all keys in their position of rest should be permanently open. There has been and is still going on the perfecting of the oboe, the most artistic and most elaborate of wind instruments, adapted alike to sportive and light-hearted passages or for those that are slow, pleading and beseeching, suitable, as has been expressed, either for a wedding or for a funeral. The oboe was ingeniously improved sixty years ago by Triebert, upon the suggestion of Barret, who was a soloist in the Convent Garden orchestra. Since that time it has been an instrument of thirty-four notes, all good. It is superior in intensity and timbre to all the other wind instruments.

Withal, the young players must familiarize themselves with the clarionet, less distinctive than the oboe, but with even a greater range, one of forty-two notes, adaptive, capable of taking the part of several instruments. There is the bassoon, the sole bass in the wood wind group, an instrument of uneven quality, but absolutely necessary, though it presents difficult problems to the writer of orchestral music.

The trumpet and the cornet of the brass wind group are more limited in range, with only thirteen or fourteen notes, and with breaks in the scale such that, as has been expressed, the trumpet can only proceed like a sparrow hopping from branch to branch. For a long time the cornet superceded the trumpet in orchestral favor, but the reverse just now holds true. The cornet's technical advantages show to the best advantage in the secondary forms of musical art, in military and brass bands, or in such performances as those of the old days in Germany when it was a characteristic custom on Sundays and holidays to have the choral for the day played by a band of cornets and trombones standing in the tower in the principal church.

In this country in the early days little attention was paid to the wind instruments except by the royal military bands in the colonial capitals. In the rural districts the pitch pipe was the only counterpart to the fiddle. It is read, however, that in one of the most celebrated of Boston churches the accompaniment of the singing, before the introduction of the pipe organ, was given by flute, bassoon and violin-cello, and in the eighteenth century some advertisements of horns, flutes, clarionets and trombones give proof that band playing was beginning to be popular.

Gottlieb Graupner, the father of American orchestral music, he who started the Philharmonic society in Boston in the early nineteenth century, was an oboe player from a German regiment who settled in this country in 1797; and Carl Zerrhan, who in the middle nineteenth century did much for the cause of American music, started life as a flute player.

Could these pioneers witness the orchestral opportunities offered to ambitious young musicians at the Conservatory of Music today they would appreciate that in music as in all things else America is the land of promise.

HERE IS A SNAP!

160 acres of rich, rolling land within four miles of Lamar, for $4,500

Will take $1,700 cash, balance on long time.

Nearly all the land has been in cultivation, but is now principally in tame grass. There are two houses on the place, one in good repair with five rooms, the other fair with three rooms.

Barn is in good condition and has room for six head of horses, corn crib and hay mow.

Has a fine orchard and some small fruit.

The farm is fenced with hedge and barbed wire, and fencing is all in good shape.

The land is rolling, no timber except some shade trees in the pasture, which consists of 20 acres in tame and wild grass and adjoins the barn lot. There is a good well at the barn which never fails and a good cistern at the house, with pumps in both.

Twenty or thirty acres is underlaid with a fourteen-inch vein of coal which is found from four to seven or eight feet below the surface Coal is good—black and red mixed. Farm is on the main road to Lamar, ½ mile from school house and in good neighborhood, and on two telephone lines. Land adjoining this place is selling at from $40 to $55 an acre, and the only reason the above offer is made is to consumate another trade.

Had a Large Attendance.

There was a large attendance at the commencement exercises of the Lincoln High school at the New Sedalia theatre Friday night, when ten young men and women were graduated. The program printed in last Tuesday's Democrat-Sentinel was carried out to the letter.

At the close of the exercises Supt. Buchanan, Miss Letts, principal of the Sedalia High school, and W. M. Johns and Dr. H. B. Cole made brief addresses and the diplomas were distributed.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Sedalia People Know How to Save It.

Many Sedalia people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of a Sedalia citizen who has reclaimed good health by the use of this remedy:

G. S. Dawson, car repairer at the M. P. R. R. shops living at 212 Saline street, Sedalia, Mo., says: "For relieving backache and other pains arising from a disordered condition of the kidneys. I can certainly highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. In my estimation they have no equal. I suffered so badly with lameness across the small of my back that when I stooped or lifted anything sharp twinges of pain would dart through me. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills and went to W. E. Bard's drug store to get a box. After taking only a few doses I felt better, and in a short time all symptoms of lameness in my back and kidney trouble disappeared."
